BEGINNING LATIN

PLACE

Edgar J. Stricker

In a Roman Home

BEGINNING LATIN

AN INTRODUCTION, BY WAY OF ENGLISH, TO THE LATIN LANGUAGE

BY

PERLEY OAKLAND PLACE, LITT.D.

PROFESSOR OF LATIN IN SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

With the Collaboration of CURTIS C. BUSHNELL, Ph.D., Professor of Classics in Syracuse University; HAROLD L. CLEASBY, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Classics in Hunter College, New York, N.Y.; and ALVAH T. OTIS, A.M., High School, White Plains, N.Y.

AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY

NEW YORK CINCINNATI CHICAGO BOSTON ATLANTA

COPYRIGHT, 1919, BY AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY

PLACE. BEGINNING LATIN

W. P. 9

PREFACE

Why American Boys and Girls Should Study Latin. The study of Latin is an intensive study of English. Besides its importance for a mastery of French, Spanish, and Italian, the study of Latin fosters habits of persistence, thoroughness, and accuracy; it cultivates the power to understand the thoughts of others and to express one's own. Translating is "laboratory work in literature," admirable exercise in expression, insuring steadily increasing power in the use of a varied and rich vocabulary as the great authors, Caesar, Cicero, and Vergil, are successively read.

This Book Emphasizes the Relation of Latin to English. The value most nearly at hand in studying Latin and the most practical of all reasons for its study is the help given by Latin in understanding and using the English language. This book, therefore, lays special emphasis upon the relation of Latin to English. Related English words, with the Latin element typographically emphasized, are placed in the vocabularies, beside the Latin. Thus familiar and unfamiliar English words are illuminated by the Latin.

English grammar is made introductory to each point of Latin syntax. The pupil has before him in his home study a simple and orderly development of each principle of Latin grammar, starting from English. The teacher is thereby saved much explanation in the classroom and is also guarded from omitting steps essential to a solution of the pupil's difficulties.

How the Subject Matter Is Arranged. Each Chapter is divided into Sections and each Section is intended for one lesson. In the earlier Chapters the First Section presents a portion of the inflections with an exercise; the Second Section a vocabulary with an exercise; the Third Section applies the inflections, vocabulary, and syntax in Translation Exercises. Forms and syntax are introduced where they seem best adapted to the pupil's progress. In each Section suggestions for study are given. The book contains numerous special features based on classroom experience, and is in harmony with the recommendations of the National Education Association.

The Vocabulary of the Book. The vocabulary, based on Lodge's Vocabulary of High School Latin and Browne's Latin Word List, does not merely stress the military side. In the earlier chapters Latin words related to familiar English words are chosen, thus diminishing vocabulary difficulties while the pupil masters the inflections.

The Latin Selections. Each of the Latin Selections was written for its particular place in the book.

The Aim of the Book. The aim of the book is to increase the interest and pleasure of the first year of Latin, and to insure certain practical results, while establishing a thorough basis for further study. The direct and more restricted aim is the learning of Latin by the help of English and of English by the help of Latin; the broader aim is to impart even to the beginner some vivid suggestion of the civilization attained by Rome.

The author wishes to express his gratitude to his collaborators and to the following teachers who read the proof sheets and offered many helpful suggestions: Professor Albert A. Howard, Harvard University; Professor John Greene, Colgate University; Professor John K. Lord, Dartmouth College; Mr. Joseph P. Behm, Central High School, Syracuse, N. Y.; Principal Elmer E. Bogart, Morris High School, New York, N. Y.; Mrs. Harriet Kitts, High School, Schenectady, N. Y.; Principal F. R. Parker, High School, Elmira, N. Y.

PERLEY OAKLAND PLACE.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
SUGGESTIONS FOR STUDY	xiv
INTRODUCTION	1
THE PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN	8

FIRST HALF YEAR

CHAPTER
I.	FIRST DECLENSION: terra — Syntax: Subject, Object, Agreement of Verbs, Possessive Genitive	15
II.	FIRST CONJUGATION: Present Indicative Active of vocō — Present Indicative of sum — Syntax: Indirect Object — Questions and Answers	22
III.	SECOND DECLENSION: hortus, templum — Nouns in -ius and -ium — Syntax: Predicate Noun	29
IV.	FIRST CONJUGATION: Perfect Indicative Active of vocō — Perfect Indicative of sum — The Tiber	34
V.	REVIEW: Word List — Speed Test on Latin Words and Forms — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–IV	40
VI.	ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS: bonus, bona, bonum — Principal Parts of a Verb in English and in Latin — Syntax: Agreement of Adjectives; Attributive and Predicate Adjectives — LATIN SELECTION: Fabula: Bad Friends Are Like Bad Apples	41
VII.	FIRST CONJUGATION: Imperfect (English "Past Progressive") and Future Indicative Active of vocō — Imperfect and Future Indicative of sum — Syntax: Agreement of Nouns (Appositives); Ablative of Means or Instrument — The Bridges of Rome	47
VIII.	FIRST CONJUGATION: Pluperfect (English "Past Perfect") and Future Perfect Indicative Active of vocō — Pluperfect and Future Perfect Indicative of sum	54

CHAPTER		PAGE
IX.	SECOND DECLENSION: Nouns in -er, -ir (puer, ager, vir) — Adjectives in -er (līber, lībera, līberum; aeger, aegra, aegrum) — Indicative of possum — Syntax: Complementary Infinitive — The Walls of Rome . .	58
X.	REVIEW: Word List — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–IX — Derivation Exercise, Type I	64
XI.	SECOND CONJUGATION: Indicative Active of moneō — Syntax: Ablative of Accompaniment — Derivation Exercise, Type I	66
XII.	THIRD DECLENSION: dux, rēx, mīles, aestās — Syntax: Ablative of Time When or Within Which; Accusative of Duration of Time	72
XIII.	POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES: meus, noster, tuus, vester — The Forum	78
XIV.	THIRD DECLENSION (Continued): cōnsul, legiō, pater, flūmen, tempus — Gender of Nouns of the Third Declension	83
XV.	REVIEW: Vocabularies XI–XIV — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XIV — The Colosseum.	88
XVI.	THIRD CONJUGATION: Indicative Active of regō — LATIN SELECTION: Quintus Cicero Defends the Camp . .	90
XVII.	PASSIVE VOICE: Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative Passive of vocō — Syntax: Ablative of Agent .	95
XVIII.	PASSIVE VOICE: Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Indicative Passive of vocō	101
XIX.	PASSIVE VOICE: Indicative of moneō — Roman Arches .	105
XX.	REVIEW: Word List — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XIX — Derivation Exercise, Type II	110
XXI.	PASSIVE VOICE: Indicative of regō — Personal Pronouns: ego, tū — Intensive Pronoun ipse — Reflexive Pronoun suī — Reflexive Possessives — LATIN SELECTION: Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh	113
XXII.	COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES: Adjectives of First and Second Declensions in -us and -er — Declension of the Comparative — Formation and Comparison of Adverbs — Syntax: Ablative with the Comparative . . .	120

CHAPTER PAGE

XXIII. The Interrogative Pronoun and Adjective: quis, quid — Demonstrative Pronouns and Adjectives: hic, ille. iste, is, īdem — Derivation Exercise, Type I — Latin Selection: The Cobbler Practices Medicine . 126

XXIV. Cardinal Numerals: One to Twenty — Ordinal Numerals: First to Twentieth — The Roman Public Baths 132

XXV. Review: Vocabularies XXI–XXIV — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XXIV — The Form of Latin Words in English — The Importance of Latin Words in English 136

XXVI. Third Conjugation Verbs in -iō: Indicative Active and Passive of capiō — Derivation Exercise, Type I . . 141

XXVII. Latin Prefixes and Suffixes 144

XXVIII. Relative Pronoun: quī, quae, quod — Syntax: Agreement of the Relative — Latin Selection: The Founding of Rome 147

XXIX. Syntax: Temporal Clauses with postquam, ubi, dum — Causal Clauses with quod, quia — Latin Selection: Horatius Defends the Bridge 154

XXX. Review: Vocabularies XXVI–XXIX — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax of the First Half Year — Derivation Exercise, Type III — Latin Selections: King Pyrrhus' Envoy Comes to Rome; The Romans Occupy Tarentum 159

SECOND HALF YEAR

XXXI. Fourth Conjugation: Indicative Active of audiō — Syntax: Expressions of Cause — Derivation Exercise, Type II — The Roman Roads 163

XXXII. Fourth Conjugation: Indicative Passive of audiō — Syntax: Ablative of Specification — The Aqueducts of Rome 168

XXXIII. Third Declension: i-Stems (hostis, nūbēs, animal, urbs) — The Gender of Nouns with i-Stems — Syntax: Ablative of Manner 172

CHAPTER		PAGE
XXXIV.	THIRD DECLENSION ADJECTIVES: ācer, facilis, audāx, prūdēns — Comparison of these Adjectives — Syntax: Ablative of Degree of Difference — LATIN SELECTIONS: Spartan Courage; Vesta and the Vestals	177
XXXV.	REVIEW: Vocabularies XXXI–XXXIV — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XXXI–XXXIV — Derivation Exercise Type I — LATIN WORDS IN ALGEBRA AND BIOLOGY	184
XXXVI.	ADVERBS FROM THIRD DECLENSION ADJECTIVES — Irregular Adjectives (bonus, malus, magnus, parvus, multus) and their Adverbs — Derivation Exercise, Type III — LATIN SELECTION: Androclus and the Lion	188
XXXVII.	Syntax: Dative with Adjectives — LATIN SELECTION: The Miser's Shoes	193
XXXVIII.	Syntax: Ablative of Separation — Latin Phrases (Review) — LATIN SELECTIONS: Caesar's Daughter Julia, Cicero's Daughter Tullia; Two Patriotic Brothers	197
XXXIX.	FOURTH DECLENSION — Syntax: Dative of the Possessor — LATIN SELECTION: The Haunted House in Athens	203
XL.	REVIEW: Word List — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XXXI–XXXIX — LATIN SELECTION: The Shipwreck and the Rescue — FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS FROM THE LATIN — LATIN WORDS AND PHRASES IN COMMON USE . . .	208
XLI.	Syntax: Indirect Object with Certain Intransitive Verbs — The Roman House; Roman Wall Decorations .	213
XLII.	FIFTH DECLENSION: diēs, rēs, fidēs, spēs — THE ROMAN CALENDAR: How to Express a Date in Latin — LATIN SELECTION: Midas of the Golden Touch .	217
XLIII.	Syntax: Place and Distance — Cardinal Numerals (21–1000) — LATIN SELECTION: A Roman Mother . .	223
XLIV.	Syntax: Subjective and Objective Genitive, Genitive of the Whole, Genitive with Certain Adjectives, Genitive and Ablative of Quality or Description — LATIN SELECTION: The Trumpeter is Put to Death	229

CHAPTER PAGE

XLV. Review: Vocabularies XLI–XLIV — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XLI–XLIV — Derivation Exercise, Type III — The Classical Influence upon Advertising 234

XLVI. Syntax: Conditional Sentences with Indicative — Derivation Exercise, Type I 236

XLVII. Subjunctive Mood: Subjunctive Active and Passive of vocō — Subjunctive of sum — Syntax: Clauses of Purpose with ut (Affirmative), nē (Negative) — Derivation Exercise, Type I — The Romans as Builders, Artisans, and Artists — Latin Selection: Joseph, Son of Jacob 239

XLVIII. Subjunctive Mood: Subjunctive Active and Passive of moneō — Subjunctive of possum — Syntax: Subjunctive in Independent Clauses (Action Wished, Willed, and Probable) — Derivation Exercise, Type III — Latin Selection: Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued) . . 246

XLIX. Subjunctive Mood: Subjunctive Active and Passive of regō, capiō, audiō — Syntax: Clauses of Result — Derivation Exercise, Type II — The Roman Dress . 251

L. Review: Vocabularies XLI–XLIX — Speed Test — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XLI–XLIX — Latin Abbreviations in English 257

LI Imperative Mood: of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō — Syntax: Relative Clauses of Purpose — Latin Selection: Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued) . . 259

LII. Participles: of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō audiō — Syntax: Ablative Absolute — Latin Selection. Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued) — Latin Prefixes and Suffixes 264

LIII. Infinitives: of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō — Syntax: Indirect Discourse — Latin Selections: Not at Home; Gaius Iulius Caesar 276

LIV. Indefinite Pronouns: aliquis, quīdam — Syntax: Substantive Clauses — Latin Selection: Gaius Iulius Caesar (Continued) 281

LV. Review: Vocabularies LI–LIV — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters LI–LIV — Gaius Iulius Caesar (Continued) 288

CHAPTER		PAGE
LVI.	ADJECTIVES WITH GENITIVE IN -īus — The Roman Religion	290
LVII.	Syntax: Indirect Questions — Derivation Exercise, Type I	295
LVIII.	GERUND, GERUNDIVE — Syntax: Purpose Phrases with ad and causā — Derivation Exercise, Type I — LATIN SELECTION: The Suebi, the Largest Tribe of the Germans	299
LIX.	DEPONENT VERBS — Syntax: Ablative with Certain Deponent Verbs: cum-Temporal, cum-Circumstantial, and cum-Causal Clauses — LATIN SELECTIONS: His Old Schoolmate; The Sun Wins by Kindness	306
LX.	REVIEW: Vocabularies LVI–LIX — Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters LVI–LIX — Marcus Tullius Cicero — LATIN SELECTIONS: Cicero Thanks the Gods; The Poet Catullus' Tribute to Cicero; The Gallant Four Hundred; Stories of Caesar	311

APPENDIX:	I. Forms	317
	II. Rules of Syntax	338
	III. The Latin Club	344
ENGLISH-LATIN VOCABULARY		349
LATIN-ENGLISH VOCABULARY		365
INDEX		395

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

PAGE

In a Roman Home (Colored) . . . . . Frontispiece
Map of the Roman Empire (Colored) . . . . . between xvi–xvii Entering Rome by the Appian Way (Porta Sebastiana) . . . xviii
Roman Baths at Bath, England 2
Roman Bridge over the Tagus at Alcántara, Spain ; built 105 A.D. . . 4
Augustus Caesar (63 B.C.–14 A.D.) 6
Ancient Athens 14
Agricola 19
A Roman Coin of Augustus 21
A Gate of Ancient Pompeii 21
A Roman Boy 22
A Roman Girl 27
The Parthenon at Athens (Restoration in the Metropolitan Museum, N.Y.) 28
A Temple at Pompeii 30
Equus (a Roman horse of bronze) 33
A Greek Temple in Sicily 34
A Coin of Ancient Syracuse 37
The Eternal City: Rome and the Tiber 38
The Falls at Tivoli 39
Hortus 41
A Roman of the Time of Cicero 46
Spinning (From a relief) 49
Shield 51
Mooring Ring of a Roman Ship 52
The Tiber and the Fabrician Bridge 53
Aquila (a military standard) 56
A Temple at the Source of the Clitumnus 57
A Roman Youth as a Victorious Charioteer 58
A Roman School Scene in Alsace 61
Map of Italy (Colored) . . . . . facing 62
The Aurelian Wall 63
Roman Writing Materials 65
Fresco Painting of Cupids in the House of the Vettii, Pompeii . . 66
From a Biblical Manuscript 70
Copying an Ancient Manuscript in a Medieval Monastery . . . 71
The Frontier Defense (limes) of the Roman Empire 73
The Restored Roman Camp at Saalburg 75
Gallic Swords and Daggers 76
A Roman Soldier of the Legion 77
English and American Coins 80
The Roman Forum (as it appeared in 80 A.D.) 81
A Roman Cameo 84
Trajan's Army Crossing the Danube on a Bridge of Boats . . . 86

PAGE

Filia et Māter 87
A Coin of Vespasian Commemorating the Subjugation of Judea, 70 A.D. 88
The Colosseum as It Looks To-day 89
Gallic Horseman 90
"Beware the Dog" (a mosaic from the vestibule of a Pompeian house) . 93
A Message from Caesar 94
Coin of Julius Caesar 95
Julius Caesar (102–44 B.C.) 99
Map of Imperial Rome 100
A Greek Vase (Aphrodite and Swan) 101
The Arch of Trajan 107
The Victory Arch, New York 108
The Arch of the Emperor Constantine 109
A Roman Cup (silver) 111
A Wall Painting from Pompeii (Psyches Gathering Flowers) . . . 112
A Two-Horse Chariot, or Biga 118
The Victorious Charioteer 119
Roman Lamps 124
A Greek Monument 127
Pōculum 130
A Temple in Southern Italy (at Paestum) 131
Interior of the Baths of Caracalla (Restoration) 135
A Christian Inscription 136
A Roman Woman and Her Maid 138
A Grecian Urn 143
A Roman Medallion: Obverse 146
A Roman Medallion: Reverse 147
The Emperor Trajan Goes to Dedicate His Forum 148
The Alban Hills 150
"The Shepherd," a Roman Painting 152
Etruscan Gate at Volterra 157
Horatius at the Bridge (Colored) . . . . . facing 158
Pyrrhus 160
Coins of the Greek City of Tarentum 162
A Coin of Vespasian (Reverse of coin on page 88) 163
A Roman Traveling Carriage 165
On the Old Appian Way 167
Basilica (Court House) in the Forum of Trajan 169
A Roman Aqueduct in Southern France 171
The Roman Tower at York, England 173
Mosaic of Parrots and Cat 175
A Roman Fleet in Harbor 176
The Acropolis of Athens (Restoration) 178
A Roman Salt Dish 179
Within the Hall of the Vestals (Restoration) 182
Tuccia Lifting the Sieve 185
In the Atrium of a Roman House 186
A Coin of Augustus 190
Androclus and the Lion 192
A Gallic Chief Surrenders to Caesar 195
Roman Shoes 196

PAGE

Portrait Statue of a Roman Woman 200
Publius Cornelius Scipio Africanus 201
A Roman Mother and Her Sons 202
Interior of a Roman House 205
A Coin of Athens 206
From a Roman Lamp (Mercury Brings a Soul to Charon) . . . 207
A Roman Ship at Sea 210
The House of the Vettii, at Pompeii 216
"To the Loyalty and Valor of the Swiss" (The Lion of Lucerne) . . 219 Calendarium (Almanac on an Altar) 220
A Roman Cup 222
A Street in Rome (Colored) . . . . . facing 222
A Roman Wall Painting from Pompeii (Cupids at Play) 224
The Gracchi 228
The Castle of St. Angelo 230
The Emperor Marcus Aurelius (161–180 A.D.) Sparing the Captives . . 233
A Vase Painting (Ship and Dolphins) 236
From a Roman Lamp (Hercules Overcoming the Lion) 238
A Roman Mosaic (Doves and Bowl) 243
A Christian Inscription from the Catacombs 249
Father Nile 250
A Roman Coin of Hadrian 252
The Barber Shop of Licinius 254
A Roman Woman and Her Maid 256
The Portland Vase 257
Egyptians Sowing 263
From a Roman Lamp (The Huntress Diana) 267
Before the Chariot Race (In the Circus Maximus) 269
The Chariot Race (Colored) . . . . . facing 270
A Roman Epitaph 275
Caesar's Engineers Build a Bridge 277
A Wall Painting from Herculaneum (A Tragic Actor) 283
A Roman Horseman 285
The Maison Carrée (The "Square House") 286
The Meeting of Caesar and Ariovistus 287
A Shepherd Boy Meets Caesar 288
The Pantheon at Rome 292
Gods of Greece 293
An Italian Lake 298
Thalia, the Muse of Comedy 301
Urania, the Muse of Astronomy 302
From a Roman Lamp (Apollo and a Griffin) 303
An Ancient German Home 304
Pallas Athene, Protectress of Athens 309
An Ancient Silver Dish (showing figure of Athena) 311
Marcus Tullius Cicero 312
Jupiter, Father of Gods and Men 313
A Coin of Carthage 314
The Conquering Roman Eagle 316
The Romans Come to Britain (Colored) . . . . . facing 316

SUGGESTIONS FOR STUDY

The following devices and games are offered as practical aids to the study of Latin. The devices of the notched card and of the trellises will be of service to the pupil in the preparation of the lesson, while the word and sentence games can be made to vary the method of recitation and enliven the interest in the classroom.

The Notched Card

A helpful device in learning declensions, conjugations, and vocabularies is the notched card:

1. To learn a declension: place the card over the declension so that Nominative will appear in the notch, and the form of the Nominative will be covered; pronounce the Nominative and give its meaning; then move the card down, and as each case appears in the notch pronounce the Latin form and give its meaning; in the same way test yourself on the plural forms.

2. To learn a tense of a verb: place the card so that the first English meaning will appear in the notch and the Latin forms will be covered; moving the card down, give in order each Latin form.

3. To learn a vocabulary:

(a) Place the card so that the first Latin word of the vocabulary appears in the notch, the English meaning being hidden; then ask yourself, "What is the English meaning?"

Move the card down the vocabulary, and test yourself on each Latin word.

(b) Place the card so that the first English meaning appears within the notch, the Latin word being hidden; then ask yourself, "What is the Latin word?" Say the Latin word aloud, and, if it is a noun, give its Genitive and its gender; if it is a verb, give its principal parts.

(c) Place the card, with the long unbroken edge at the top, across both the "English Meanings" and the "Latin Words," leaving the "Related English Words" in full view; look at the first line of related English words and ask yourself, "To what Latin word are these related?" "Do I know the exact meaning of these related English words?"

Trellises

Another useful device for learning declensions and conjugations is a simple framework that may be called a "trellis." Pupils can make the diagram on a sheet of paper and fill it in while preparing the lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

1. Noun Trelli. — (a) Write upon the trellis all the forms of the noun to be learned (terra, hortus, templum, puer, etc.), marking long vowels and the accent, and give after each case its meaning. (b) Compare your written work with the book and correct any errors. (c) With the book closed and the written work put aside, form a mental picture of the trellis and decline the noun aloud, associating with each case its meaning. Practice for accuracy and speed.

	Sing.	Plur.
Nom.
Gen.
Dat.
Acc.
Abl.

2. Verb Trellis. — (a) Write upon the trellis the present tense of the verb to be learned (vocō, moneō, regō, etc.), marking long vowels and accent, and give after each form its meaning. (b) Compare your written work with the book and correct any errors. (c) With the book closed and the trellis put aside, form a mental picture of the trellis and conjugate the tense aloud, associating with each form its person and meaning. (This trellis should be enlarged upon as additional tenses and moods of the verb are studied.

	Sing.	Plur.
1.	———	———
2.	———	———
3.	———	———

3. Adjective Trellis. — (a) Write upon the trellis, first, all forms of the Nominative singular; then all forms of the Genitive singular; then, in the same way, the rest of the singular and the plural. (b) With the book closed and the trellis put aside, form a mental picture of this framework and decline the adjective aloud, associating with each case its three genders, and having in your mind a clear picture of these forms in their proper place on the framework. (c) Repeat rapidly several times the endings alone, thus: Nom. -us, -a, -um; Gen. -ī, -ae, -ī; Dat. -ō, -ae, -ō, etc.

	Singular			Plural
	M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
Nom.	——	——	——	——	——	——
Gen.	——	——	——	——	——	——
Dat.	——	——	——	——	——	——
Acc.	——	——	——	——	——	——
Abl.	——	——	——	——	——	——

The Game of Related English Words

An interesting game may be played as follows: The teacher divides the class into two groups (A and B), then selects a Latin word from the word list and asks, for example, "Can you give an English word related to spectō?" If group A has the "first inning," all in the group who can give one or more English words related to spectō at once raise the hand. Then the teacher asks different pupils of group A

10
0 10
CALEDONIA
HIBERNIA
MARE GERMANICUM
BRITANNIA
Londinium
Oceanus Britannicus
GERMANIA
Lugdunensis
Lutetia
GALLIA
Aquitania
Narbonensis
Massilia
MARE CANTABRICUM
OCEANUS ATLANTICUS Tarraconensis
Numantia
HISPANIA
Lusitania
Augustum
Baetica
Gades
BALEARES
MARE
CORSICA
Roma
SARDINIA
Neapolis
Tarentum
ITALIA
NORICUM
PANNONIA
ILLYR
MARE ADRIATICUM
SICILIA
Syracusae
Zama
Carthago
MAURETANIA
NUMIDIA
50 40 30
THE ROMAN EMPIRE
AT ITS GREATEST EXTENT
SCALE OF MILES
0 100 200 300 400 500 600
West
0 10
Longitude
East

30 40
50
60
50 40
MARE CASPIUM
PONTUS EUXINUS
THRACIA
BITHINIA
PONTUS
ARMENIA
GALATIA
CAPPADOCIA
ASIA
ASSYRIA
PARTHIA
MESOPOTAMIA MEDIA
Euphrates
Tigris
CYPRUS
SYRIA
PALESTINA
PHOENICIA
ARABIA
LIBYA
AEGYPTUS
SINUS ARABICUS
Tyrus
Damascus
Alexandria
Byzantium
Troja
Antiochia
Jerusalem
Hierosolyma
Nilus
Persicus
L. L. POATES CO., N.Y.
from Greenwich
30
40

until the group can give no more words. Each word should be classified when given, thus: inspect (verb), inspection (noun), spectacular (adjective), spectacularly (adverb). When group A has done its best, if group B can add no word, group A wins one point; but if group B can add any words, each counts one point for B. Also if group B challenges a word given by group A, the latter group must use the word correctly in an English sentence, or lose one point to group B. Group B has its "inning" in the same way with the next Latin word. After ten minutes the teacher "calls the game" and announces the score.

The Game of Correct Sentences

This can be played when the class writes upon the board its translations of sentences from English into Latin. The class itself is regarded as one "team," opposed to which is the "Team of Errors." As the game proceeds (i.e. as the sentences are corrected), the score is kept upon the board (as is the "score by runs" in baseball).

There is an "inning" for each sentence. If the sentence is perfect in every respect, including the marking of quantities, one "run" is scored for the class and the sentence itself is starred; if there is the slightest mistake, the faulty sentence scores one for "The Errors." The team with the larger number of runs wins.

The game can be varied by dividing the class into two sections ("sides") and assigning to both sides the same number of sentences to be written. An absolutely correct sentence counts as one "run," otherwise the side fails to score. In each inning the sides present one sentence apiece for criticism. At the end of the game the side with the larger number of runs is declared the winner. Correct sentences are starred.

Entering Rome by the Appian Way
(Porta Sebastiana)

ROMA AETERNA

Ō Rōma nōbilis, orbis et domina,
Cūnctārum urbium excellentissima,
Roseō martyrum sanguine rubea,
Albīs et virginum līliīs candida, Salūtem dīcimus tibi per omnia:
AVĒ, RŌMA IMMORTĀLIS!

O Rome, far-famed and Empress of earth,
Above all cities throned upon high,
Red with the martyrs' blood of the rose,
White with the virgins' lilies of snow,
Hearts evermore hail Thee, O Rome:
HAIL, DEATHLESS ROME!

INTRODUCTION

(First and Second Days)

I. THE ROMANS AND THEIR LANGUAGE, "LATIN"

In order really to understand our language, "English," and the world in which we live, we need to know about the ancient Romans and their language, Latin.

1. The Ancient Romans, Their Empire, Civilization, and Influence. — The Romans at first lived in the central part of Italy. Their little settlement of shepherds on a hill[1] near the Tiber river became in time the great city of Rome, which, according to legend, was founded in 753 B.C.; from this date therefore they reckoned time, as we do from the birth of Christ. The central part of Italy on the western side was called Latium; the peoples there were Latins, and the language of the Romans was called Latin. North of Latium were the Etruscans, who had fine cities while Rome was still a settlement of shepherds;

[1] Early Rome. — The original settlement was on the Palatine Hill (which later became the residence of the Roman emperors, so that our English word "palace" is derived from it). Settlements on neighboring hills in time united with that on the Palatine. The low ground between the hills, the Forum, served as a market place and civic center. A second market place, nearer the river, was the Forum Boarium, which became the early commercial center. On the adjacent Capitoline Hill was a citadel, for Rome owed much of its early importance to its being a border fortress of the Latins at a point where an island in midstream made it easy for the hostile Etruscans to cross the Tiber. The Janiculum, a hill across the river, served as a fortified outpost to keep the Etruscans even from the farther bank. It "guarded the bridgehead" of the Sublician bridge. Cf. 84 and map, p. 100.

to the southeast in the interior of Italy were the Samnites; and in Southern Italy the Greek civilization was firmly established (cf. map facing p. 62).

The Romans in time extended their power over all the countries round about the Mediterranean Sea and even occupied a part of the British Isles, so that eventually they ruled from Scotland to the Sahara Desert and from the Atlantic to the Euphrates. This empire, when at the height of its power, was in length, breadth, and population nearly the same as the United States, Italy alone being more than twice the area of the State of New York.[1] So many people had never before been under one government, nor been governed so well.

Roman Baths at Bath, England

Northwards the Rhine and Danube rivers formed a strong defense behind which civilization was secure from the German barbarians beyond. The only other dangerous enemies were the Parthians in the distant East, and these were successfully held in check. All the vast empire was connected with Rome by a network of wonderful roads along which travelers and traders moved with a freedom and security such as were unknown for many centuries after; and the Romans, through their language, customs, and laws, went on to make the peoples whom they governed to be in greater or less measure like themselves.

[1] See map following page xvi and note the names of the countries ("provinces") governed by Rome.

This Roman civilization was greatly indebted to that of the Greeks, with its noble literature and art.[1] A second powerful influence upon the Roman civilization was Christianity, which, under the Emperor Constantine (324–337 A.D.), was accepted as the established religion of the Empire.

The Latin language was spoken throughout Western Europe and Northern Africa; east of Italy the common speech remained Greek, but the official language was Latin. The differences between the East and the West finally resulted in the division of the Empire into the Western Roman Empire and the Eastern Roman Empire.

Roman history, strictly speaking, covers twelve centuries (from 753 B.C. to 476 A.D., when, with the capture of Rome by the Goths, a German tribe, the Western Roman Empire fell). The Eastern Roman Empire continued for nearly a thousand years longer till the capture of its capital, Constantinople ("the city of Constantine"), by the Turks in 1453 A.D. The great period of Roman literature, the Golden Age, was from about 80 B.C. to 17 A.D. Then lived the great writers whose works we are preparing to read, — Caesar, Cicero, Vergil, and Horace.

Afterwards, in the Middle Ages, which came between Ancient and Modern times, even the invading tribes that had crossed the Rhine and Danube and broken up the Western Empire learned the Roman language and ways, along with the Christian religion; and what they learned from Rome has been handed on to us.

[1] A student of Latin is strongly advised to study Greek.

Thus the Romans have contributed to modern civilization the influence of their law, language, literature, architecture, art, and religion.

2. Latin in the Middle Ages. — In the Middle Ages Latin was at first spoken everywhere in Western Europe, and also along the lower Danube, but in the course of a few centuries it was gradually changed in the various lands into the separate languages of French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and Roumanian.

Roman Bridge over the Tagus at Alcántara, Spain; built 105 A.D.

These languages, called Romance languages because of their Roman origin, are simply "Latin in modern guise," and are easily learned by those who understand Latin. Latin was driven from England by the invading Anglo-Saxons, but in a modified form was brought back later (1066 A.D.) by the conquering Normans, who spoke a kind of French. These two elements of Anglo-Saxon and Norman-French are mingled along with others in Modern English.

Throughout the Middle Ages, Latin remained, in Western Europe, the language of the church and of the universities. Science, literature, law, and religion became thoroughly associated with it.

3. How Latin Lives To-day. — To-day also Latin is truly a living language. Besides, being understood by educated men all over the world, it is the official language of the Catholic Church. It is used in the service and by the clergy. Some of the most beautiful hymns are in Latin.

More than 200,000,000 people of the present day speak the Romance languages. In two of these languages, Spanish and Portuguese, Americans are especially interested as being the speech of our neighbors in Mexico, Central America, and South America.

In a certain sense we ourselves speak Latin, for more than half the words in our language come directly or indirectly from Latin. Some of these words have come down from the Roman occupation of Britain, many are derived indirectly through the Norman-French, and many others directly as the inherited vocabulary of literature, science, and philosophy. Especially for the professions of theology, law, and medicine is Latin important. So Latin is not a "dead language." "In fact the livest part of our language to the educated man is the Latin part."[1]

The importance of Latin is shown by the fact that it is "the one language, except English, which is most generally studied in our high schools and academies."[2]

II. DIVISIONS OF ROMAN HISTORY

The following divisions of Roman history may be profitably remembered:

1. 753–509 B.C., Period of the Kings, of whom the last, the Tarquins, were probably Etruscan rulers to whom Rome was unwillingly subject. They were said to have been expelled by the Liberator Brutus in 509 B.C. The Roman people thereafter, in place of a single life-long sovereign, elected annually two consuls as chief magistrates with equal power. The main law-making body was to be the senate.

[1] Dr. W. T. Harris, late U. S. Commissioner of Education.

[2] Value of the Classics (Princeton University Press, 1917), p. 360.

Augustus Caesar (63 B.C.–14 A.D.)
The First of the Roman Emperors

2. 509–31 B.C., Period of the Republic. This period was, in the beginning, marked by strife between the plebeians, or common people, and the patricians, or nobles.[1] Steadily the plebeians improved their position in the state. Steadily also the external power of Rome increased. The period was closed by civil wars, in which the greatest figures were Julius Caesar (102–44 B.C.) and Augustus (63 B.C.–14 A.D.), the latter of whom by the great naval victory of Actium (31 B.C.) became the Emperor, or sole ruler of the Roman Empire.

3. 31 B.C.–476 A.D., Period of the Empire. During this time Rome was ruled by Emperors, who for the last 300 years of the period had to struggle vigorously with dangerous barbarian invasions, till the Fall of the Western Empire in 476 A.D.

[1] The patricians ("sons of the fathers") are believed to represent the earliest families of Rome; the plebeians, the later comers to Rome.

III. HOW ROME ROSE TO POWER[1]

Rome's rise to world dominion is a thrilling story. She had certain natural advantages to begin with. The hills on which the city was built were easy to defend, the large river close by and the not distant sea made Rome a commercial center, and the fact that Rome was central to Italy and fairly central to the Mediterranean lands made her a suitable seat of government.

Rome was the natural head of the Latin tribes and early proved herself stronger than the Etruscans. Her most stubborn antagonists in Italy were the Samnites; these she conquered in the three Samnite wars (343–290 B.C.). She then overcame the Greek cities in Southern Italy (281–272 B.C.), though they were helped by Pyrrhus, a Greek king who was an able general and had a powerful army. The first province brought under Roman rule as it extended itself beyond Italy was Sicily, taken from the most dangerous enemies the Roman Republic ever had, the Carthaginians. They were a great commercial people, whose capital was Carthage, not far from the present Tunis. Carthage ruled a powerful empire in Northern Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, and later in Spain, and had as a military leader the illustrious Hannibal, one of the greatest generals that ever lived. Rome finally destroyed Carthage after three great wars (264–146 B.C.), thus gaining all the lands which Carthage had ruled. It was much less difficult to take Macedonia (146 B.C.), Greece (146 B.C.), Syria (64 B.C.), and Egypt (30 B.C.). Julius Caesar made the northern Roman frontiers safe by subduing Gaul (58–50 B.C.), and led an expedition (54 B.C.) into Britain. Southern Britain became a province in 44 A.D. and Northern Britain in 85 A.D. The last important province taken into permanent occupation by Rome was Dacia (on the Danube), added by the Emperor Trajan in 106 A.D. Rome had now reached her utmost limits and the rest of her story is that of "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

[1] Cf. Macaulay, Lays of Ancient Rome, "The Prophecy of Capys."

THE PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN

(Third and Fourth Days)

Our pronunciation of Latin is that of the Ancient Romans at the beginning of the Christian era.

A correct pronunciation of Latin can be acquired only by imitation of the teacher. It is suggested that the teacher first take up with the class Sections 1 to 6 and illustrate each point by the voice. In this way the pupil, after practice in class with the teacher's help, will study these sections by himself with interest and confidence.

Suggestions for Study: 1. Learn Sections 1–6, pronouncing carefully each Latin word several times. 2. Read Section 7, which is mainly for reference. 3. Practice on the Exercises in Sections 8–9.

THE LATIN ALPHABET

1. The Latin alphabet, from which comes our own, was borrowed from Greek colonies in southern Italy as early as 700 B.C.[1] It had twenty-three letters: a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i (both as vowel and consonant),[2] k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, v (both as vowel and consonant),[3] x, y, z[4]; it had no j and no w.

---

[1] The Latin Alphabet can be traced to the picture writing of Egypt (in characters called hieroglyphs), which goes back to at least 5000 B.C. Thus M was originally the picture of an owl, and its shape still suggests the owl's ears and beak; N is from the hieroglyph , which pictures the rippling surface of the water. This picture writing became simplified into a few strokes easily made, and was adopted by the Phœnicians, a seafaring people, who brought it to the Greeks.

[2] From the seventeenth century the vowel sound was expressed by i, the consonant sound by j.

[3] From the tenth century the vowel sound was expressed by u, and the consonant sound by v.

[4] x, y, and z were not in Cicero's time included in the alphabet; they were used in the Latin spelling of Greek words.

THE SOUNDS REPRESENTED BY THE LETTERS

2. Vowels. — The vowels are a, e, i, o, u, and y. Each vowel has both a long and a short sound. These sounds, though distinct, the Romans generally indicated by the same letter. Sometimes a mark was placed over a long vowel; a late form of this mark (–) is now used. Thus ā represents the long (i.e. slow) sound of a, as in English far. In this book a short vowel generally has no mark over it, but sometimes a mark (˘) is used to call attention to the short (i.e. quick) sound. Thus a, or ă, represents the short sound of a, as in English sofa. A Latin long vowel (similarly a diphthong) requires twice as much time as a short vowel.

The long and short sounds of the vowels are:

Latin Vowels	Equivalent Sounds in English		Latin Words	Meanings
a:	ā as in far	(lips open)	māter (mā-ter)	mother
	ă as in sofa	(lips open)	terra (tĕr-ra)	land
e:	ē as in they	(lips slightly open)	rēx	king
	ĕ as in met	(lips more open)	regō (rĕ-gō)	I rule
i:	ī as in machine	(lips nearly closed)	īnsula (īn-su-la)	island
	ĭ as in pin	(lips nearly closed)	ĭnter (ĭn-ter)	between
o:	ō as in note	(lips rounded)	Rōma (Rō-ma)	Rome
	ŏ as in obey [1]	(lips rounded)	ŏculus (ŏ-cu-lus)	eye
u:	ū as in rude	(lips nearly closed)	ūtilis [2] (ū-ti-lis)	useful
	ŭ as in pull	(lips nearly closed)	stŭdium (stŭ-di-um)	zeal, study

NOTE. — y (long or short) has the sound of French u or German ü; with the lips in position to give the sound of u, give the sound of short i.

[1] With lips rounded, expel the breath more quickly than for ō.

[2] In Latin, an initial long u does not have a preceding y sound as in English (e.g. use).

3. Diphthongs (two-vowel sounds). — The diphthongs are ae, au, ei, oe, eu, ui. A diphthong is a union of two short vowel sounds to form one syllable; the two vowels are pronounced in quick succession by one effort.

The diphthongs, with their equivalent sounds in English, are:

Diphthongs	Equivalent Sounds in English	Latin Words	Meanings
ae	as ai in aisle	saépe (saé-pe)	often
au	as ou in out	gaúdium (gaú-di-um)	joy
ei	as ei in eight	deínde (deín-de)	then, next
oe	as oi in coin	foédus (foé-dus)	treaty
eu	(e + u, as in 2)	heu (hĕ-o͝o)	alas
ui	(u + i, as in 2)	huic (ho͝o-ĭc) like hwic	to-him

4. Consonants. — Most consonants are pronounced in Latin as in English, but, while in English several consonants are pronounced in more than one way, in Latin a particular consonant has generally but one sound.[1] The following consonants require special care:

Consonants	Equivalent Sounds in English
c (always hard)	as in cabin (never soft as in cedar)
Ex. Caésar (Caé-sar), Caesar
g (always hard)	as in gate (never soft as in gem, ginger)
Ex. Gállia (Gál-li-a), Gaul, France
s (always hissing)	as in say (never like z)
Ex. Sicília (Si-cí-li-a), Sicily; rósa (ró-sa), rose
t (always hard)	as in tin
Ex. patiéntia (pa-ti-én-ti-a), patience
i (sometimes printed as j)	as y in yoke
Ex. iūstítia (iū-stí-ti-a), justice; máior (má-ior), greater
u (usually printed as v)	as w in water (never like v)
Ex. vēnī, vīdī, vīcī[2]

[1] See footnote 1, next page. [2] See footnote 2, next page.

NOTES. — 1. In gu (if gu is preceded by n and followed by a vowel) the u has the consonant sound: língua (líng-gwa); also in qu: quis (kwis); and sometimes in su before a vowel: persuādeō (per-swā́-de-ō).

2. r is trilled as in French.

3. ch, ph, th are pronounced like k, p, t, followed by the aspirate h; púlcher (púlc-her), Délphī (Délp-hī), Carthāgō (Cart-hā́-gō).

4. Doubled consonants should be pronounced separately and in different syllables: míttō (mít-tō), vílla (víl-la).

DIVISION INTO SYLLABLES

5. A Latin word has as many syllables as it has vowels or diphthongs, as pecūnia (pe-cū-ni-a), caúsa (caú-sa), puélla (pu-él-la), nāvigat (nā-vi-gat).

Words are divided into syllables as follows:

a. A single consonant between two vowels goes with the second: Itália (I-tá-li-a), auxílium (au-xí-li-um).

b. If two or more consonants occur together between vowels, the division is usually before the last consonant: sílva (síl-va), victória (vic-tó-ri-a), innocéntia (in-no-cén-ti-a), sánctus (sánc-tus). Exceptions to this rule are given in c.

c. A consonant, if followed by l or r, goes with the l or r: pūblicus (pū-bli-cus), agrícola (a-grí-co-la), mediocre (me-dí-o-cre), dēmōnstrō (dē-mōns-trō). But in compound words a preposition is pronounced separately, as in abrúmpō (ab-rúm-pō).

ACCENT

6. a. In words of two syllables the accent is regularly upon the first: pórta (pór-ta), spéctat (spéc-tat), sílva (síl-va), māter (mā́-ter), páter (pá-ter).

b. In words of more than two syllables the accent is upon the

---

[1] EXCEPTIONS. — b before t or s is pronounced as p: obtíneō (op-tí-ne-ō), urbs (= urps), ábstulit (= áps-tu-lit); n before c, g, or qu is pronounced like n in anchor (cf. ng in singing): áncora (= áng-ko-ra), ángor (= áng-gor), ínquit (= íng-kwit).

[2] Caesar's famous message to the senate, "I came, I saw, I conquered."

next to the last (the penult) if this syllable is long, otherwise upon the antepenult (the syllable before the penult); amícus (a-mí-cus), válidus (vá-li-dus), impediméntum (im-pe-dī-mén-tum) (7 c), benefícium (be-ne-fí-ci-um), mediocre (me-dí-o-cre).

c. Certain words like -ne, the sign of a question, and -que, and, are joined to the preceding word and pronounced with it; hence they are called enclitics (from Greek ἐγκλίνειν, to lean upon, because they lean on the word to which they are joined); amátne, does-he-love? naúta agricólaque, the sailor and-the-farmer.

QUANTITY OF SYLLABLES

7. The quantity of a syllable (i.e. the amount of time it takes to pronounce it) is determined as follows:

a. A syllable is long if it contains a long vowel or a diphthong; cūra (cū-ra), Caésar (Caé-sar).

b. A syllable is short if it ends in a short vowel: vía (ví-a), naúta (naú-ta).

c. A syllable, even if the vowel is short, is long when the short vowel is followed by a double consonant (x or z): aspéxī (a-spéc-sī), gáza (gád-za); or by two or more consonants when one or more of these consonants closes (i.e. ends) the syllable: est, sunt, suspéctus (su-spéc-tus), vérba (vér-ba), múlta (múl-ta). When the consonants go with the next syllable, as in 5 c above, the preceding syllable is not closed and the length of the syllable is determined by the length of its vowel.

d. A vowel is always long before nf, ns, nx, and nct: īnferō (īn-fe-rō), prūdēns (prū-dēns), sānctus (sānc-tus).

e. A vowel is usually short before another vowel or h: vía (ví-a), cōpia (cō-pi-a), tráhō (trá-hō); but diēī (di-ē-ī).

f. A vowel is regularly short before nd and nt, before final m or t, and, except in words of one syllable, before final l or r: vocándus (vo-cán-dus), vócant (vó-cant), laudābam (lau-dā-bam), laudābat (lau-dā-bat), ánimal (á-ni-mal), lábor (lá-bor).

But the vowel is long, if it represents a contraction, as in cōntiō (from conventiō), prēndō (from prehéndō).

8. Exercise. — Pronounce carefully, dividing each word into its syllables, and placing the accent on the proper syllable:

1. Labor omnia vincit. 2. Terra est pulchra. 3. Rēx est crūdēlis. 4. Regit crūdēliter. 5. Multae īnsulae in marī sunt. 6. Rōma est urbs magna. 7. Lūna clāra est. 8. Studium linguae Latīnae dēlectat puerōs et puellās. 9. Saepe lēgēs bonae cīvēs dēfendunt. 10. Inter cīvitātēs foedus firmum erat. 11. Heu! pācem nōn amant. 12. Gallia est terra pulchra. 13. Caesar Galliam occupāvit. 14. Hostēs in castra tēla iēcērunt. 15. Rōma est urbs maior quam urbs nostra. 16. Quis dīxit, "Vēnī, vīdī, vīcī"? 17. Innocentia nōs dēfendit. 18. Agricola in viā ambulat. 19. Tenebrae noctis cadunt. 20. Prūdēns nihil dīcit nisi prūdenter. 21. Amanda est patria nostra. 22. Mīlitēs impedīmenta in castrīs relīquērunt. 23. Estne Italia terra pulchra? 24. Suntne nauta et agricola amīcī? 25. "Ubi est," inquit, "liber meus?" 26. Heu, mē miserum! librum meum āmīsī.

9. (a) THE COMING OF THE WISE MEN[1]

(St. Matthew ii. 7–9)

7. Tunc Herōdēs, clam vocātīs Magīs, dīligenter didicit ab eīs tempus stellae, quae apparuit eīs.

8. Et mittēns illōs in Bethlehem dīxit: Īte et interrogāte dīligenter dē puerō, et cum invēneritis, renūntiāte mihi, ut et ego veniēns adōrem eum.

Then Herod, when he had secretly called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared.

And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child;
and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

[1] From the Vulgate, the Latin version of the Scriptures.

9. Quī cum audīssent rēgem, abiērunt; et ecce stella, quam vīderant in oriente,	When they had heard the king, they departed; and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, antecēdēbat eōs, ūsquedum veniēns stāret suprā, ubi erat puer.	went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

(b) THE PRAYER OF MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS

Ō Domine Deus!
Spērāvī in tē;
Ō cāre mī Iēsu!
Nunc līberā mē;
In dūrā catēnā,
In miserā poenā,
Dēsīderō tē; . . .
Adōrō, implōrō,
Ut līberēs mē!

Ancient Athens
(The Romans were deeply indebted to Greek civilization)

Ē plūribus ūnum — Out of many, one

CHAPTER I

FIRST DECLENSION · SUBJECT, OBJECT, AGREEMENT OF VERBS, POSSESSIVE GENITIVE

FIRST SECTION

(Fifth Day)

10. Preliminary Review. — Study the Introductory Chapter on Pronunciation, Sections 1–6, and pronounce carefully the Exercises in 8 and 9.

11. Changes in the Form of English Words. — In English many words (especially nouns, pronouns, and verbs) change in form to express a change in meaning. Thus (a) I praise him and (b) He praises me, express different meanings by different forms of the same words. To express this change of meaning each word has changed in form.[1] Likewise, if we have the sentence (c) This man is brave, and wish to express the same idea in the plural, we change the first three words into (d) These men are. The word brave we do not change, because in English the form of an adjective is the same in the plural as in the singular. Similarly (e) I go (the Present tense) changes to (f) I went to express the Past tense, and to (g) I have gone to express the Present Perfect tense.

Such changes in form are called inflection. The inflection of a noun or pronoun is called its declension, that of a verb its conjugation.

[1] The word I has changed in form to me, showing that the word is now not the subject, but the object of the verb; the word praise has changed in form to praises, showing that the verb is now of the third person; the word him has changed in form to he, showing that it is now the subject of the verb.

In English there are three cases, Nominative, Possessive, and Objective, as The sailor praises the farmer's house. Here the subject (sailor) is in the Nominative case, the object (house) is in the Objective case, and the Possessive case (farmer's) indicates the possessor, or owner, of the house. The Nominative and Objective cases of an English noun are alike in form; the singular Possessive case (farmer's) is formed by adding the ending -'s. This ending, which changes the form to show a change of meaning, is called an inflectional ending.

12. Changes in the Form of Latin Words. — In Latin there are many more changes in the form of words than in English, which has lost many of the inflections it formerly had. Hence we say that Latin is a "more highly inflected" language than English.

In Latin there are six cases, Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative. Thus térra, the land, is the Nominative, the case of the Subject; térram, the land, is the Accusative, the case of the Object. The case endings of the plural are different from those of the singular. Thus térra, the land, is the Nominative singular; térrae, the lands, is the Nominative plural. Many of the relations expressed in English by the use of prepositions are expressed in Latin by case endings. Thus the Genitive singular is térrae, OF-the-land; the Genitive plural is terrārum, OF-the-lands. It is very important, therefore, to observe carefully the case ending, and to be able to associate at once with the form its meaning. In addition, Latin prepositions are used with certain cases.

13. First Declension. — Nouns of the First Declension are mostly feminine and are declined like térra, land, as in the following paradigm.[1] A few are masculine, as agrícola, farmer, and naúta, sailor.

térra, f., land [Base:[2] terr-]		Endings
Singular	Plural	Sing.	Plur.
Nom. térra, land[3] (Subject)	térrae, lands (Subject)	-a	-ae
Gen. térrae, of-land	terrārum, of-lands	-ae	-ārum
Dat. térrae, to (for)-land	térrīs, to (for)-lands	-ae	-īs
Acc. térram, land (Object)	térrās, lands (Object)	-am	-ās
Abl. térrā,[4] from-land	térrīs,[4] from-lands	-ā	-īs

Note.—The Vocative, the case of address (O land, térra), is omitted in the paradigms of this book, since it is usually the same as the Nominative.

Observe: The Nominative is terra, but the Ablative is terrā; the Genitive and Dative singular and the Nominative plural have the same form, terrae; the Dative and Ablative plural are alike, terrīs.

14. Suggestions for Learning a Declension. — We are working for accuracy and speed. 1. Pronounce carefully all the forms of terra, giving after each form its meaning; then repeat the declension several times from memory. 2. Write all the forms (marking long vowels and the accent), and give after each case its meaning. 3. Compare your written work with the book and correct any errors. 4. Repeat the case endings aloud, associating with each its case and the relation expressed, thus: -a, Nom., Subject; -ae, Gen., of-; etc. Then repeat the endings alone as rapidly as possible. 5. Decline agrícola, farmer, and naúta, sailor. See Suggestions for Study, pp. xiv and xv.

15. Exercise. — Give the case (or possible cases) and the meaning (or possible meanings) of: terrae, terrā, nautam,

[1] Paradigm is the term given to the complete inflection of a word.

[2] The base is that part of the noun to which the case endings are added.

[3] Latin has no article; hence térra may mean land, a-land, the-land.

[4] The Ablative also expresses the relations by-, with-, in-, on-.

agricolārum, agricolās, terrīs, terram, nautās, nautae, agricolam, agricolīs.

SECOND SECTION

16. The pronunciation of each new Latin word should be accurately observed. To insure this, long vowels and the accent are marked, thus; pecūnia (money), cónvocō (I-call-together). If new words are mispronounced at first, stubborn errors will have to be corrected. Before studying the vocabulary, read with great care the Suggestions for Study given below it.

VOCABULARY I

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words[1]
Italy	Itália, -ae, f.	Italian, italic[2]
money	pecúnia, -ae, f.	pecuniary
gate	pórta, -ae, f.	portal, portcullis
Sicily	Sicília, -ae, f.	Sicilian
forest	sílva, -ae, f.	silvan, Sylvia
highway, road	vía, -ae, f.	*via*duct, ob*vi*ous
farmhouse	vílla, -ae, f.	villa, village
he-carries[3]; they-carry	pórtat[3]; pórtant[3]	porter, ex*port*
he-praises; they-praise	laúdat; laúdant	*laud*able
he-lives (-in); they-live (-in)	hábitat; hábitant	in*habit*, in*habit*ant
he-walks; they-walk	ámbulat; ámbulant	amble, per*ambul*ate
he-looks (-at); they-look (-at)	spéctat; spéctant	in*spect*, *spect*ator
he-stands; they-stand	stat; stant	*stat*ion, *sta*ble
he-saves; they-save	sérvat; sérvant	pre*serve*
he-is; they-are	est; sunt

[1] Beside each Latin word one or more related English words are given, with the Latin element italicized. It will often be easy to give others. English words, when their relation to Latin is recognized, assume a clear meaning, and we can use them correctly. Some Latin words appear changed, others unchanged in English. See 229 ff.

[2] If any "related English word" is not familiar, consult a dictionary.

[3] Also she-carries, it-carries. -t (he, she, or it) is the personal ending of the third person singular; -nt (they), that of the third person plural.

where?	ūbi (adv.)	to, near	ad (prep. w. Acc.)
not	nōn (adv.)	in, on	in (prep. w. Abl.)
and	et (conj.)	into	in (prep. w. Acc.)
both . . . and	et . . . et

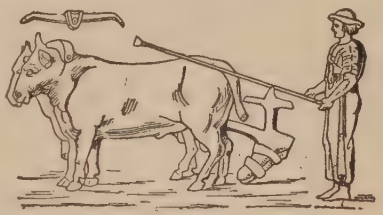
17. Suggestions for Learning a Vocabulary. — 1. Pronounce each Latin word carefully and learn its English meaning (the "Related English Words" will often help you). 2. Cover the column of Latin words and write from memory the Latin equivalent of each English word, indicating the pronunciation. 3. Compare your list of Latin words with the book, and correct any errors. 4. Decline silva, forest, and porta, gate. See Suggestions for Study, p. xiv.

18. Subject, Direct Object, Agreement of Verbs, Possessive Genitive. — In the English sentence, The sailor praises the farmer, the Subject is the sailor and the Object is the farmer. The Subject is in the Nominative case, the Object is in the Objective case. The Nominative and Objective cases of a noun have the same form. In an English sentence the Subject is usually placed first, and the Object is placed after the verb. If we change the order of the words to The farmer praises the sailor, the meaning of the sentence is changed.



Agricola

In Latin, as we have seen, words have many changes in form to express different relations; consequently in a Latin sentence the order of the words may be freely changed. In the sentence, Agricola nautam laudat, The farmer praises the sailor, if we change the order to Nautam agricola laudat, the meaning remains the same,[1] for the endings of the words are signals, -a showing the Subject, -am showing the Object.

[1] There is a different emphasis: It is the sailor that the farmer praises.

In Latin as in English, the Verb agrees with the Subject in person and number. Therefore, if we wish to say in Latin The sailor stands near the gate, we must raise our signals, thus: Naut[a] (Subject); ad port[am] (Acc. with prep. ad); sta[t] (3rd pers. sing.).

In Latin the Genitive, like the Possessive in English, is used to indicate the possessor. The sailor praises the farmer's farmhouse becomes: Naut[a] (Subject); vīll[am] (Object); agricol[ae] (Possessor); lauda[t] (3rd pers. sing.). Similarly, The sailors praise the farmers' farmhouses becomes in Latin: Naut[ae] (Subject); vīll[as] (Object); agricol[ārum] (Possessor); lauda[nt] (3rd pers. pl.).

19. Rules. — 1. The Subject of a verb is in the Nominative case.

2. The Direct Object of a transitive verb is in the Accusative case.

3. A verb agrees with its Subject in person and number.

4. The Genitive is used with a noun to indicate the possessor, and is then called a Possessive Genitive. It is equivalent to the English Possessive case.

20. Exercise. — Express in Latin by raising the signals: 1. The farmer is-walking (or walks) in the road. Agricol ⚐ in vi ⚐ ambula ⚐. 2. The farmers are-standing near the farmhouse. Agricol ⚐ ad vīll ⚐ sta ⚐. 3. The farmhouse of the farmer (or the farmer's farmhouse) is near the forest. Vill ⚐ agricol ⚐ ad silv ⚐ es ⚐. 4. The farmhouses of the farmers (or the farmers' farmhouses) are near the road. Vīll ⚐ agricol ⚐ ad vi ⚐ su ⚐.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISE

21. Suggestions for Translating Latin Sentences. — Pronounce each sentence carefully; then tell the case of each noun and why the case is used; next tell the person, number, and tense of the verb; finally translate the sentence. Close the book, convert your translation back into Latin, and write the Latin sentence, marking the long vowels.

This method of study will enable us in the recitation to translate the sentences at hearing, with the books closed.

22. 1. Nauta ad portam stat. Agricola in viā ambulat. Corbulam (basket) portat. Nauta agricolam spectat.

2. Ad agricolam ambulat. Agricola pecūniam servat. Nauta pecūniam nōn servat.

3. Ubi habitat agricola? Agricola in Italiā habitat. Villa agricolae ad silvam est. Nauta in Italiā nōn habitat.

A Roman Coin of Augustus

4. Ubi sunt nauta et agricola? In viā sunt. Ad villam ambulant.

5. In villā est fīlia (daughter) agricolae. Agricolam exspectat (is-expecting).

6. Ubi stat nauta? Ubi est agricola? Ubi sunt nauta et agricola? Ubi habitant nauta et agricola?

A Gate of Ancient Pompeii. (Pompeii, a city near Naples, was buried by an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D.)

Victōria patientiam corōnat — Victory crowns patience

CHAPTER II

PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF VOCŌ · PRESENT INDICATIVE OF SUM · INDIRECT OBJECT · QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

FIRST SECTION

23. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline terra, porta, silva, agricola. 2. Test yourself on Vocabulary I. 3. Review the Translation Exercise (22) for oral and written work.

A Roman Boy

24. Present Indicative Active. — In English the Present Indicative Active is the verb in its simplest form with the personal pronouns, thus: Singular 1. I call, 2. you call, 3. he calls; Plural 1. we call, 2. you call, 3. they call. The person and number of the subject are expressed by the personal pronouns. The form of the verb is the same, except in the third person singular (calls).

In Latin, however, a verb expresses person and number by means of personal endings, as -t in vocat, he-calls, and -nt in vocant, they-call. Each person of the singular and plural has a different form of the verb. Verbs of the First Conjugation are conjugated as follows:

Singular		"Progressive Present"	"Emphatic Present"	Endings
1st	vócō,	I-call	I-am-calling	I-do-call	-ō
2nd	vócās,	you-call	you-are-calling	you-do-call	-s
3rd	vócat,	he-calls	he-is-calling	he-does-call	-t
	Plural
1st	vocámus,	we-call	we-are-calling	we-do-call	-mus
2nd	vocátis,	you-call	you-are-calling	you-do-call	-tis
3rd	vócant,	they-call	they-are-calling	they-do-call	-nt

Note. — The three forms of the English Present tense are expressed by but one form in Latin.

Observe: 1. The fundamental part of a Latin verb is the verb root; thus in vocat, the verb root is voc. The vowel a (between the verb root and the personal ending) is characteristic of verbs of the First Conjugation. 2. In vocō, I-call, the personal ending is added directly to the verb root, the a being absorbed by the ō. 3. The connecting vowel is ā except before final -t and -nt (as in vocat, vocant). 4. -mŭs and -tĭs should be carefully pronounced as short.

25. Suggestions for Learning a Tense of a Verb. — 1. Pronounce carefully and give the meanings of each form of the Present Indicative Active of vocō. 2. Close the book and repeat the conjugation several times from memory. 3. Write the Latin forms, marking long vowels and the accent. 4. Compare your written work with the book and correct any errors. 5. Conjugate the present tense of laudō, I-praise, and of culpō, I-blame. Practice for accuracy and speed. See pp. xiv-xv.

26. The Present Indicative of sum is conjugated as follows:

Singular			Plural
1st Pers.	sum,	I-am	súmus,	we-are
2nd Pers.	es,	you-are (or thou-art)	éstis,	you-are
3rd Pers.	est,	he (or she or it) -is	sunt,	they-are

Observe: Here the vowels are all short. The personal ending of the first person singular is -m; the other endings are the same as in the Present Indicative Active of vocō.

Suggestions for Study. — See 25.

27. Exercise. — (a) Pronounce, and give the person, number, tense, and meaning of: laudās, laudātis, laudō, laudāmus, laudat, laudant, culpat, culpātis, culpant, culpō, culpāmus, culpās, vocāmus, vocō, vocās, vocat, vocant, vocātis.

(b) Pronounce and translate: 1. Vīllam agricolae spectās; spectāmus. 2. Ubi habitātis? 3. In Americā habitāmus. 4. Agricola nautam in vīllam vocat. 5. Vīlla agricolae est in Italiā. 6. Agricola et nauta in viā sunt. 7. Ubi est vīlla agricolae? 8. Vīlla agricolae est ad silvam. 9. Fīlia agricolae et agricolam et nautam in vīllam vocat. 10. Ubi es? ubi estis? 11. In scholā (school) sumus; sum.

SECOND SECTION

Suggestions for Study. — See 17.

VOCABULARY II

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
story	fābula, -ae, f.	fable, *fabul*ous
girl	puélla, -ae, f.
star	stélla, -ae, f.	Stella,[1] con*stell*ation
I-love	ámō	Amy,[1] *ami*able
I-walk	ámbulō	See 16
I-encourage	cōnfírmō	confirm, *confirm*ation
I-please	dēléctō	*delect*able, *delect*ation
I-give	dō	date, dative, data
I-live(-in), inhabit	hábitō	See 16
I-tell	nārrō	narrate, narrative
I-carry	pórtō	See 16
I-look-at	spéctō	See 16
I-expect, wait, await	exspéctō	*expect*ation
I-stand	stō	See 16
who? what?	quis (interrog. pron.), m. and f.; quid, n.

[1] Some of us have names that have come from Latin.

29. Indirect Object. — In the English sentence, The farmer gives money to the sailor, what the farmer gives (money) is the Direct Object; the person to whom he gives it (the sailor) is the Indirect Object. The Indirect Object is used especially with verbs meaning to give, say, and do. The prepositions to and for used with the Indirect Object are often omitted in English, thus: The farmer gives the sailor money. In this case, we see that the Indirect Object precedes the Direct Object.

In Latin the relation to or for is expressed by the Dative case; hence we say: Agricola nautae pecūniam dat, The farmer gives money to-the-sailor, or The farmer gives the sailor money.

NOTE. — In this Latin sentence we raise four signals: farmer is the Subject, so we raise the signal of the Nominative case, agricol[a]; money is the Object, so we raise the signal of the Accusative, pecūni[am]; the Indirect Object expresses the relation to-the-sailor, so we raise the signal for the Dative, naut[ae]; and lastly we raise a signal to show that the verb gives is third person singular, da[t].

30. Exercise. — Express in Latin by raising the signals: 1. The sailor tells (or is-telling) stories to the farmer, Naut[ ] agricol[ ] fābul[ ] nārra[ ]. 2. The farmer is-not-telling the sailor a story, Agricol[ ] naut[ ] fābul[ ] nōn nārra[ ].

31. Questions and Answers. — Questions in English. A question not introduced by an interrogative word[1] is sometimes indicated merely by the voice, thus: The farmer is in the farmhouse? But usually such a question is indicated both by the voice and the order of words, thus: (1) Is the farmer in the farmhouse? The verb (or its auxiliary) precedes the Subject.

[1] Interrogative words are (1) Pronouns, as who? what? (2) Adjectives, as which? what? and (3) Adverbs, as where? when? how?

If an affirmative answer is expected, the question becomes: (2) Is not the farmer in the farmhouse?

If a negative answer is expected, the question becomes: (3) The farmer is not in the farmhouse, is he?[1]

Questions in Latin. A question not introduced by an interrogative word (such as quis, who? quid, what? ubi, where?) is usually indicated by -ne added to the first word (usually the verb) of the question, thus: (1) Estne agricola in vīllā? Is the farmer in the farmhouse?

If an affirmative answer is expected, the question is usually introduced by nōnne followed by the important word (usually the verb) of the question, thus: (2) Nōnne est agricola in vīllā? Is not the farmer in the farmhouse?

If a negative answer is expected, the question is usually introduced by num followed by the important word (usually the verb) of the question, thus: (3) Num est agricola in vīllā? The farmer is not in the farmhouse, is he?

NOTE. — In a question the important word is usually the verb. If, however, we wish (in 1) to emphasize some other word in the question, that word, with -ne attached, is placed first, thus: Agricolane est in vīllā? Is the farmer in the farmhouse? Similarly: Nōnne agricola est in vīllā? Num agricola est in vīllā?

Answers to Questions. The answer yes is usually expressed in Latin by repeating the verb of the question; the answer no, by repeating the verb with a negative. Often an affirmative answer is expressed by sīc or ita or certē or sānē; a negative answer by nōn or minimē. Thus: QUESTION: Estne fīlia agricolae in vīllā? Is the farmer's daughter in the farmhouse? ANSWERS: AFFIRMATIVE—Est, yes (lit. she is); Sīc or Ita, yes (lit. so); Certē or Sānē,

[1] The simple question, Is the farmer in the farmhouse? may, with the aid of voice and manner, be made to indicate whether yes or no is the expected answer, or whether either is possible.

yes (lit. certainly); NEGATIVE—Nōn est, no (lit. she is not); Nōn (here for nōn est), no; Minimē, no (lit. least).

32. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. Where is the sailor? 2. Is the sailor at the gate? 3. Does the farmer give money to the sailor? 4. Do you not praise the farmer? 5. You do not blame the farmer, do you?

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

33. A. (See 21.) 1. Silva agricolae nautam dēlectat. Nauta et silvam et vīllam laudat. Vīllam spectant. Puella agricolam vocat. In vīllam ambulant agricola et nauta.

A Roman Girl

2. Fīlia agricolae cēnam (dinner) parat (is-preparing). Nauta agricolae fābulam nārrat. Agricola nautam cōnfirmat.

3. Nauta et agricola et fīlia stellās spectant. Quis laudat stellās? Puella stellās laudat. Quid laudat puella? Dēlectantne stellae agricolam? Et agricolās et nautās stellae dēlectant.

4. Quid nautam dēlectat? Dēlectatne pecūnia nautam? Pecūniamne exspectat? Datne agricola pecūniam? Nōnne laudāmus agricolam? Num nautam laudās?

5. Quis silvam laudat? Num nauta terram laudat? Pecūniamne nauta exspectat? Ubi servat agricola pecūniam? Pecūniam in vīllā servat.

B. (See 34.) 1. The farmer is-standing at the gate. They-call the sailor to the gate. They-are-giving money to the sailor. 2. The girl is-praising the stars. Do stars please sailors? 3. Where are the farmer and the sailor? They-are-walking to the gate. The farmer is-telling a story to the sailor. 4. Is the farmer telling a story to the sailor? Does the farmer's story please the sailor? 5. Where does the sailor live? He-does-not-live in Italy, does he? He-lives in Sicily. 6. We-praise the farmer. Do-you-praise the sailor?

34. Suggestions for Translating English Sentences. — (1) Read the sentence aloud, then repeat the sentence, grouping the words: The-farmer|is-standing|at-the-gate. (2) Give the English word groups in the Latin order: The-farmer|at-the-gate|is-standing. (3) Express in Latin the first word group (the-farmer), with the signal for the Nominative singular (since farmer is the Subject), Agricol[a]; then express the second word group (at-the-gate), ad port[am] (since ad governs the Accusative case); finally express the third word group (is-standing), with the signal for the third person singular of the Present tense, sta[t] (since the verb is in the Present tense and must agree with the Subject in person and number). (4) Repeat the Latin sentence several times, with a slight pause after each part of the sentence; then write it, marking long vowels and the accent of each word.

The Parthenon, a Temple at Athens
(From the Restoration in the Metropolitan Museum, New York)

Industria est initium sapientiae — Industry is the beginning of wisdom

CHAPTER III

SECOND DECLENSION · PREDICATE NOUN

FIRST SECTION

35. Preliminary Review (for accuracy and speed). — 1. Decline terra, agricola, and nauta, associating with each form its meaning. 2. Conjugate the Present tense of vocō, laudō, culpō, and sum, associating with each form its meaning. 3. Review Vocabulary II (28). 4. Review the Translation Exercises (33) for oral and written work in class.

36. Second Declension. — Nouns of the Second Declension ending in -us, as hórtus, garden, are mostly masculine. Nouns ending in -um, as témplum, temple, are neuter.

hórtus, m., garden [Base : hort-]		ENDINGS
Singular	Plural	Sing.	Plur.
Nom. hórtus, a-garden	hórtī, gardens	-us	-ī
Gen. hórtī, OF-a-garden	hortōrum, OF-gardens	-ī	-ōrum
Dat. hórtō, TO (FOR)-a-garden	hórtīs, TO (FOR)-gardens	-ō	-īs
Acc. hórtum, a-garden	hórtōs, gardens	-um	-ōs
Abl. hórtō, FROM-a-garden[1]	hórtīs, FROM-gardens[1]	-ō	-īs

NOTE. — The Vocative singular of nouns of the Second Declension in -us ends in -ĕ, as hórtĕ, O garden! amīcĕ, O friend!

[1] See footnotes 3 and 4, page 17.

témplum, n., temple [Base: templ-]			Endings
	Singular	Plural	Sing.	Plur.
Nom.	témplum, a-temple	témpla, temples	-um	-a
Gen.	témplī, OF-a-temple	templōrum, OF-temples	-ī	-ōrum
Dat.	templō, TO (FOR)-a-temple	templīs, TO(FOR)-temples	-ō	-īs
Acc.	témplum, a-temple	témpla, temples	-um	-a
Abl.	templō, FROM-a-temple [1]	templīs, FROM-temples [1]	-ō	-īs

Observe: 1. The Dative and Ablative plural of the First and Second Declensions have the same case ending (-īs).

A Temple at Pompeii

2. The Dative and Ablative singular of the Second Declension have the same case ending (-ō). 3. The Genitive singular and Nominative plural of hortus have the same case ending (-ī). 4. The Nominative and Accusative singular of templum have the same case ending (-um); and the Nominative and Accusative plural have the same case ending (-a).

[1] See footnotes 3 and 4, page 17.

37. Suggestions for Study. — See 14. Decline amīcus, m., friend, and oppidum, n., town.

38. Nouns of the Second Declension Ending in -ius and -ium. — Nouns in -ius, m. (as fīlius, son), and in -ium, n. (as praémium, reward), are regular, except that the Genitive singular frequently shortens, thus: Gen. fīliī becomes fīlī, of-the-son; Gen. praémiī becomes praémī, of-the-reward. Also the Vocative of nouns in -ius is shortened, thus: Voc. fīliĕ becomes fīlī, O son! These two cases, therefore, are irregular and should be noted carefully. In the Genitive and Vocative the accent remains on the same syllable as in the Nominative, thus: aedifícium, n., building, Gen. aedifícī, of-the-building.

39. Exercise. — (a) Write, with meanings, the declension of fīlius, m., and praémium, n., marking long vowels and the accent. Repeat the declension aloud.

(b) Pronounce and give the case (or possible cases) and the meaning (or possible meanings) of: 1. hortī, hortīs, hortō, hortōs, hortōrum, horte. 2. templa, templum, templīs, templō. 3. fīliō, fīliī, fīlī, fīliōs, fīliōrum, fīlium.

SECOND SECTION

VOCABULARY III

40. Suggestions for Study. — Practice for accuracy and speed.

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
inhabitant	íncola, -ae, m. or f.	*col*ony, *col*onial
friend	amícus, -ī, m.	*amic*able, *amic*ably
horse	équus, -ī, m.	*equ*estrian
Manlius	Mānlius, Mānlī, m.
slave	sérvus, -ī, m.	*serv*ant, *serv*ice
building	aedifícium, aedifícī, n.	edifice

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
Marcus	Mārcus, -ī, m.	Mark
son	fīlius, fīlī, m.	*fili*al, af*fili*ate, af*fili*ation
daughter	fīlia,[1] -ae, f.
gift	dōnum, -ī, n.	*don*ation, *don*ate, *don*or
grain	frūméntum, -ī, n.
town	óppidum, -ī, n.
reward	praémium, praémī, n.	premium
labor, suffer	labōrō	*labor*ious, col*labor*ate

41. Predicate Noun. — In the English sentence, Marcus is the son of the farmer, the noun son, in the predicate, denotes the same person as Marcus, the subject. In this sentence the word son is called a Predicate Nominative, because it is in the predicate and agrees in case with the subject. This sentence becomes in Latin, Mārcus est fīlius agricolae.

42. Rule. — In Latin, as in English, a noun in the predicate describing the subject, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with the subject in case, and is called a Predicate Noun.

43. Exercise. — Pronounce and translate (see 21). 1. Agricola est in hortō. Ubi est hortus agricolae? Estne hortus agricolae ad silvam? 2. Agricola amīcōs exspectat. Amīcī agricolae in oppidō sunt. Templa oppidī laudant. Nōnne laudās templum oppidī? 3. Quid est in hortō agricolae? In hortīs agricolārum sunt rosae (roses). Num culpās agricolās? 4. Fīlius agricolae aedificia oppidī laudat. Fīliī agricolārum in hortīs labōrant (work). Fīliōs agricolārum laudāmus. 5. Agricola praemia fīliīs dat. 6. Mārcus amīcus est nautae. Incolae oppidī amīcī sunt agricolārum.

[1] The Dative and Ablative plural are fīliābus to distinguish this word from the corresponding forms of fīlius; cf. Agricola fīliīs et fīliābus dōna dat. The farmer gives gifts to (his) sons and daughters.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

44. A. (See 21.) 1. Agricola in hortō est. Mārcus est fīlius agricolae. Et agricola et fīlius in hortō sunt.

2. Servus agricolae in oppidō est. Frūmentum in oppidum portat.

3. Mānlius est amīcus agricolae. In oppidō habitat. Servō agricolae pecūniam dat.

4. Ubi est templum? Templum in oppidō est. Templum incolās oppidī dēlectat.

5. Agricola est amīcus Mānlī. Agricola amīcum exspectat Amīcus in viā ambulat. Ad portam est.

Equus
(A Roman Horse of Bronze)

6. Amīcus et hortum et equum agricolae laudat Ubi, Mārcĕ, sunt servī? Servī in hortō labōrant.

B. (See 34.) 1. The son of the farmer is working in the garden. What does the farmer give (his) son? He gives (his) son a horse and money. Does the horse please the farmer's son? Yes.

2. Farmers give rewards to (their) sons and daughters.

3. The farmer's friends praise the buildings, garden, and slaves.

4. What are the slaves carrying to town? They are carrying grain.

5. Does the sailor praise the farmer? Does not the sailor live in Sicily? He is not in town to-day (hódiē), is he?

Vītam gubernat Deus — God is the helmsman of life

CHAPTER IV

PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF VOCŌ · PERFECT INDICATIVE OF SUM

FIRST SECTION

45. Preliminary Review. — A SPEED TEST: Before you begin to decline a noun or to conjugate a verb, place the point of your pencil above the second hand of your watch; when you have given all the forms, see how far the second hand has moved. 1. Decline terra, incola, fīlia, hortus, amīcus, servus, templum, oppidum, dōnum, fīlius, praemium, aedificium. With practice one should be able to decline six

A Greek Temple in Sicily, Rome's First Province

to twelve nouns in a minute. 2. Conjugate the Present tense of vocō, servō, dō, sum. 3. Review the Translation Exercises (44) for oral and written work

46. Perfect Indicative Active of Vocō. — A Latin verb changes in form to express a change of tense. The Perfect Indicative Active of vocō, I-call, is vocāvī, I-called, or I-have-called. It is formed thus: voc (verb root) + ā (characteristic vowel of the First Conjugation) + v (tense sign of the Perfect) + ī (personal ending). The Perfect Indicative Active has its own personal endings Verbs of the First Conjugation are conjugated in this tense as follows:

	Singular	"Past Tense"	"Present Perfect"	Personal Endings
1st	vocāvī,	I-called[1]	I-have-called	-ī
2d	vocāvístī,	you-called	you-have-called[2]	-ístī
3d	vocāvit,	he-called	he-has-called	-it
	Plural
1st	vocāvímus,	we-called	we-have-called	-ímus
2d	vocāvístis,	you-called	you-have-called	-ístis
3d	vocāvērunt, or vocāvēre	they-called	they-have-called	-ērunt or -ēre

Observe: The Latin Perfect Indicative is used in two ways: (a) It may express a single past action, thus: vocāvī, I-called (English "Past tense"), or I-did-call (English "Emphatic Past"); (b) It may express the action of the verb as completed at the present time (the time of speaking), thus: vocāvī, I-have-called (English "Present Perfect").

47. Rule. — In Latin the Perfect Indicative, like the English Past tense, may express an action or state as in the past; like the English Present Perfect, it may express an action or state as completed at the present (the time of speaking).

48. Suggestions for Study. — See 25. Conjugate laudāvī, I-praised, or I-have-praised; culpāvī, I-blamed, or I-have-blamed, and dēdī,[3] I-gave, or I-have-given.

[1] Or I-did-call, etc. ("Emphatic Past"). [2] Or thou-hast-called.

[3] Dedī and a few other verbs of the First Conjugation form the Perfect Indicative irregularly.

49. The Perfect Indicative of sum is conjugated as follows:

	Singular	Plural
1st	fúī, I-was, or I-have-been	fúimus, we-were, or we-have-been
2nd	fuístī, you-were, or you-have-been	fuístis, you-were, or you-have-been
3rd	fúit, he (or she or it)-was, or has-been	fuērunt, they-were, or they-have-been or fuēre

Suggestions for Study. — Practice for accuracy and speed; then write each form, marking long vowels and the accent.

50. Exercise. — Pronounce and give the person, number, tense, and meaning of: vocās, vocāvistī; vocātis, vocāvistis; vocāmus, vocāvimus; vocant, vocāvērunt (vocāvēre); vocat, vocāvit; sum, fuī; es, fuistī; sumus, fuimus; estis, fuistis; sunt, fuērunt.

SECOND SECTION

VOCABULARY IV

51. Suggestions for Study. — Practice for accuracy and speed.

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
island	ínsula, -ae, f.	insular, insulate
fatherland	pátria, -ae, f.	patriot, patriotic
Fabius	Fábius, Fábī, m.
wall	mūrus, -ī, m.	mural
ally, comrade	sócius, sócī, m.	social, society
aid, help	auxílium, auxílī, n.	auxiliary
war	béllum, -ī, n.	bellicose, belligerent
sail	nāvigō	navigate, navigable
get ready, prepare (for)	párō	compare, prepare
ask	rógō	interrogative

to-day	hŏdiē (adv.)	and	-que (translated before the word to which it is affixed)
now	nunc (adv.)
at once	státim (adv.)
and also	átque (ac)	always	semper (adv.)

52. Exercise. — Pronounce and translate the following (see 21): 1. Amīcī hortum agricolae laudant; laudāvērunt. Agricola amīcōs exspectat; exspectāvit. 2. Fuitne fīlius agricolae in hortō? Et fīlius et fīlia agricolae in vīllā fuērunt (fuēre). 3. Quid nārrāvit nauta agricolae? Num fābulae nautae agricolam dēlectāvērunt? 4. Ubi, Mārce, sunt servī agricolae? Servī frūmentum in oppidum portant; Mārcus fīlius agricolae fuit. 5. Incolae oppidī auxilium statim parāvērunt.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

53. A. (See 21.) 1. Fabius agricola et Mārcus fīlius in hortō labōrant. Fīlia in vīllā est.

2. Nauta hodiē in oppidum ambulāvit. Ad Siciliam nāvigāvit. Sicilia est īnsula. Nauta pecūniam servāvit.

3. Mūrus et aedificia oppidī nautam dēlectāvērunt. Templum amāvit. Incolae et portās et mūrum oppidī laudāvērunt.

A Coin of Ancient Syracuse, in Sicily

4. Bellum nunc et exspectant et parant. Patriam amant. Agricolās in oppidum vocāvērunt.

5. Agricolae sociī sunt. Semper fuērunt. Auxilium dēdērunt. Incolae oppidī agricolās laudant.

B. (See 34.) 1. Manlius has always been a friend of the farmer. He lives in town. We asked the farmer.

2. The sailor sailed to-day to (his) native land. Sicily is the sailor's native land. Where is Sicily? Is Sicily an island? I asked the sailor.

3. Where are the farmer's slaves? They now are working in the garden.

The Eternal City: Rome and the Tiber

St. Peter's

Tomb of the Emperor Hadrian

4. To-day they carried grain to (i. e. into) town. Are the inhabitants strengthening the wall of the town?

5. Do the sailors save money?

6. Manlius is the farmer's friend, and is telling stories about (dē w. Abl.) sailors.

The Tiber

(Optional Reading)[1]

54. The Tiber is rather more than 200 miles long and at Rome, 22 miles from its mouth, is about 300 feet wide and from 12 to 18 feet in depth. The poets call it "the yellow Tiber" because the swift river carries so much sediment. More than 130 floods of the Tiber are recorded and these have cost thousands of lives in and near Rome. In the flood of 1598 A.D. the water was more than 20 feet deep in the heart of the city at the Pantheon. (Cf. p. 292.) Rome is now protected from such danger by a great embankment which cost many millions of dollars.

The Falls at Tivoli

(On a tributary of the Tiber and in the country of the Roman poet Horace)

[1] Optional Readings. — In order to gain the most from our study of the Latin language we need to know as much as possible about the ancient Romans, — their city, their homes, their dress, their architecture and art, their religion, and the lives and character of their great men. Brief readings upon these topics have, therefore, been placed at intervals throughout the book. In connection with these readings look for the pictures which illustrate them, and refer to the map of Rome, p. 100.

CHAPTER V (REVIEW)

WORD LIST

55. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Pronounce each noun carefully, and give the Genitive, gender, and meaning. If a noun is starred, decline it rapidly, associating with each form its meaning. 2. Pronounce each verb carefully and give the meaning. Conjugate starred verbs in the Present and Perfect tenses of the Indicative Active. 3. Pronounce the remaining words of the list, giving with each its meaning.

56.

NOUNS	NOUNS	NOUNS	VERBS	ADVERBS
*agricola	vīlla	dōnum	dēlectō	certē
fābula	———	frūmentum	*dō	hŏdiē
fīlia	*amīcus	*oppidum	exspectō	nōn
incola	equus	*praemium	habitō	nunc
īnsula	Fabius	*templum	labōrō	semper
Italia	fīlius		laudō	statim
nauta	*hortus		nārrō	ubi
patria	Mānlius	PRONOUNS	nāvigō
pecūnia	Mārcus	quid	parō
porta	mūrus	quis	portō	PREPOSITIONS AND CONJUNCTIONS
puella	servus		rogō
Sicilia	socius		servō
silva	———	VERBS	spectō	ad
stella	*aedificium	ambulō	stō	et
*terra	auxilium	*amō	*sum	et . . . et via	bellum	cōnfirmō	*vocō	in

SENTENCES ILLUSTRATING SYNTAX IN CHAPTERS I–IV

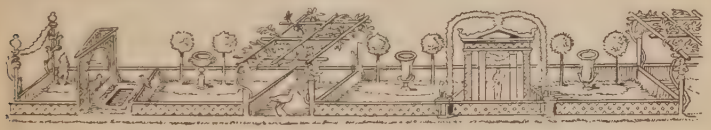
57. (See 21). 1. Mānlius in oppidō habitat. 2. Mārcus equum amat. 3. Fabius equum fīliō dat. 4. Templum incolās oppidī dēlectat. 5. Mānlius est amīcus agricolae. 6. Amīcī Fabī in oppidō sunt. 7. Fīlius agricolae ad vīllam ambulat. In oppidum ambulāvit. 8. Et fīlium et fīliam laudant. 9. Ubi est Mārcus? Estne in hortō? Nōnne est in vīllā? 10. Num nauta pecūniam servāvit?

CHAPTER VI

ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS · PRINCIPAL PARTS OF THE VERB · AGREEMENT OF ADJECTIVES

FIRST SECTION

58. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline terra, puella, stella, hortus, equus, templum, bellum, fīlius, auxilium. 2. Conjugate the Present and Perfect tenses of vocō, labōrō, nāvigō. 3. Give yourself a speed test on these nouns and verbs.



Hortus

59. Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions. — In English, an adjective does not change in form except in its comparison.[1] Thus the adjective good remains unchanged in the phrases a good farmer (m.), a good girl (f.), and the good gifts (n.). Here the adjective describes nouns of different gender and number, yet the form of the adjective is unchanged. An attributive adjective is attached directly to a noun, as the good farmer. A predicate adjective is placed in the predicate to describe the subject, as The farmer is good.

In Latin, adjectives, like nouns, change in form, and usually distinguish three genders. When the adjective is used with a noun, the adjective must show, by its case ending, the same gender, number, and case as the noun. Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions have in the masculine gender the case endings of hortus, m.; in the feminine the case endings of terra, f.; in the neuter the case endings of templum, n. Each case, therefore, has three genders and three forms, thus: Nominative singular, — bónus, m., good; bóna, f., good; bónum, n., good.

[1] e.g., high, higher, highest; good, better, best.

In Latin we say (in the Nominative singular): agricola (m.) bonus (m.), the good farmer; puella (f.) bona (f.), the good girl; dōnum (n.) bonum (n.), the good gift. An attributive adjective is usually placed after the noun. A predicate adjective, as in Agricola est bonus, The farmer is good, is often separated from its noun.

60. Rule. — An attributive adjective agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case. A predicate adjective agrees with the word to which it refers in gender, number, and case.

61. Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions are declined like bonus:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	bónus	bóna	bónum	bónī	bónae	bóna
Gen.	bónī	bónae	bónī	bonṓrum	bonā́rum	bonṓrum
Dat.	bónō	bónae	bónō	bónīs	bónīs	bónīs
Acc.	bónum	bónam	bónum	bónōs	bónās	bóna
Abl.	bónō	bónā	bónō	bónīs	bónīs	bónīs

Note. — The Vocative singular of the masculine is bonĕ, as amīcĕ bonĕ, O good friend!; elsewhere the Vocative is the same as the Nominative.

62. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Give first all forms of the Nominative singular, thus: bónus (m.), bóna (f.), bónum (n.); then all forms of the Genitive singular, thus: bónī (m.), bónae (f.), bónī (n.); then all forms of the Dative, all forms of the Accusative, and all of the Ablative singular. Decline the plural in the same way, giving all forms of each case before proceeding to the next. 2. With the book closed, write the declension. 3. Repeat rapidly several times the endings alone, thus: Nom. -us, -a, -um; Gen. -ī, -ae, -ī; Dat. -ō, -ae, -ō, etc.

4. Like bonus, -a, -um decline aloud nóvus, -a, -um (new), cértus, -a, -um (certain), and mágnus, -a, -um (great). Practice for accuracy and speed.

63. Exercise. — (a) Decline, with increasing speed, each of the following nouns side by side with the proper form of its adjective: 1. agricola bonus; 2. vīlla nova; 3. templum magnum; 4. fīlius bonus; 5. praemium certum.

(b) Pronounce and translate: 1. In vīllā parvā agricolae; in hortō agricolae bonī; hodiē et agricola bonus et fīlius bonus agricolae labōrant; fīliī agricolārum bonōrum bonī sunt.

2. Mārcus servīs bonīs praemia dat; dedit; praemia bona servōs bonōs dēlectant; dēlectāvērunt. Fīlia agricolae bona rosās laudat.

3. Fābula nautae agricolam bonum dēlectāvit. Estne Sicilia īnsula magna?

4. Mūrus oppidī parvī est magnus; aedificia oppidōrum parvōrum sunt parva.

5. Fuitne nauta in oppidō parvō? Nauta aedificia parva oppidī laudāvit.

SECOND SECTION

64. VOCABULARY VI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
high, deep	áltus, -a, -um	ex*alt*, *alt*itude, alto
fixed, certain	cértus, -a, -um	as*certain*, *cert*ify
strong	fírmus, -a, -um	firm, in*firm*, af*firm*
wide	lātus, -a, -um	*lat*itude
long	lóngus, -a, -um	e*long*ate, *long*itude
large	mágnus, -a, -um	*magn*ify, *magn*itude
bad	málus, -a, -um	*mal*efactor, *mal*ediction
much, many	múltus, -a, -um	*mult*iply, *mult*itude
new	nóvus, -a, -um	*nov*el, *nov*elty, r*enov*ate
small	párvus, -a, -um
few	paúcī, -ae, -a	*pauc*ity
full	plēnus, -a, -um	*plen*ty, *plen*tiful
public, official	pūblicus, -a, -um	*publ*ish, *publ*icity
slow, late	tárdus, -a, -um	re*tard*, *tard*y, *tard*iness

65. The Principal Parts of a Verb. — The Principal Parts[1] of an English verb are the Present Indicative, Past Indicative, and Past Participle, thus:

Present Indicative	Past Indicative	Past Participle
I call	I call*ed*	call*ed*
I give	I g*a*ve	giv*en*

There are two types (or conjugations) of verbs, weak verbs and strong verbs. Weak verbs form the Past tense and the Past participle by adding ed (or d, or t), thus: call*ed*, burn*ed* (or burn*t*), dar*ed*. Strong verbs form the Past tense by changing the vowel of the Present, without the addition of an ending, thus: g*a*ve. The Past participle of strong verbs often has the old ending -en (or -n), thus: giv*en*. Weak verbs are called regular, and strong verbs irregular.

The Principal Parts of a Latin verb are the Present Indicative, Present Infinitive, Perfect Indicative, and Perfect Passive Participle, thus:

Pres. Ind.	Pres. Inf.	Perf. Ind.	Perf. Pass. Part.
vócō	vocā́re	vocā́vī	vocā́tus, -a, -um
I-call	to-call	I-called	called

In Latin there are four regular conjugations. Verbs of the First Conjugation have the Present Infinitive in -ā́re; hence ā is the characteristic vowel of the First Conjugation, thus: vocā́re, to call, laudā́re, to praise. The Perfect Indicative is formed thus: voc (verb root) + ā (characteristic vowel) + v (sign of the Perfect tense) + ī (personal ending) = vocā́vī. The Perfect Passive Participle is formed

[1] Certain forms of a verb are called the Principal Parts, because they furnish the key to the inflection of the verb.

thus: voc (verb root) + ā (characteristic vowel) + -tus = vocātus, -a, -um, called, or having-been-called.[1]

66. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Repeat several times from memory the Principal Parts of amō, portō, rogō; write them, marking long vowels and the accent. 2. Conjugate the Present Indicative Active and the Perfect Indicative Active of each of these verbs several times with increasing speed. 3. Take a sheet of paper and place in a column at the left margin the other Latin verbs we have studied (ambulō, cōnfirmō, dēlectō, exspectō, habitō, labōrō, laudō, nārrō, nāvigō, parō, servō, spectō). After each verb write (with meaning) its Principal Parts, marking long vowels and the accent.

67. Exercise. — 1. Mūrus novus oppidī parvī est altus et lātus. 2. Mūrī altī et lātī oppidōrum parvōrum firmī fuērunt. 3 Multa oppida magna in Italiā sunt. 4. Incolae oppidī nova aedificia pūblica laudāvērunt. 5. Sociī multī incolīs auxilium dedērunt. 6. Incolae sociīs dōna certa dant. 7. Agricolae bonī fīliīs bonīs fābulās multās et longās nārrant. 8. Servī malī agricolae bonī nōn labōrāvērunt. 9. Equus magnus agricolae tardus est. 10. Equōs tardōs nōn laudāmus, culpāmus.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

68. A. (See 21.) 1. Vīlla nova agricolam dēlectat. Vīlla agricolae nōn est magna, est parva. Equus novus ad portam est.

2. Mūrus oppidī est altus et firmus. Aedificia oppidī sunt magna. Templum est aedificium pūblicum et magnum. Templa multa in oppidō magnō sunt.

3. Agricola bonus nautae pecūniam dedit. Nauta agricolae fābulam longam nārrāvit. Mānlius, amīcus agricolae, nautam nōn laudāvit.

---

[1] But dō, I-give, and stō, I-stand are irregular:

dō	dăre	dĕdī	dătus (-a, -um)
stō	stāre	stĕtī	stătūrus (-a, -um)

stō, I-stand, is intransitive, hence it has no Perfect Passive Participle; the Future Active Participle is stătūrus (-a, -um), about-to-stand.

4. Estne equus novus agricolae tardus? Est tardus et certus (sure). Paucī agricolae equōs tardōs laudant.

5. Agricola fīlium bonum laudat. Servī frūmentum in oppidum portāvērunt.

B. (See 34.) 1. We praise (are-praising, do-praise) the good son and the good daughter of the good farmer.

A Roman of the Time of Cicero

2. Does the farmer's friend live in the large town? Yes.

3. Isn't the way long and wide? Where do you live?

4. Where are the farmer's slaves? They are working in the large forest.

5. Did the farmer's friend praise the sailor? Did the farmer give much money to the sailor?

6. He sailed to Sicily. Is not Sicily a large island?

LATIN SELECTION

69. Fābula

Bad friends are like bad apples.

Carolus,[1] fīlius agricolae bonī, bonus fuit, sed amīcōs amāvit malōs. Agricola fīliō corbulam (basket) pōmōrum[2] plēnam dedit. In corbulā fuērunt pōma bona, pauca tamen putrida.[3] Carolus dōnum cum (with) cūrā servāvit, sed bona pōma mala maculāvērunt,[4] et mox (soon) bona pōma mala fuērunt. Carolus maestus (sad) fuit. Tum agricola fīliō, "Pōma mala," inquit (said), "maculant bona; malī amīcī fīlium bonum maculant."

---

[1] Carolus, Carl, Charles.

[2] pōmum, -ī, n., apple.

[3] putridus, -a, -um, decayed, rotten (cf. "putrid").

[4] maculō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, stain, spoil (cf. "im*maculate*").

Labōrāre est ōrāre[1] – To labor is to pray

CHAPTER VII

FIRST CONJUGATION: IMPERFECT AND FUTURE INDICATIVE (ACTIVE) OF VOCŌ · IMPERFECT AND FUTURE INDICATIVE OF SUM · AGREEMENT OF NOUNS (APPOSITIVES) · ABLATIVE OF MEANS

FIRST SECTION

70. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline, testing your speed: terra, incola, hortus, amīcus, oppidum, bellum, socius, auxilium. 2. (a) Decline bonus, m., bona, f., bonum, n. (b) Give the endings alone. 3. Conjugate, testing your speed, the Present and Perfect tenses of vocō, sum, parō, labōrō, nāvigō. (Are you able to do 1, 2, and 3 in five minutes?) 4. Review the Translation Exercises (68) for oral and written work.

71. Imperfect Indicative Active. — Like the English "Past Progressive," the Latin Imperfect tense, vocābam, I-was-calling, expresses the action of the verb as going on at a past time.[2] This tense of vocō is formed thus: voc (verb root) + ā (characteristic vowel of the First Conjugation) + ba (tense sign of the Imperfect Indicative) + m (personal ending). In the same way, this tense of laudō, I-praise, is (laud + ā + ba + m) laudābam, I-was-praising, laudābās, you-were-praising, etc.

NOTE. — The English "Past tense" of the Indicative, I-called, and the "Emphatic Past," I-did-call, express the action of the verb merely as done in the past; and are generally translated by the Latin Perfect Indicative (46).

[1] Motto of the Benedictines.

[2] If we think of an action as going on in the past, we may think of it as in progress at a particular past time, or as repeatedly taking place. Thus the Latin Imperfect Indicative is also used to express a repeated, or customary, past action, as vocābam, I-kept-calling, I-used-to-call.

72. Future Indicative Active. — The Latin Future tense, vocābō, I-shall-call, vocābis, you-will-call, etc., expresses the action of the verb as in the future.[1] In vocābis, you-will-call, we see voc (verb root) + ā (characteristic vowel of the First Conjugation) + bi (tense sign of the Future Indicative) + s (personal ending of the second person). In vocābō the tense sign bi loses the i, which is absorbed by the personal ending ō. In the same way, this tense of laudō, I-praise, is (laud + ā + b(i) + ō) laudābō, I-shall-praise, laudābis, you-will-praise, etc.

73. The Imperfect and the Future Indicative Active of the First Conjugation are conjugated as follows:

Imperfect Indicative Active		Future Indicative Active
Singular		Singular
1. vocābam,	I-was-calling, or I-called	1. vocābō,	I-shall-call
2. vocābās,	you-were-calling, or you-called	2. vocābis,	you-will-call
3. vocābat,	he-was-calling, or he-called	3. vocābit,	he-will-call
Plural		Plural
1. vocābāmus,	we-were-calling, or we-called	1. vocābimus,	we-shall-call
2. vocābātis,	you-were-calling, or you-called	2. vocābitis,	you-will-call
3. vocābant,	they-were-calling, or they-called	3. vocābunt,	they-will-call

Observe. — In the Future Indicative Active, third person plural, the tense sign is bu.

74. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate carefully several times the Imperfect tense, associating with each form its meaning. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write the Imperfect tense, marking long vowels and the accent. 3. Repeat the forms from memory many times. 4. Do the same (as in 1, 2, and 3) with the Future tense. 5. Conjugate, with increasing speed, amābam, then amābō; laudābam, then laudābō; culpābam, then culpābō.

[1] Or as in progress at some future time, as I-shall-be-calling, you-will-be-calling, etc.

75. The Imperfect and Future tenses of sum are conjugated as follows:

Imperfect Indicative		Future Indicative
Singular		Singular
1. éram,	I-was	1. érō,	I-shall-be
2. érās,	you-were, or thou-wast	2. éris,	you-will-be[1]
3. érat,	he-was	3. érit,	he-will-be
Plural		Plural
1. erāmus,	we-were	1. érimus,	we-shall-be
2. erātis,	you-were	2. éritis,	you-will-be
3. érant,	they-were	3. érunt,	they-will-be

Suggestions for Study. — Practice for accuracy and speed; then write each form, marking long vowels and the accent.

76. Exercise. — Pronounce and give the person, number, tense, and meaning of the following verbs: 1. laudābāmus, laudāvimus, laudās, laudābātis, laudābimus, laudāvērunt, culpābitis, culpābātis, culpābunt, culpāvistis. 2. eram, erāmus, erant, erunt, erit, fuērunt, fuimus, fuisti. 3. nāvigās, nāvigāvisti, nāvigābis, nāvigābās, nāvigābit, nāvigābant, nāvigāvērunt, nāvigābunt, nāvigātis, nāvigābitis. 4. portābam, portāvī, portābō, portāvit, portāvistis, portābit, portābunt, portāvisti, portāvimus, portātis.

Spinning

[1] Or thou-wilt-be.

SECOND SECTION

77. VOCABULARY VII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
woman	fēmina, -ae, f.	*femin*ine
Gaul, France	Gállia, -ae, f.	*Gall*ic, Gaul
master, Lord	dóminus, -ī, m.; Dóminus	*domin*eer
Rhine	Rhēnus, -ī, m.	Rhine
trial, danger	perículum, -ī, n.	peril, *peril*ous
missile, weapon	tēlum, -ī, n.
be near, be present	ádsum, adésse, ádfuī, adfutūrus [1]
beg, implore	implōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	implore
set free	līberō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	liberate, *liber*ty
seize, occupy	óccupō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*occupa*tion
fight	púgnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*pugna*cious
capture by assault	expúgnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus
attack	oppúgnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus
kind	benígnus, -a, -um	benign, *benign*ity
loyal, faithful	fīdus, -a, -um	*fid*elity, con*fid*e
disloyal, unfaithful	īnfīdus, -a, -um	*infid*elity
hostile	inimīcus, -a, -um	*inimic*al
Roman	Rōmānus, -a, -um	Roman
often	saepe (adv.)
out from	ē (or ex) (prep. w. Abl.)	*ex*it, *ex*pose

78. An Appositive. — In the English sentence, (1) Marcus, the son of the farmer, is in the garden, the noun son is placed near Marcus to describe him; and is called an Appositive (from Latin ad, near + pōnō, I-place). The two nouns refer to the same person, and are in the same case.

The sentence becomes in Latin: (1) Mārcus, fīlius agricolae, in hortō est. Similarly, (2) We praise Marcus,

[1] Future Participle, about-to-be-present.

the son of the farmer becomes in Latin: (2) Mārcum, fīlium agricolae, laudāmus. In (1) the Appositive is Nominative fīlius to agree with the Subject Mārcus; in (2) it is Accusative fīlium to agree with the Object Mārcum.

79. Rule. — In Latin, as in English, a noun used to describe another noun, in the same part of the sentence, and denoting the same person (or thing), agrees with that noun in case, and is called an Appositive.

80. The Means or Instrument. — In the English sentence, (1) The sailor pleases the farmer with a story, the phrase with-a-story expresses the Means. Instead of with-a-story we may say by-means-of-a-story. In English the means or instrument is expressed by a prepositional phrase, with . . . or by means of . . . Less frequently the preposition by is used, as in The town was destroyed by-fire.

Shield

The sentence (1) becomes in Latin: Nauta agricolam fābulā dēlectat. Here the Means is expressed by the Ablative fābulā, with-a-story, by-means-of-a-story.

Similarly, (2) The Romans were fighting with-swords becomes in Latin: Rōmānī gladiīs pugnābant. Here the Means or Instrument is expressed by gladiīs, with-swords, by-means-of-swords.

81. Rule. — Means or Instrument is expressed in Latin by the Ablative without a preposition.

82. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. By-means-of-money the farmer encouraged the sailor. 2. He carried the grain to town with-a-horse. 3. The farmers with-the-help of (their) sons are carrying the grain to the town. 4. The sailor will please the kind farmer with-stories. 5. The disloyal inhabitants will attack the loyal with-weapons.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

83. A. (See 21.) 1. Rōmānī benignī servōs saepe līberābant. Mānlius, amīcus Fabī agricolae, dominus benignus erat. Servīs fīdīs praemia saepe dābat.

2. Mānlius in Galliā ad Rhēnum in oppidō magnō habitābat. Oppidum ad silvam magnam erat. Oppidum tēlīs oppugnābant. Perīculum magnum erat.

Mooring Ring of a Roman Ship

3. Fēminae in templō erant et auxilium implōrābant.

4. Proelia multa erunt. Ē silvīs incolae inimīcī aderunt et oppidum oppugnābunt. Occupābuntne oppidum?

5. Incolae oppidum amant et servābunt. Oppidum est patria incolārum.

B. (See 34.) 1. We shall call the servants. They will praise the master's farmhouse.

2. Will the farmer's slaves carry grain into the town to-day?

3. Fabius, a friend of Manlius, was present. Many farmers were present and were praising the temple.

4. The Germans (Germānī) were occupying many towns of Gaul.

5. The allies at once gave aid to the inhabitants of Gaul.

The Tiber and the Fabrician Bridge

The Bridges of Rome

(Optional)

84. The first bridge built across the Tiber was the Sublician Bridge, constructed entirely of wood. In time ancient Rome had nine others. Among these was the Fabrician Bridge, which united the city with the island in the Tiber; it was built in 62 B.C. and is the oldest stone bridge in the world that is still in use. The Mulvian Bridge, three miles above the city, was the scene of the arrest by Cicero's order of the ambassadors of the Allobroges carrying documents which proved the guilt of Catiline and his fellow conspirators (cf. 516); here too occurred the flight and death of Maxentius, from whom Constantine, after his famous vision of the cross, won the great battle which made him Emperor (cf. page 110).

Down stream half a mile below the last of the bridges was the harbor of Rome, at whose quays were moored the ships which brought Rome's vast foreign commerce (cf. Revelation xviii. 11–19). See map, p. 100.

Vēra amīcitia est inter bonōs — True friendship is between the good

CHAPTER VIII

FIRST CONJUGATION: PLUPERFECT AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF VOCŌ · PLUPERFECT AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE OF SUM

FIRST SECTION

85. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline terra, puella, hortus, equus, templum, perīculum, socius, auxilium, bonus (-a, -um), agricola bonus, amīcus bonus, oppidum parvum. 2. Conjugate the Present, Imperfect, Future, and Perfect tenses of vocō, laudō, culpō, sum, adsum. 3. Review the Translation Exercises (83) for oral and written work. Prepare for a speed test.

86. Pluperfect (Past Perfect) Indicative Active. — Like the English "Past Perfect," the Latin Pluperfect vocáveram, I-had-called, vocáverās, you-had-called, etc., expresses the action of the verb as completed prior to some past time. It is formed on the Perfect stem vocāv- by adding -eram, -erās, etc. In the same way, this tense of laudō, I-praise, is (laudāv + eram) laudáveram, I-had-praised, laudáverās, you-had-praised, etc.

87. Future Perfect Indicative Active. — The Future Perfect Indicative Active vocáverō, I-shall-have-called, vocáveris, you-will-have-called, etc., expresses the action of the verb as completed at some future time. It is formed on the Perfect stem vocāv- by adding -erō, -eris, etc. In the same way, this tense of laudō, I-praise, is (laudāv + erō) laudáverō, I-shall-have-praised, laudáveris, you-will-have-praised, etc.

88. The Pluperfect (Past Perfect) and Future Perfect Indicative Active of the First Conjugation are as follows:

Pluperfect Indicative Active	Future Perfect Indicative Active
Singular	Singular
1. vocāveram, I-had-called	1. vocāverō, I-shall-have-called
2. vocāverās, you-had-called	2. vocāveris, you-will-have-called
3. vocāverat, he-had-called	3. vocāverit, he-will-have-called
Plural	Plural
1. vocāverāmus, we-had-called	1. vocāvérimus, we-shall-have-called
2. vocāverātis, you-had-called	2. vocāvéritis, you-will-have-called
3. vocāverant, they-had-called	3. vocāverint, they-will-have-called

89. The Pluperfect and Future Perfect Indicative of sum are as follows:

Pluperfect Indicative	Future Perfect Indicative
Singular	Singular
1. fúeram, I-had-been	1. fúerō, I-shall-have-been
2. fúerās, you-had-been	2. fúeris, you-will-have-been
3. fúerat, he-had-been	3. fúerit, he-will-have-been
Plural	Plural
1. fuerāmus, we-had-been	1. fuérimus, we-shall-have-been
2. fuerātis, you-had-been	2. fuéritis, you-will-have-been
3. fúerant, they-had-been	3. fúerint, they-will-have-been

90. Suggestions for Study. — See 74. 1. Conjugate the Pluperfect and Future Perfect tenses of amō, laudō, culpō, pugnō, and adsum. 2. Write, in a column, the first person singular of each tense of vocō and sum. Such a view of all the tenses for the same person is called a synopsis (from the Greek, a-view-together).

SECOND SECTION

91. Exercise. — (a) Pronounce and give the person, number, tense, and meaning of the following verbs: 1. vocāverant, vocāverint, fuerāmus, fuerimus, dederātis, laudāveram, culpāverō, culpāvistī, dedit. 2. pugnābant, pugnāvērunt, pugnāverant, pugnāverint, oppugnābunt, expugnāvimus, līberāvistis, adfuērunt, adfuerō, occupāverās.

Aquila
(A Military Standard)

(b) Pronounce and translate each sentence; give the person, number, and tense of each verb, and conjugate the tense:

1. Agricolae multī frūmentum in oppidum portant, portābant, portābunt, portāvērunt, portāverant, portāverint.

2. In hortō parvō agricolae benignī rosae multae sunt, erant, erunt, fuērunt, fuerant, fuerint.

3. Puella parva, fīlia agricolae fīdī, fēminae rosam magnam dat, dābat, dābit, dedit, dederat, dederit.

4. Oppidum parvum tēlīs oppugnābunt. Numerus incolārum est magnus. Expugnābuntne oppidum? Adsuntne in oppidō multī?

5. Populus (people) Rōmānus templa multa aedificāvit et multōs deōs (gods) implōrāvit.

92. VOCABULARY VIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
eagle	áquila, -ae, f.	*aquil*ine
rose	rósa, -ae, f.	*ros*y, *ros*ary
statue	státua, -ae, f.	*statu*ary, *statu*esque
number	númerus, -ī, m.	*numer*ous
foreign, barbarous	bárbarus, -a, -um	*barbar*ity barbarian (as noun)	bárbarus, -ī, m.	*barbar*ian
build	aedíficō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	edify, *edific*ation
place, put, set	lócō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	locate, dis*locate*
wound	vúlnerō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*vulner*able either	aut either . . . or	aut . . . aut
and not, nor	nec (neque)
neither . . . nor	nec (neque)...nec (neque)

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

93. Suggestions for Study. — Be prepared for oral and written work.

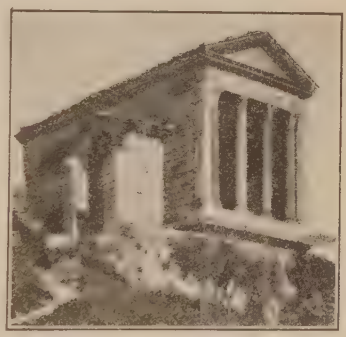
A. (See 21.) 1. Multae rosae in hortō agricolae sunt. Hortus ad vīllam est. Puella est fīlia Fabī agricolae.

2. Fīlia parva fēminae rosās dābit. Fēmina rosās laudāverat; laudāverit. Fēmina et rosās et puellam laudāvit.

3. Fēminam rosae dēlectābunt; delectāverint. Nōnne amātis rosās? Suntne rosae in hortō?

4. Incolae templum aedificābunt; aedificāverint; aedificāverant. In templō statua erit; fuerit.

5. Mānlius, amīcus Fabī agricolae, pecūniam magnam[1] dederat.



A Temple at the Source of the Clitumnus, a Tributary of the Tiber

B. (See 34.) 1. They have placed a statue in the temple; they will have placed; they were placing; they placed; we shall place; you (pl.) will place.

2. They will fight with weapons; they were fighting; they had fought. The barbarians will attack the town; they will have attacked; they had attacked.

3. The barbarian had wounded Manlius with a weapon.

4. Where is Italy? Is Italy a large country (terra)? Are there many towns in Italy? The number of towns is large.

5. The Romans built many wide roads in Italy; had built; were building. The eagle was the standard (signum) of the Romans.

---

[1] pecūnia magna: a large (amount of) money.

Vir bonus patriam amat — A good man loves his country

CHAPTER IX

SECOND DECLENSION : NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES ENDING IN -R · INDICATIVE OF POSSUM · COMPLEMENTARY INFINITIVE

FIRST SECTION

94. Preliminary Review. — 1. Conjugate (testing your speed) the Present, Imperfect, Future, Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect tenses of vocō, laudō, culpō, sum, adsum. (Can you give these in three minutes?) 2. Review the Translation Exercises (93).

A Roman Youth
(As a victorious charioteer)

95. Nouns Ending in -r. — The Second Declension includes a number of nouns ending in -r, the case ending -us of the Nominative singular being lost, thus: áger-, m., field, púer-, m., boy, vir-, m., man. The Vocative singular has the same form as the Nominative; the other cases have the case endings of masculine nouns. Most nouns ending in -er in the Nominative and Vocative singular "lose the e" elsewhere, thus: Nom. áger-, Gen. ágrī, Dat. ágrō, etc.; a few nouns in -er "keep the e," thus: Nom. púer-, Gen. púerī, Dat. púerō, etc. It is necessary, therefore, to bear in mind the Genitive singular of each noun in -er in order to know the base. These nouns are declined on page 317.

Suggestions for Study. — Although these nouns offer but little difficulty, we should, for accuracy and speed, decline each noun several times.

96. Adjectives in -er. — Certain adjectives of the First and Second Declensions have no case ending in the Nominative singular masculine, thus : līber-, m., lībera, f., līberum, n., free, Gen. līberī, līberae, līberī; and aéger-, m., aégra, f., aégrum, n., sick, Gen. aégrī, aégrae, aégrī. Some adjectives in -er, "keep the e," others "lose the e." It is necessary, therefore, to bear in mind the Nominative singular feminine of each adjective in -er, in order to know the base. The Vocative of the masculine has the same form as the Nominative, thus : O free man! Vir līber ! O free men! Virī līberī ! O sick boy! Puer aeger ! O sick boys! Puerī aegrī ! These adjectives are declined on page 319.

97. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice the declension of līber and aeger. 2. Like līber decline míser, m., mísera, f., míserum, n., wretched ; like aeger decline púlcher, m., púlchra, f., púlchrum, n., beautiful. 3. Decline together vir līber, the free man, puer aeger, the sick boy, and ager lātus, the wide field.

98. The Indicative of Possum. — We have already learned the Indicative of sum, I-am ; now we come to póssum, I-am-able, or I-can. In conjugating the Present, Imperfect, and Future of póssum, bear in mind the forms of sum, as already learned; and remember that we have pos- before s, but elsewhere pot-, thus : pótĕs, you-are-able (or thou-art-able), you-can (or thou-canst), póssumus, we-are-able, or we-can. The stem of the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect is potu- (instead of potfu-). Learn the Indicative of possum (p. 336)

99. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate carefully each tense, associating with each form its meaning. 2. Repeat, with meanings, the first person singular of each tense in order. 3. With the book closed, write, with meanings, the synopsis.[1]

100. Exercise. — Pronounce and give the person, number, tense, and meaning: 1. potes, possumus, potestis, potuistis, poterās, potuerās, potueritis, potuerātis. 2. potest, potuit, poterat, poterit, potuerit, potuerat. 3. poterō, potuerō, poteram, potueram, potuī. 4. potuistī, poteris, potueris, poterimus, potuerimus, poterāmus, potuerāmus. 5. poterant, potuerint, poterunt, possunt, potuērunt (-ēre), potuerant.

SECOND SECTION

101. VOCABULARY IX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
friendship	amīcítia,[2] -ae, f.	See amīcus, 40.
book	líber, líbrī, m.	*libr*ary, *libr*arian
business, trouble	negōtium, negōti, n.	*negoti*ation
duty, service	offícium, offícī, n.	*offic*e, *offici*al
plow (verb)	arō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*ar*able
plow (noun)	arātrum, -ī, n.
be away, be absent	ábsum, -ésse, āfuī, āfutūrus[3]	absent
be able, can	póssum, pósse, pótuī, —	*poss*ible, *pot*ent
poor, wretched	míser, mísera, míserum	*miser*y, *miser*able known	nōtus, -a, -um	*not*e, *not*able beautiful	púlcher, púlchra, púlchrum	*pulchr*itude
true	vērus, -a, -um	*ver*ify, *ver*acity
with	cum (prep. w. Abl.)	*con*vene[4]

---

[1] In this book synopses are called for in the first person.

[2] The suffix -tia expresses a quality or condition: amīcítia, friendship, friendliness; puerítia, boyhood; iūstítia, justice.

[3] Future Participle, about-to-be-away.

[4] In numerous English words the prefix con- (also com- and col-) represents Latin cum (with, together); cf. *com*bine, *col*lect.

102. A Complementary Infinitive. — In the English sentence, He is able to be present, or He can be present, the infinitive (to) be present modifies the expression he is able or he can, and completes its meaning. It is called a Complementary Infinitive (cf. cómpleō, I-complete). The sentence becomes in Latin: Adesse potest.[1]

103. Rule. — In Latin, as in English, an infinitive is used with verbs meaning to be able, wish, dare, begin, etc., to complete their meaning. Such an infinitive is called a Complementary Infinitive.

A Roman School Scene in what to-day is Alsace

104. Exercise. — Be prepared for oral and written work.

1. Fēmina benigna puerō aegrō rosās pulchrās dedit. Puer aeger rosās amat.

2. Hodiē multī puerī aegrī sunt neque in agrīs labōrāre possunt.

3. Neque puerī neque puellae hodiē in scholā (school) esse poterunt: agricolīs auxilium dăbunt.

4. Amīcī aut fīdī aut īnfīdī sunt; fīdōs amīcōs laudāmus.

5. Dominus servōrum nōn erat benignus: multī servī miserī in agrīs lātīs labōrābant. Dominum inimīcum tēlīs vulnerāvērunt; in magnō perīculō fuit.

---

[1] Cf. adesse potuit, (a) he-was-able to-be-present, or (b) he-could be-present, or (c) he-could have-been-present. In Latin the past time is indicated only by the auxiliary verb; in English it may be indicated as in (c) by the auxiliary verb and by the infinitive.

6. Rōmānī saepe cum barbarīs pugnābant. Barbarī neque agrōs pulchrōs neque oppida pulchra Galliae occupāre potuērunt.

7. Rōmānī auxilium dederant et Galliam līberāvērunt. Victōria (victory) Rōmānōrum Gallōs dēlectāvit. Semper Gallia (France), patria Gallōrum, lībera erit.

THIRD SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

105. A. (See 21.) 1. Puerī et puellae librōs portant. Puerī cum puellīs ad scholam ambulant librōsque puellārum portant. Et puerī et puellae discipulī[1] sunt. Magister (teacher) in scholā nunc adest. Schola est in aedificiō pūblicō et magnō.

2. Amīcus Mārcī, fīlī agricolae, nōn adest; abest. Hodiē in agrō cum agricolīs labōrat.

3. In scholā sunt pictūrae (pictures) multae et pulchrae. Discipulī fīdī sunt; fīdōs discipulōs lingua (language, lit. tongue) Latīna dēlectat.

4. Hodiē multī linguam Latīnam amant. Dēlectatne lingua Latīna discipulōs? Amātisne linguam Latīnam? Amāmus (sīc; ita; sānē; certē).

5. In mēnsā (table) sunt librī multī et rosa pulchra. Fabia, fīlia agricolae, magistrō rosam dedit.

6. Fīliī agricolārum in scholā adesse saepe nōn possunt.

7. Hodiē agricolae cum fīliīs fīdīs in agrīs lātīs labōrant.

8. Portābantne puerī puellārum librōs?

B. (See 34.) 1. The teacher praised (was-praising, had-praised, will-have-praised) the good pupils. We shall praise (shall-have-praised) the beautiful pictures.

2. Where is Marcus to-day? He is working with the servants in the field. He could not be in school to-day.

3. He is not sick: he is helping (lit. gives help to) the farmers. The teacher has given books to Marcus.

---

[1] discípulus, -ī, m., pupil; cf. "disciple," "discipline."

ITALY
SCALE OF MILES
0 20 40 60 80 100
GALLIA TRANSPADANA
GALLIA CISPADANA
AEMILIA
LIGURIA
ETRURIA
UMBRIA
PICENUM
SAMNIUM
APULIA
CALABRIA
LUCANIA
BRUTTII
LATIUM
CAMPANIA
MARE ADRIATICUM
MARE TYRRHENUM (CLYPEUM)
MARE INTERNUM
SICILIA
Aquileia
Verona
Patavium
Padus
Placentia
Parma
Mutina
Bononia
Ravenna
Ariminum
Ancona
Volterra
Clusium
Perusia
Asculum
Forum Aurelii
Tarquinii
Roma
Alba Fucensis
Ostia
Praeneste
Alba Longa
Tarracina
Salapia
Barium
Caieta
Casinum
Neapolis
Pompeii
Vesuvius
Brundisium
Rhudiae
Paestum
Tarentum
Heraclia
Sinus Tarentinus
Buxentum
Lavinium
Thurii
Consentia
Croton
Locri
Rhegium
Panormus
Aetna M.
Heraclea
Agrigentum
Syracusae
Utica
Carthago
MELITA I.
LIPARAEAE IS.
Mossana
Pola
Liburnia
Dalmatia
Histria
Liguria
Etruria
Umbria
Picenum
Samnium
Apulia
Calabria
Lucania
Bruttii
Latium
Campania
Sicilia
Gallia Transpadana
Gallia Cispadana
Aemilia
Pontiae I.
Misenum
Padus
Liris
Arnus
Tiber
Volturnus
Silarus
Aufidus
Frento
Sangro
Aternus
Metaurus
Rubicon
Aesis
Metaurus
Crimisus
Hypsas
Himera
Halycus
Tiber
Liris
Volturnus
Silarus
Aufidus
Frento
Sangro
Aternus
Metaurus
Rubicon
Aesis
Crimisus
Hypsas
Himera
Halycus
L.L. POATES CO., N.Y.

4. Many boys will not be able to be in school to-day.

5. The kind master will free his slaves. Who freed the slaves? He was a good man and he loved (his) country.

The Aurelian Wall

The Walls of Rome

(Optional)

106. In North America there is said to be but one walled city, Quebec. Most ancient cities were surrounded by walls. Rome was for centuries defended by the so-called Servian Wall, which was about five and a half miles long. In 272 A.D. the Emperor Aurelian began the Aurelian Wall, which was 12 miles in length, and had 16 gates and at one time 381 towers. This wall for the most part still stands. It has often saved Rome from destruction. See map, p. 100.

Repetītiō est māter studiōrum — Repetition is the mother of learning

CHAPTER X (REVIEW)

WORD LIST

107. Suggestions for Study. — (See 55.) Give a synopsis of each starred verb, and inflect each tense. Be prepared for a speed test.

NOUNS

*agricola
fābula
fēmina
fīlia Gallia
incola
īnsula Italia
nauta patria
pecūnia
porta
puella
rosa Sicilia
silva statua
*stella terra
via victōria
vīlla

*amīcus
deus
dominus
equus
Fabius

NOUNS

*fīlius
hortus
Mānlius
Mārcus
*mūrus populus servus
socius

*aedificium
auxilium bellum
*dōnum
frūmentum
*oppidum
perīculum
praemium
tēlum
templum

*ager
liber
*puer
vir

PRONOUNS

quid
quis

VERBS

*aedificō
ambulō
amō cōnfirmō dēlectō
*dō habitō implōrō
labōrō
laudō līberō
locō
nārrō nāvigō
occupō
parō
portō
pugnō
expugnō
oppugnō
rogō
servō spectō
exspectō
*stō
*sum absum

VERBS

adsum
*possum vocō
vulnerō

ADJECTIVES

altus
barbarus
benignus
*bonus certus
fīdus firmus
īnfīdus
inimīcus
lātus
longus magnus
*malus
multus
novus parvus
paucī plēnus
pūblicus
tardus

aeger

ADJECTIVES

līber
*miser
*pulcher

ADVERBS

certē
hodiē nōn
nunc
saepe semper
statim
ubi

PREPOSITIONS

ad
cum ē, ex
in

CONJUNCTIONS

atque, ac et et . . . et
-que

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–IX

108. 1. Agricola fīlium bonum laudat. 2. Magister fīliō agricolae librum dedit pulchrum. 3. Amīcus agricolae in oppidō habitābat. 4. Ubi sunt fīlius et fīlia agricolae? 5. Adestne Mārcus in scholā hodiē? 6. Nāvigāvitne nauta ad Siciliam? 7. Nōnne fuit agricola benignus? 8. Num agricola nautae pecūniam dăbit? Nōn dăbit (or nōn, or minimē). 9. Num nautae pecūniam servant? 10. Agricola est vir benignus. 11. Librī magistrī fuērunt novī et pulchrī. 12. Barbarī oppidum tēlīs oppugnābunt; nōn expugnāvērunt. 13. Mānlius, amīcus agricolae, Mārcō, fīliō agricolae, librōs multōs dedit; dederat. 14. Puerī cum puellīs ad scholam ambulant. 15. Hodiē agricolae cum incolīs oppidī in templō magnō sunt.

Roman Writing Materials

109. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Many Latin words, as locō (Chapter VIII) and vocō (Chapter II), have furnished a large number of English words, — many more than there has been room to mention in the vocabularies.

With the help of a dictionary find ten English words related to vocō. Many of the English derivatives of vocō will have prefixes, as "*a*vocation," "*in*vocation." Arrange this exercise in a notebook, following this model:

English words related to lócō, locāre, locāvī, locātus, *place: loc*ate, *loc*al, *loc*ality, *loc*ation, col*loc*ate, col*loc*ation, dis*loc*ate, *loc*alization, *loc*alize, *loc*ally, *loc*omotive, *loc*omotor.

Possunt quia posse videntur. (Vergil)
Because they think they can, they can

CHAPTER XI

SECOND CONJUGATION: INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF MONEŌ · ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT

FIRST SECTION

110. Preliminary Review. — 1. Give the synopsis of vocō in the Indicative Active, associating with each tense its meaning. 2. Give the synopsis of laudō, culpō, sum, and possum. 3. Conjugate in order each tense of vocō, laudō, culpō, sum, and possum, testing your speed. (Can you give these in three minutes?)

Fresco Painting of Cupids in the House of the Vettii, Pompeii

111. Second Conjugation. — Verbs of the Second Conjugation end in -eō (e.g. móneō, I-advise). The Present Infinitive ends in -ēre (e.g. monḗre, to-advise). The Present stem ends in -ē (e.g. moneō, stem monē). The Perfect Indicative usually ends in -uī (e.g. mónuī, I-advised, or I-have-advised), but the Perfect is very often irregular. The principal parts of moneō are:

móneō, monḗre, mónuī, mónitus

Verbs of the Second Conjugation are inflected in the Indicative Active as follows:

PRESENT I-advise, etc.		PERFECT I-advised or I-have-advised, etc.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
1. móneō	monḗmus	1. mónuī	monúimus
2. mónēs	monḗtis	2. monuístī	monuístis
3. mónet	mónent	3. mónuit	monuḗrunt (monuḗre)
IMPERFECT I-was-advising or I-advised, etc.		PLUPERFECT I-had-advised, etc.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
1. monḗbam	monḗbāmus	1. monúeram	monuerāmus
2. monḗbās	monḗbātis	2. monúerās	monuerātis
3. monḗbat	monḗbant	3. monúerat	monúerant
FUTURE I-shall-advise, etc.		FUTURE PERFECT I-shall-have-advised, etc.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
1. monḗbō	monḗbimus	1. monúerō	monuérimus
2. monḗbis	monḗbitis	2. monúeris	monuéritis
3. monḗbit	monḗbunt	3. monúerit	monúerint

Observe. — The vowel (ē) of the Second Conjugation becomes short in móneō, mónet, and mónent.

The Imperfect (monḗbam) and the Future (monḗbō) are formed on the Present stem monē- by means of the tense signs and personal endings, as in the First Conjugation (see 71, 72).

The Pluperfect (monúeram) and the Future Perfect (monúerō) are formed on the Perfect stem (monu-).

112. VOCABULARY XI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
place	lócus, -ī, m. (pl. lóca, n.)	*loc*ate, *loc*al
get together	cómparō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	compare
call together	cónvocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	convoke
fill	cómpleō, -ēre, -ēvī, -ētus	complete
owe, ought	dēbeō, -ēre, -uī, -itus	*debt*or, debt
teach, show	dóceō, -ēre, -uī, -tus	*doc*tor, *doc*ile
have, hold	hábeō, -ēre, -uī, -itus	*hab*it remain	máneō, -ēre, mānsī, mānsūrus [1]	per*man*ent, *mans*ion
answer	respóndeō, -ēre, respóndī, respōnsum [1]	respond, response
see	vídeō, vidēre, vīdī, vīsus	*evid*ent, *vis*ible neighboring	vīcínus, -a, -um	*vicin*ity
why	cūr (adv.)
down from, concerning	dē (prep. w. Abl.)	*de*crease, *de*scend
then	tum (adv.)

113. Observe. — While the Perfect Indicative of the Second Conjugation usually ends in -uī (as mónuī), many verbs form their Perfect differently, thus vídeō (Present), I-see, becomes vīdī (Perfect), I-saw, or I-have-seen; and máneō (Present), I-remain, becomes, with s instead of u as the tense sign, mānsī (Perfect), I-remained, or I-have-remained. We should, therefore, observe carefully the Perfect of each verb, and give all the forms of the Perfect, for example:

[1] In Latin, as in English, transitive verbs are those whose action goes over (trānsit) to some Object; intransitive verbs do not have Objects. The Object of a transitive verb becomes the Subject of the verb in the Passive. Thus, We praise the girl becomes in the Passive The girl is praised by us. Since a Latin intransitive verb is not used with an Object, no personal subject can be used with its Passive voice. With some intransitive verbs the Future Active Participle is given, e.g. mānsūrus, -a, -um, about-to-remain; others have a Perfect Passive Participle, but only in the neuter form, e.g. respōnsum.

vīdī, I-saw or I-have-seen

Singular	Plural
1. vīdī	1. vīdimus
2. vīdistī	2. vīdistis
3. vīdit	3. vīdērunt, or vīdēre

Since the Pluperfect and Future Perfect tenses are formed on the Perfect stem, we shall help ourselves to remember the Perfect of an irregular verb by stopping to repeat these tenses also, e.g. vīderam, vīderās, etc.; vīderō, vīderis, etc., mānseram, mānserās, etc.; mānserō, mānseris, etc.

SECOND SECTION

114. Accompaniment or Association. — In the English sentence, The farmer is plowing with his son, the prepositional phrase with-his-son means in-company-with-his-son, and, therefore, expresses Accompaniment or Association.

The sentence becomes in Latin Agricola cum fīliō arat. Here we see that in Latin a prepositional phrase cum fīliō is used to express Accompaniment or Association, exactly as the equivalent phrase is used in English.

115. Rule. — Accompaniment or Association is expressed in Latin by a prepositional phrase, cum with the Ablative.

116. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. The farmer is plowing the field with a plow (arātrum, -ī, n., Means). 2. The farmer was plowing the field with his son (Accompaniment). 3. The teacher is working with the pupils. 4. The inhabitants of the island were fighting with the Romans.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

117. A. 1. (Mārcus puerō dē scholā nārrat) "Magister librōs multōs et pictūrās pulchrās habet. Hodiē dē Rōmānīs nārrāvit. Rōmānī virī bonī et benignī fuērunt."

2. "Cūr nōn in scholā herī (yesterday) adfuistī? Magister multa dē Rōmānīs docuit."

3. Puer respondet, "Linguam Latīnam nōn amō. Aeger eram. Domī (at home) manēbam."

4. Tum Mārcus respondit, "Es malus puer. Nōn erās aeger. Sī (if) labōrābis, linguam Latīnam amābis."

From a Biblical Manuscript
(The Healing of the Leper, St. Mark i. 40–41)

5. Puer est fīlius agricolae vīcīnī, neque fīdus discipulus est.

6. Servī hodiē in silvā ligna (fuel) comparant. Fabius agrum arātrō arat. Habetne agricola agrum magnum et pulchrum?

7. Fabius cum fīliō agrum arātrō hodiē arābit. Mārcus domī manēre et auxilium dare dēbet. Magister Mārcum, fīlium agricolae, monuit.

8. Cornēlia, fīlia agricolae, in scholā hodiē aderat; adfuit; adfuerat.

9. Mārcus aquilam in silvā hodiē vīdit. Magister Mārcō dē aquilīs Rōmānīs nārrābit. Vīdistīne aquilam Americānam?

B. 1. We shall see the farmer's new horse; we had seen; shall have seen. They were advising the boy; have advised; will have advised.

2. The son of the neighbor (vīcīnus, -ī, m., as noun) will remain in town; had remained.

3. You (pl.) will have many books. Do you not love good books? A good book is always a faithful friend.

4. The servants are plowing in the field. They will not carry grain to town. Marcus will not see the teacher to-day.

5. What do good friends advise? We ought to love (our) country.

6. The neighbors ought to help (= give help to) the farmer.

7. The inhabitants of the town ought to have a temple.

8. We ought to have many pictures in the school.

118. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Find five English words related to videō, and five related to moveō.

Arrange these in the notebook, following the model locō (109).

Bear in mind that English words are formed from the base of the Perfect Passive Participle, as well as from the Present stem.

Copying an Ancient Manuscript in a Medieval Monastery

Dux fēmina factī! (Vergil) — The leader in the deed a woman

CHAPTER XII

THIRD DECLENSION · ABLATIVE OF TIME WHEN OR WITHIN WHICH · ACCUSATIVE OF DURATION OF TIME

FIRST SECTION

119. Preliminary Review. — 1. Give the principal parts and the synopsis of vocō, sum, possum, associating with each form its meaning. Then conjugate each tense, testing your speed. 2. Give the principal parts and the synopsis of moneō, habeō, dēbeō, videō, maneō, respondeō, associating with each form its meaning. Then conjugate each tense, testing your speed. 3. Review the Translation Exercises (117) for oral and written work.

120. The Third Declension. — In the Third Declension are masculine, feminine, and neuter nouns. Their Genitive singular ends in -is. Some masculine and feminine nouns have in the Nominative the case ending -s, thus: Nom. dux,[1] m., f. (duc + s), leader, Gen. dúcis; Nom. rēx, m. (rēg + s), king, Gen. rēgis; and Nom. aéstās, f. (aestāt + s), summer, Gen. aestātis. The base of these nouns may be found by omitting the case ending (-is) of the Genitive. Therefore, with each noun of the Third Declension we should memorize the Genitive, base, and gender. Masculine and feminine nouns with the base ending in a mute[1] are declined as follows:

[1] In the Nominative a final x (the "double consonant") represents the sound of c or g with the case ending -s.

dux, m., f., leader, guide Base: duc-		rēx, m., king Base: rēg-	mīles, m., soldier Base: mīlit-	aéstās, f., summer Base: aestāt-	Endings
Singular		Singular	Singular	Singular	Sing.
Nom.	dux[1]	rēx[1]	mīles[1]	aéstās[1]	-s or **-
Gen.	dúcis	régis	mílitis	aestátis	-is
Dat.	dúcī	régī	mílitī	aestátī	-ī
Acc.	dúcem	régem	mílitem	aestátem	-em
Abl.	dúce	rége	mílite	aestáte	-e
Plural		Plural	Plural	Plural	Plur.
Nom.	dúcēs	régēs	mílitēs	aestátēs	-ēs
Gen.	dúcum	régum	mílitum	aestátum	-um
Dat.	dúcibus	régibus	mīlítibus	aestátibus	-ibus
Acc.	dúcēs	régēs	mílitēs	aestátēs	-ēs
Abl.	dúcibus	régibus	mīlítibus	aestátibus	-ibus

The Frontier Defense (limes) of the Roman Empire

"The breakwater of civilization against the storm waves of barbaric invasion"

[1] Palatal mutes (sounded by throwing the breath against the palate) are c and g; labial mutes (lip-mutes) are p and b; lingual mutes (tongue-mutes) are t and d. Before -s a lingual mute disappears in the Nominative. Nouns whose Nominative singular ends in -ĕs have in the Genitive singular -idis or -itis (cf. óbsĕs, m., f., hostage, Gen. óbsidis).

121. VOCABULARY XII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
military service	mīlítia, -ae, f.	militia, militate
arrow	sagítta, -ae, f.
life	víta, -ae, f.	vital, vitality
year	ánnus,[1] -ī, m.	annual
sword	gládius, gládī, m.	gladiator
envoy, lieutenant	lēgátus, -ī, m.	legate, de*legate*
arms	árma, -ōrum, n. pl.	arm, army, armament
camp	cástra, -ōrum, n. pl.	Chester, Dor*chester*
winter	híems, híemis, f.
winter quarters	hībérna,[2] -ōrum, n. pl.	kibernate
battle	proélium, -proélī, n.
horseman (pl. cavalry)	éques, équitis, m.	Cf. equus, 40.
law	lēx, lēgis, f.	legal, legislation
peace	pāx, pācis, f.	pacify, Pacific
pacify, subdue	pácō, -áre, -ávī, -átus
place together, establish	cónlocō,[3] -áre, -ávī, -átus	collocate, collocation
frequent, thick	crēber, crēbra, crēbrum

122. Exercise. — Pronounce and translate: 1. Crēbra proelia cum barbarīs fuērunt. Mīlitēs in castrīs nōn mānsērunt. 2. Rēx multōs obsidēs dăbit. Lēgātus ducis gladium rēgis habet. Arma equitis sunt gladius et sagittae. 3. Dux bonus multōs mīlitēs in castrīs conlocābit. Ubi sunt castra Rōmāna? 4. Caesar, dux magnus, Galliam pācāvit et lēgēs bonās Galliae dedit. 5. Aestātēs longae sunt. Aestās puerōs dēlectat. Puerī nōn semper in agrīs labōrant.

---

[1] Cf. A.D. (Annō Dominī, in the year of the Lord).

[2] An adjective (hībernus, -a, -um) used as a noun; originally hīberna (castra), winter camp (quarters).

[3] conlocō: also written collocō. etc.

SECOND SECTION

123. Time When or Within Which. — In the English sentence, (1) In summer the farmer's son works in the fields, the prepositional phrase in summer tells at what time or when the action of the verb is done. Similarly in the sentence, (2) In a few years Caesar subdued Gaul, the prepositional phrase in a few years tells the period of time within which the action of the verb was done.

The Restored Roman Camp at Saalburg
(On the Frontier of the Empire between the Rhine and the Danube — a Danger Point)

These sentences become in Latin: (1) Aestāte fīlius agricolae in agrīs labōrat; (2) Paucīs annīs Caesar Galliam pācāvit. Here we see that in summer is expressed by aestāte, and in a few years by paucīs annīs.

124. Rule. — In Latin Time When or Within Which is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition.[1]

[1] With words that do not strictly express time, the preposition in is used if the noun has no modifier, as in bellō, in war; in pāce, in peace.

125. Duration of Time. — The English sentence, He lived in the little town many years, or for many years, or during many years, in which duration of time is indicated, becomes in Latin : In oppidō parvō multōs annōs habitābat.

126. Rule. — In Latin the Duration of Time is expressed by the Accusative without a preposition. For emphasis on the duration of time as uninterrupted (English "throughout") per, through, throughout, with the Accusative is used.

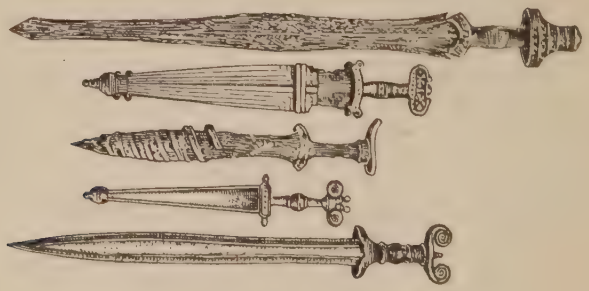
127. Exercise — Express in Latin : 1. In summer the farmer works in (his) fields. 2. The soldiers remained in the camp many years.



Gallic Swords and Daggers

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

128. A. 1. Hodiē Mārcus mīlitēs vidēbit. Nunc in hībernīs sunt. Hīberna ad oppidum pulchrum sunt. Hieme dux mīlitēs in hīberna convocat; aestāte mīlitēs pugnant.

2. Sextius, dux mīlitum, est amīcus Fabī agricolae; puerī ūnā (adv. together) fuērunt. Fabius cum Mārcō fīliō ad castra ambulābit. Sextius dē proeliō magnō nārrābit.

3. Castra ad Rhēnum erant. Prīnceps (chief) barbarōrum cum multīs castra oppugnāvit. Crēbra proelia erant. Mīlitēs Rōmānī barbarōs in silvās dēnsās repellēbant (were-driving-back). Mīles vītam ducis servāvit. Sextius mīlitī praemium dedit. Praemium fuit gladius. Mīlitēs gladiōs amant.

A Roman Soldier of the Legion

4. Mīlitia Sextī anteā (adv. previously) in Britanniā, īnsulā magnā, fuerat.

5. Rōmānī et hieme et aestāte multōs mīlitēs ad Rhēnum in castrīs habēbant (had, or kept).

B. 1. Have you seen a picture of a Roman camp?

2. Who told about the great battle? What did he tell? We shall tell about the battle.

3. Where did Fabius live? Was the town beautiful?

4. Farmers' sons work in the fields in summer. In winter they walk to school. Do they always work in school? Many boys do not like winter. Do they like summer?

5. Sextius, the leader of the soldiers, gave a sword to the soldier. Marcus did not see the sword.

6. Soldiers preserve (servō) peace. Peace pleases the inhabitants of the land.

7. Do the laws always please the soldiers and the sailors?

129. Derivation Exercise. — To what Latin words are "annuity," "aqueous," and "conductor" related?

Prō ārīs atque focīs! (Sallust) — "For your altars and your fires"

CHAPTER XIII

POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND PERSONS

FIRST SECTION

130. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline, with increasing speed, dux, rēx, mīles, aestās, pāx, lēx, eques. 2. Give a synopsis of pācō; then conjugate each tense. 3. Give a synopsis of moneō, and of videō; then conjugate each tense.

131. Possessive Adjectives. — In English the possessive "pronouns" are used with nouns, or stand in place of nouns, and indicate the person of the possessor, thus: My book; The book is mine; Your book; The book is yours; My book is new, yours is not new.

In Latin the possessive pronouns are declined as adjectives. Those of the first and second persons are:

First Person				Second Person
Singular: my, mine				Singular: your, yours, thy, thine
	M.	F.	N.		M.	F.	N.
Nom.	méus,	-a,	-um		túus,	-a,	-um
Gen.	méī,	-ae,	-ī		túī,	-ae,	-ī
		etc.				etc.
Plural: our, ours				Plural: your, yours
Nom.	nóster,	nóstra,	nóstrum		véster,	véstra,	véstrum
Gen.	nóstrī,	nóstrae,	nóstrī		véstrī,	véstrae,	véstrī
		etc.				etc.

NOTE. — The Vocative singular of meus is mī: O my friend! Mī amīce!

132. Possessive adjectives are not used in Latin except for clearness, emphasis, or contrast. They agree in gender, number, and case with the noun to which they belong, not with the noun to which they refer. Possessive adjectives usually follow their noun; but if used for emphasis (or contrast) they precede or, for great emphasis, are separated from their noun, thus: Amīcī meī in scholā sunt, My friends are in school; Meī (emphatic contrast) amīcī scholam nōn amant or meī (very emphatic) scholam amīcī nōn amant, My friends do not like school.

133. Exercise.—Express in Latin: 1. Where are your (sing.) books? 2. Have you seen my new book? (Emphatic) 3. Our teacher praises the Romans. (Contrast) 4. The farmer praised our roses. (Very emphatic) 5. The garden is mine; yours (sing.); ours; yours (pl.).

134. VOCABULARY XIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
comrade, companion	cómes, cómitis, m.	comity, Count
freedom	lībértās,[1] -ātis, f.	Cf. līber, 96
light	lūx, lūcis, f.	Lucy, trans*lucent*
voice, speech	vōx, vōcis, f.	*voc*al, *voc*iferous
slavery	sérvitūs,[1] -tūtis, f.	Cf. servus, 40
manliness, courage	vírtūs,[1] -tūtis, f.	virtue, virtuous
safety	sálūs, salūtis, f.	*salut*ary
greet	salūtō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	salute, salutation
move	móveō, -ēre, mōvī, mōtus	motor, motion
first	prímus, -a, -um	primary, primer
at daybreak	prímā lūce
in front of, on behalf of	prō (prep. w. Abl.)	proceed, promote without	sine (prep. w. Abl.)	*sine*cure across	trāns (prep. w. Acc.)	transfer, translate

[1] Nouns in -tās and -tūs express a quality and are feminine. With vir (man) associate vír-tūs (manliness, courage, "virtue").

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

135. A. 1. Rēx Britanniae Magnae nunc est Georgius V (Quīntus). Vīdistīne verba (words) Latīna in nummīs (coins) Anglicīs (English)? Quid est in nummīs nostrīs Americānīs?

2. Lēgēs et lībertātem laudāmus. Lēgēs nostrae sunt vōx populī.

3. Prō lībertāte et patriā pugnāre semper dēbēmus. Sine lībertāte vīta est misera.

4. Salūs patriae nostrae est in lēgibus et lībertāte. Nōn silent (are silent) lēgēs nostrae etiam inter (among) arma.

5. Nōnne amātis patriam vestram? Americam līberam salūtāmus.

6. Fabius cum Mārcō fīliō ducem mīlitum salūtāvit. Sextius, dux mīlitum, amīcus erat Fabī agricolae.

7. Puerī ūnā (adv. together) fuerant. Fabiō equum pulchrum dedit. Sextium in proelium equus saepe portāverat; nunc agricolam in oppidum portābit. Aestāte in agrīs labōrābit.

8. Virtūs mīlitum magna fuit. Trāns Rhēnum dēnsae silvae erant.

9. Dux mīlitum prīmā lūce castra mōvit. Hieme equitēs in hībernīs erunt.

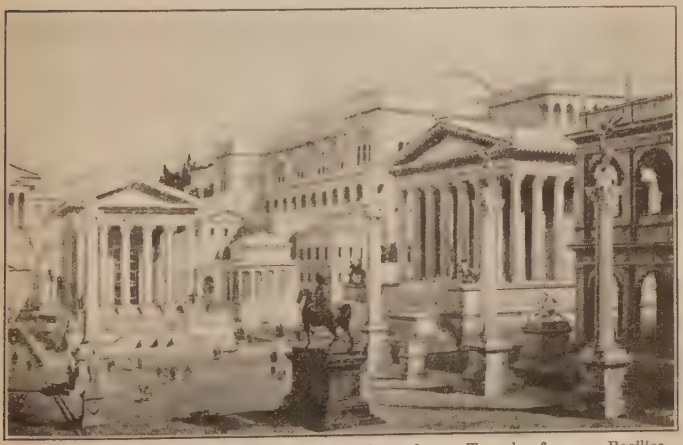
10. Virtūs amīcitiam cōnfirmat. Sine virtūte amīcitia esse nōn potest. Cōnscientia (conscience) est vōx Deī.

B. 1. There will not be kings in our land. We shall fight for the welfare of our country.

2. Where are the horsemen? Where are the soldiers? Are they in the winter camp?

3. The companions of the farmer are his son and daughter.

Temple of Jupiter Basilica Julia | Temple of Saturn | Temple of Vespasian Julian Rostra | Tabularium | Temple of Concord | Arch of Septimius Severus



Temple of Julius Caesar | Temple of Vesta | Palace of the Caesars | Temple of Castor and Pollux | Basilica Julia

The Roman Forum
(as it appeared in 80 A.D.)

4. Does Sextius' comrade live in the town? Where is your leader to-day? Is your friend at home (domī)?

5. We ought to see the camp. At daybreak the leader will break (move) camp.

136. Derivation Exercise. — How does Latin help us to use correctly "Anglican," "docility," "interregnum," "invocation," and "pacificator"? Consult an English dictionary.

The Forum

(Optional)

137. "The Forum, where the immortal accents glow,
And still the eloquent air breathes — burns with Cicero!" — Byron.

The Roman Forum is an oblong space of low ground in the midst of the "Seven Hills" on which Rome was built. It was long used chiefly as a market place and many shops were built along its sides. Also public assemblies were held there at which orators addressed the people from the Rostra, or speaker's platform. Courts and public discussions were held in the Forum, so that public debates have come to be called Forensics. The Romans, not having newspapers like ourselves, would go to the Forum to get the news of the day (or, later, to the great public baths). Eventually the Forum and its neighborhood became crowded with columns, statues, and arches, with temples and other public buildings; and it was thronged by people of all nations. The Forum was "the Heart of Rome and the Heart of the Ancient World." To-day the most interesting place in all the world in many ways is still the Forum, and one may walk there along the streets familiar to Caesar and Cicero, to St. Peter and St. Paul. See map, p. 100.

Historia est testis temporum, lūx vēritātis. (Cicero)
History is the witness unto time, the light on truth

CHAPTER XIV

THIRD DECLENSION (Cont.) · THE GENDER OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION

FIRST SECTION

138. Preliminary Review. — 1. Decline: dux, rēx, lēx, lūx, pāx, mīles, comes, aestās, lībertās, virtūs, salūs. Can you decline these eleven nouns in two minutes? 2. Review the Translation Exercises (135) for oral and written work.

139. Nouns with stems in l, n, r. — Masculine and feminine nouns with the base ending in l and r have no case ending in the Nominative singular, thus: Nom. cōnsul-, m., consul, Gen. cōnsulis; Nom. légiō-, f., legion, Gen. legiōnis (here the final -n of the base was dropped in the Nominative); Nom. páter-, m., father, Gen. pátris (here the final -r of the base became, as pronounced, -er in the Nominative).

Neuter nouns with stems ending in l, n, and r have no case ending in the Nominative singular, thus: Nom. flūmen-, n., river, Gen. flūminis (here the base flūmin- is a weakened form of flūmen-); Nom. témpus-, n., time; Gen. témpŏris (here the base, originally témpŏs-, weakened the final -ŏs to -ŭs in the Nominative; elsewhere the stem appears as témpŏr-, since an s between two vowels regularly became r).

These nouns are declined as follows:

cōnsul, m., consul	légiō, f., legion	páter, m., father	flūmen, n., river	témpŭs, n., time
Base: cōnsul-	Base: legiōn-	Base: patr-	Base: flūmin-	Base: tempŏr-
Sing.	Sing.	Sing.	Sing.	Sing.
N. cōnsul	légiō [1]	páter	flūmen	témpus
G. cōnsulis	legiōnis	pátris	flūminis	témporis
D. cōnsulī	legiōnī	pátrī	flūminī	témporī
Ac. cōnsulem	legiōnem	pátrem	flūmen	témpus
Ab. cōnsule	legiōne	pátre	flūmine	témpore
Plur.	Plur.	Plur.	Plur.	Plur.
N. cōnsulēs	legiōnēs	pátrēs	flūmina	témpora
G. cōnsulum	legiōnum	pátrum	flūminum	témporum
D. cōnsúlibus	legiōnibus	pátribus	flūmínibus	tempóribus
Ac. cōnsulēs	legiōnēs	pátrēs	flūmina	témpora
Ab. cōnsúlibus	legiōnibus	pátribus	flūmínibus	tempóribus

Observe. — 1. Neuter nouns (as in the Second Declension) have the same form in the Nominative and Accusative singular, and the Nominative and Accusative plural end in -a. 2. The Vocative of all nouns of the Third Declension has the same form as the Nominative both in the singular and plural.

A Roman Cameo

140. The Gender of Nouns of the Third Declension.[2] — The gender of Latin nouns is often indicated by the meaning;

[1] Nouns whose Nominative singular ends in -ō are declined like légiō, Gen. legiōnis (base: legiōn-), or like multitūdō, f., multitude, Gen. multitūdinis (base: multitūdin-), i.e. in the Genitive we have -ōnis or -ĭnis. Most nouns in -ō have -ĭnis in the Genitive.

[2] Additional rules for determining the gender of nouns of the Third Declension will be given in Chapter XXXIII.

often the form of the Nominative singular indicates the gender, thus:

1. Nouns in -or are masculine: lábor, labōris, m., labor; tímor, timōris, m., fear; but sóror, sorōris, f., sister, and árbor, árboris, f., tree.

2. Nouns in -tās and -tūs are feminine: lībértās, lībertātis, f., liberty; vírtūs, virtūtis, f., manliness, courage, virtue.

3. Nouns in -tūdō and -īdō are feminine: aegritūdō, aegritūdinis, f., sickness; magnitūdō, magnitūdinis, f., magnitude, size; cupīdō, cupīdinis, f., desire.

4. Nouns in -men (genitive -minis) and -ŭs (genitive -ŏris or -eris) are neuter: nōmen, nōminis, n., name; córpŭs, córpŏris, n., body; ópŭs, óperis, n., work.

5. Nouns in -iō are feminine: légiō, legiōnis, f., legion; ōrātiō, ōrātiōnis, f., oration.

141. VOCABULARY XIV

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
just	iūstus, -a, -um	justify, ad*just*
justice	iūstítia, -ae, f.	justice
judge, juror	iūdex, iūdicis, m.	judicial, judicious
trial, judgment	iūdícium, iūdícī, n.	judiciary
brother	frāter, frātris, m.	fraternal, fraternity
mother	māter, mātris, f.	maternal, matrimony
sister	sóror, sorōris, f.	sorority
name	nōmen, nōminis, n.	nominative, nominal
fear (verb)	tímeō, -ēre, tímuī, —	in*tim*idate
fear (noun)	tímor, timōris, m.	timorous
fearful	tímidus, -a, -um	timid, timidity
level, even, just, fair	aéquus, -a, -um	equal, equation
uneven, unjust	iníquus, -a, -um	inequality
frighten	térreō, -ēre, -uī, -itus	terrify, terrible
wayfarer, traveler	viātor, viātōris, m.	Cf. via, 16

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

142. A. 1. Numerus lēgum est magnus. Lēgēs bonās et validās (strong) virī malī timent. Virī bonī lēgēs laudant.

2. Lēgēs bonae bonōs virōs nōn terrent. Lēgēs bonās habēre dēbēmus. Sine lēgibus bonīs patria nostra stāre nōn potest.

3. Hominēs deum timent et amant et laudant. Iūdex iūstus iūstitiam dat. Iūdex iūstus esse dēbet. Officium iūdicis est iūstitiam dāre.

4. Iūdex iūstitiam dāre dēbet. Iūdicēs nostrī virī bonī et nōtī sunt. Iūdex inīquus iūdicium aequum nōn dat

Trajan's Army Crossing the Danube on a Bridge of Boats
(From the Relief on Trajan's Column)

5. Multa flūmina in Galliā sunt. Numerus flūminum est magnus. Rhēnus et Rhŏdănus (Rhone) sunt flūmina magna.

6. Ubi est flūmen? Quid est nōmen? Nīlus est flūmen magnum in Aegyptō (Egypt). Ubi est Dānuvius (Danube)?

B. 1. Did you see the leader's father, mother, sister and brother? Were they in the camp?

2. Did Fabius, the farmer, praise the soldiers? Had the soldiers been fighting for their country?

3. Were the horses of the horsemen in the camp? Who gave a horse to Fabius?

4. Did the barbarians take possession of the camp? Who saved Sextius' life in the battle? What did Sextius give the soldier?

5. They carried the body of the soldier back to town. The leader had praised the great courage of the soldier. He gave his life for his country. Good men ought to love their country and to fight for (its) laws.

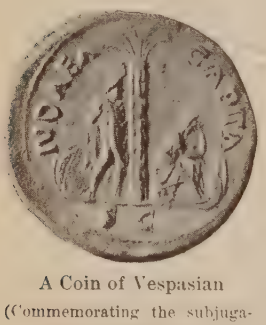
Filia et Māter
(A Pompeian Girl returns to her Mother)

6. Have you my book? I have not your books. Where are our books?

143. Derivation Exercise. — Watch for English words related to Latin words already learned. These are constantly occurring in your English readings and in other textbooks. (Cf. pp. 186 and 187.) Bring three such words and show the use of each in an English sentence.

CHAPTER XV (Review)

144. Vocabularies and Syntax. — (a) Review carefully Vocabularies XI–XIV. (b) Practice, for accuracy and speed, on terra, īnsula, hortus, amīcus, templum, oppidum, fīlius, auxilium, dux, mīles, aestās, virtūs, legiō, pater, flūmen, tempus, bonus, līber, aeger, vocō, sum, possum, moneō, videō. (c) Review the Rules of Syntax for Chapters I–XIV, pages 338–339.



A Coin of Vespasian
(Commemorating the subjugation of Judea, 70 A.D.)

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XIV

145. 1. Mīles cum multīs comitibus in urbe manet. 2. Agricolae agrōs amīcōrum arant. 3. Dēbēsne amīcō tuō pecūniam dare? 4. Nōnne est comes meus vir iūstus? 5. Num aestāte vīdistī castra mīlitum nostrōrum? 6. Mānlius agricola arātrō et equīs agrum arābat. 7. Māter et pater in oppidō multōs annōs manēbant. 8. Habentne amīcī tuī nōmina Latīna?

The Colosseum (or Coliseum)

(Optional)

146. "While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall;
And when Rome falls — the World."

— Byron.

The Colosseum, or Flavian Amphitheater, one of the most remarkable buildings in the world, was dedicated by the Emperor Titus in the year 80 A.D. It was intended to afford spectators the view of an inclosed space called the arena, where contests took place between professional combatants called gladiators, or else between men and wild animals.[1] The Colosseum was in the shape of an ellipse, the longer axis being 615 feet, the shorter 510 feet, and it covered about five acres of ground. The greatest height of the outside wall was about 157 feet. The Colosseum would hold about 80,000 spectators (possibly not over 50,000). Its general appearance within is familiar to Americans through such amphitheaters as the Syracuse University Stadium (capacity 25,000) and the Yale Bowl (capacity 60,000 to 70,000). The games celebrated in the Colosseum were on a magnificent scale, one hundred lions being sometimes let loose in the arena at once. Christianity put an end to these cruel sports. See map, p. 100.

The Colosseum as it looks to-day

[1] Cf. Bulwer-Lytton, Last Days of Pompeii, Book V, Ch. 4.

Nōbilitās miseriās nōbilitat. (Accius) — Nobility ennobles miseries

CHAPTER XVI

THIRD CONJUGATION: INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF REGŌ

FIRST SECTION

147. Preliminary Review. — 1. Place side by side the tenses (1st pers. sing.) of the Indicative Active of vocō, moneō, sum, and possum, marking long vowels and the accent. 2. Repeat each synopsis three times, associating with each tense its meaning. 3. Conjugate, testing your speed, each tense of vocō, moneō, sum, and possum. (Were you able to give these in four minutes?)

Gallic Horseman

148. Third Conjugation. — Verbs of the Third Conjugation (e.g. régō, I rule) have the Present Infinitive Active in -ĕre (e.g. régere, to rule). The Perfect Indicative Active of régō is formed by adding -sī to the verb root (reg + sī): rēxī, I ruled, or I have ruled. The Perfect Passive Participle is generally formed by adding -tus or -sus to the verb root, as rēctus, -a, -um (reg + tus), having been ruled. Before -tus a final g of the verb root changes to c. The principal parts of régō are: régō, régere, rēxī, rēctus.

Verbs of the Third Conjugation are inflected in the Indicative Active as follows:

PRESENT I rule, etc.		PERFECT I ruled, have ruled, etc.
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
1. rēgō	rēgimus	1. rēxī	rēximus
2. rēgis	rēgitis	2. rēxīstī	rēxīstis
3. rēgit	rēgunt	3. rēxit	rēxērunt
IMPERFECT I was ruling or I ruled, etc.		PLUPERFECT I had ruled, etc.
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
1. regēbam	regēbāmus	1. rēxeram	rēxerāmus
2. regēbās	regēbātis	2. rēxerās	rēxerātis
3. regēbat	regēbant	3. rēxerat	rēxerant
FUTURE I shall rule, etc.		FUTURE PERFECT I shall have ruled, etc.
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
1. régam	regēmus	1. rēxerō	rēxérimus
2. régēs	regētis	2. rēxeris	rēxéritis
3. réget	régent	3. rēxerit	rēxerint

Observe. — In the Present Indicative the stem regĕ- weakens to regĭ-; in the third person plural, to regŭ-. In the Future Indicative the tense sign is a in the first person, in the other persons ē, except before t and nt, where it is ĕ.

149. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate carefully each tense, associating with each form its meaning. 2. Pronounce the first person singular of each tense in order, associating with each tense its meaning. 3. With the book closed, write a synopsis in the first person singular; then compare your work with the book. 4. For accuracy and speed, repeat this synopsis several times, giving the meaning of each tense. Then conjugate each tense several times.

150. VOCABULARY XVI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
Caesar	Caésar, Caésăris, m.	Kaiser, Czar
foot	pēs, pĕdis, m.	*ped*al, *ped*estal
foot-soldier	pédes, péditis, m.	*ped*estrian
defend	dēfĕ́ndō, -ere, -ī, dēfĕ́nsus	*defend*er, defense
say	dĭcō, -ere, dīxī, dĭctus	*dict*ionary, *dict*ion
lead	dūcō, -ere, dūxī, dŭctus	via*duct*, duct
bring together	condūcō, -ere, etc.	*conduct, conduct*or lead out	ēdūcō, -ere, etc.
lead through	perdūcō, -ere, etc.
lead forward	prōdūcō, -ere, etc.	produce, product
lead back	redūcō, -ere, etc.	*reduce, reduc*ible
pick, gather, read	légō, -ere, lēgī, léctus	*leg*ible, *lect*ure
send	míttō, -ere, mīsī, mĭ́ssus	dis*miss*, *miss*ion
write	scrībō, -ere, scrīpsī, scrīptus	*scribe, script*ure
enroll	cōnscrībō, -ere, etc.	*conscript*ion
under, beneath	sub (prep. w. Acc. to the foot of; w. Abl. at the foot of)

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

151. A. 1. Magister cum Mārcō, fīliō agricolae, ad vīllam ambulat. Arborem magnam et pulchram vident. Sub arbore sedent (sit). Mārcus magistrum dē Horātiō (Horatius), virō Rōmānō, rogat.

2. Lēgistīne fābulam dē Horātiō? Magister fābulam dē Horātiō nārrābit. Quid dīcet magister? "Horātius pontem (bridge) dēfendit et patriam servāvit."

3. Dux noster mīlitēs ad flūmen dūxit. Trāns flūmen sunt barbarī. Prīnceps barbarōrum multōs condūxit. Proelia crēbra erunt. Virtūs mīlitum Rōmānōrum est magna. Prīmā lūce ex castrīs dux mīlitēs ēdūcet.

4. In Galliā sunt oppida multa et magna. Aestāte agrī sunt pulchrī. Rōmānī Galliam dēfendere dēbēbant.

5. Dux mīlitum fīdus est. Et peditēs et equitēs habet. Oppida et agrōs Gallōrum dēfendent.

6. Dux Fabiō amīcō epistulās (letters) saepe scrībet. Mīlitēs novōs cōnscrīpsit. Mīlitēs novōs ad castra mittet.

7. Per Galliam ad Rhēnum Caesar mīlitēs perdūxit. Barbarōs superāvit (overcame). Pāx est in Galliā.

"Beware the Dog"
(From the Vestibule of a Pompeian House)

B. 1. We shall say; they said; he had said; they are saying; you (sing.) will write; you (pl.) will write; she will write; you have written; you were writing; we had written; they will have written.

2. Good men will always defend their country; they ought always to fight for the welfare of the country.

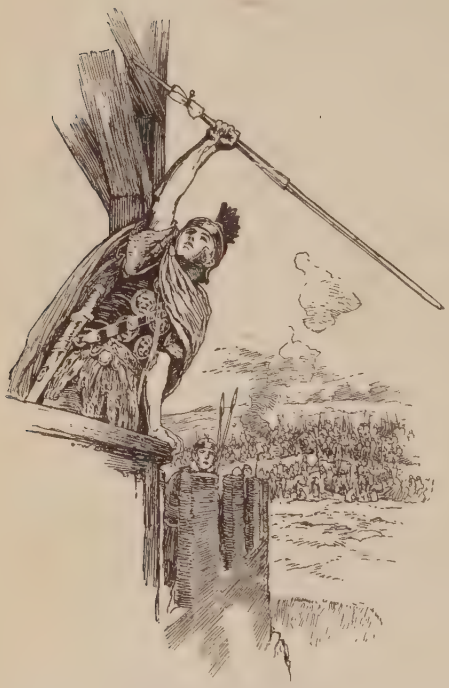
3. The barbarians had attacked the town. The inhabitants of the town praised the loyal leader; have praised; will have praised.

4. Where are the teacher and Marcus? They are sitting under the large and beautiful tree. The tree is near the river. The teacher will tell Marcus about Caesar.

152. Derivation Exercise. — Find for the notebook ten English words related to dūcō. Most of these will have Latin prepositions used as prefixes, e.g. "in-duce," "pro-duction," etc. Over a hundred English words are related to dūcō.

LATIN SELECTION

Quintus Cicero Defends the Camp



A Message from Caesar

Caesar's message fastened to a spear reaches the besieged Roman camp

153. Quīntus Cicerō, Mārcī Cicerōnis frāter, lēgātus Caesaris fuit. Cum Caesare ad Britanniam [54 B.C.] nāvigāvit et posteā (afterward) in Galliā castra magnā cum virtūte dēfendit. Propter inopiam frūmentī Caesar mīlitēs in hīberna distribuerat (had distributed). Quīntō Cicerōnī ūnam (one) legiōnem commīserat. Castra in Nerviīs nōn longē (far) ā flūmine Rhēnō aberant. Prīnceps barbarōrum, nōmine Ambiorīx, castra oppugnāvit. Multōs barbarōs habēbat, sed ūna legiō Rōmāna et dēfendit castra et servāvit. Ubi (when) tandem[1] (at length) Caesar subvēnit (came to their aid), multī iam vulneribus labōrābant. Caesar Quīntum et legiōnem laudāvit.

[1] Cf. the humorous derivative in "to drive tandem" (i.e. at length).

Mōribus antīquīs rēs stat Rōmāna virīsque. (Ennius)
By olden customs and great men Rome stands

CHAPTER XVII

PASSIVE VOICE: FIRST CONJUGATION · ABLATIVE OF AGENT

FIRST SECTION

154. Preliminary Review. — 1. Place side by side the Indicative Active synopses (1st pers. sing.) of dīcō, dūcō, mittō, scrībō, dēfendō. 2. Repeat aloud each synopsis three times, associating with each tense its meaning. 3. Conjugate, testing your speed, each tense of dīcō, dūcō, mittō, scrībō, dēfendō. (Were you able to give these in three minutes?)

Coin of Julius Caesar

155. The Passive Voice. — The Active voice of a verb expresses the subject of the verb as acting, that is, as the doer of the action; in the Passive voice the subject of a verb is acted upon, that is, receives the action. Thus: I call, or I am calling, vócō (Pres. Ind. Active) becomes I am called, or I am being called, vócor (Pres. Ind. Passive); I was calling, or I called, vocābam (Imp. Ind. Active) becomes I was being called, or I was called, vocābar (Imp. Ind. Passive); and I shall call, vocābō (Fut. Ind. Active) becomes I shall be called, vocābor (Fut. Ind. Passive). In these tenses the Passive voice is indicated by the personal endings.

Present Indicative Passive			Personal Endings
Sing.	"Present"	"Progressive Present"	Sing.
1. vócor	I am called	I am being called	-r
2. vocāris (or -re)	you are called	you are being called	-rĭs or -rĕ
3. vocātur	he is called	he is being called	-tur
Plur.			Plur.
1. vocāmur	we are called	we are being called	-mŭr
2. vocāminī	you are called	you are being called	-mĭnī
3. vocántur	they are called	they are being called	-ntur

Imperfect Indicative Passive
Sing.	"Past Tense"	"Past Progressive"
1. vocābar	I was called	I was being called
2. vocābāris (or -re)	you were called	you were being called
3. vocābātur	he was called	he was being called
Plur.
1. vocābāmur	we were called	we were being called
2. vocābāminī	you were called	you were being called
3. vocābántur	they were called	they were being called

Future Indicative Passive Sing.
1. vocābor	I shall be called
2. vocābĕris (or -re)	you will be called
3. vocābitur	he will be called
Plur.
1. vocābimur	we shall be called
2. vocābíminī	you will be called
3. vocābúntur	they will be called

Observe. — The tense sign of the Future (bĭ) is bĕ in the second person singular (vocābĕris), and bŭ in the third person plural (vocābŭntur).

156. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate each tense, associating with each form its meaning. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write, from memory, all the forms of each tense, marking long vowels and the accent. 3. Conjugate these Passive tenses of laudō and culpō.

157. VOCABULARY XVII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
influence, favor (pl, thanks)	grā́tia, -ae, f.	grace, gracious
to give thanks	grā́tiās ágere
province	prōvíncia, -ae, f.	provincial
a Gaul	Gállus, -ī, m.	Gallic
herd, flock	grex, grégis, m.	con*greg*ate
likeness	imā́gō, imāginis, f.	image, imagine
custom, habit	mōs, mṓris, m.	moral, morality
wound	vúlnus, vúlneris, n.	*vulner*able point out, show	dēmṓnstrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	demonstrate
drive, do	ágō, -ere, ēgī, áctus	agent, act
drive together, collect, compel	cṓgō, -ere, coḗgī, coáctus	cogent, cogency
drive back, reduce	rédigō, -ere, redḗgī, redáctus
learn, ascertain	cognṓscō, -ere, cognṓvī, cógnĭtus	re*cogn*ize, re*cogn*ition
carry, accomplish	gérō, -ere, géssī, géstus	belli*ger*ent, sug*gest*
put, place	pṓnō, -ere, pṓsuī, pṓsitus	oppo*nent*, pose, *posi*tion
leave behind	relínquō, -ere, relíquī, relíctus	*relinq*uish, relic
eminent, unusual	ēgrégius, -a, -um	*egregi*ous
away from, by	ā, ab (prep. w. Abl.) [1]	*ab*sent, *ab*stain

SECOND SECTION

158. Agency with a Verb in the Passive Voice. — The English sentence (1) The farmer praises the horse is in the

[1] We have now met the more common prepositions used with the Ablative: ā (or ab), ē (or ex), and dē; cum, prō, and sine.

Active voice and represents the subject farmer as the agent, the doer-of-the-action.

In the Passive voice (2) The horse is praised by the farmer expresses the same thought, but in a different way; the subject now is the horse, and the doer-of-the-action, the agent, is indicated by the prepositional phrase by the farmer.

These sentences become in Latin: (1) Agricola equum laudat, The farmer praises the horse; (2) Equus ab agricolā laudātur, The horse is praised by the farmer.

159. Rule. — Agency with a verb in the Passive voice is expressed in Latin by a prepositional phrase (ā or ab with the Ablative), just as in English by an equivalent phrase.

NOTE. — The preposition ā (ab) means away-from, from, as in Oppidum ā flūmine nōn longē abest, The town is not far distant from the river. In Latin the agent with a verb in the Passive is really the person from whom comes the doing of the action; hence ab agricolā in (b) is equivalent to English by-the-farmer.

Do not confuse agency with means. Agency, as just explained, refers to persons, means refers to things. See 80.

160. Indirect Agency. — Indirect agency, the person through whom (not by whom), is expressed by per with the Accusative: Per amīcōs multa cognōvī, I learned many things through friends.

161. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. The leader of the soldiers is praised by the soldiers. 2. The son of the farmer will be encouraged by rewards. 3. We shall learn good things (bona, n. pl.) through the messenger.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

162. A. 1. "Hodiē," inquit Mārcus patrī, "dē Caesare cognōvī. Galliam superāvit et in prōvinciam redēgit. Magister

Galliam in tabulā nostrā geōgraphicā dēmōnstrāvit et multa dīxit dē terrā et flūminibus Galliae.

2. Nōmina flūminum dare possum. Ā magistrō laudābor. Plūtarchus (Plutarch) vītam Caesaris linguā Graecā scrīpsit.

3. Magister librum discipulīs dēmōnstrāvit. Librum legere studeō (I am eager). Caesar vir bonus et magnus fuit."

Julius Caesar (102–44 B.C.)
"He doth bestride the narrow world like a Colossus."
— Shakespeare

4. Mārcus, fīlius agricolae, ā magistrō saepe laudātur. Amīcus Mārcī nōn semper laudābātur. Cūr laudātur Mārcus ā magistrō?

5. Est fīdus discipulus. Estisne fīdī discipulī? Nōnne semper laudāminī?

6. Dux mīlitēs in castra dūcet; redūxit; redūcēbat; redūxerat. Caesar barbarōs Galliam relinquere coēgit. In Galliā manērē nōn potuērunt.

7. Bellum ā barbarīs parātur. Oppidum oppugnābunt. Oppidum expugnāre nōn poterunt.

8. Incolae oppidum dēfendent et servābunt. Mīles vulnere labōrābat. "Prōcēdere" (to proceed), inquit, "nōn possum."

9. Comitēs mīlitī auxilium dabunt; dedērunt. Mīles comitibus grātiās aget.

10. Gregēs agricolae bonī sunt ēgregiī. Praemia fīdīs servīs ab Rōmānīs dābantur. Mōrēs Rōmānōs laudāmus.

B. 1. At daybreak our soldiers will be called together by (their) leader. The camp will be attacked by the barbarians.

2. Our (soldiers) will defend the camp with weapons. They will compel the barbarians to leave many wounded in the forest.

3. Marcus, the son of the farmer, wrote about the battle and praised our (men). Our (men) are praised by Marcus, the son of the farmer.

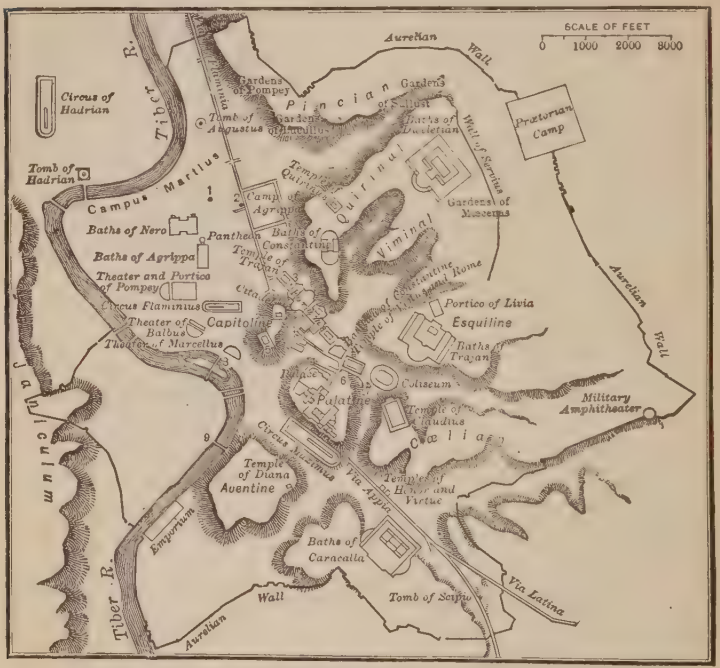
4. Marcus had learned many (things) about the customs of the Gauls. He has often praised the courage of the Gauls. They were waging war for (prō) liberty.



Imperial Rome

1, Column of Antoninus Pius; 2, Column of Marcus Aurelius; 3, Column of Trajan; 4, Arch of Septimius Severus; 5, Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus; 6, Arch of Titus; 7, Arch of Constantine; 8, Fabrician Bridge; 9, Sublician Bridge.

5. Cornelia gave beautiful roses to (her) mother, a beautiful woman; has given; will give. Beautiful roses will be given by Cornelia to (her) mother.

163. Derivation Exercise. — To what Latin words are "cognizant," "election," and "demonstrable" related?

Tempora mūtantur, et nōs mūtāmur in illīs[1]
Times change and we change in them

CHAPTER XVIII

PASSIVE VOICE: FIRST CONJUGATION (Cont.)

FIRST SECTION

164. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write a synopsis of the Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative Passive of vocō, laudō, culpō. 2. Repeat each synopsis three times, associating with each tense its meaning. 3. Conjugate these tenses, testing your speed.

A Greek Vase
Aphrodite (Venus) and Swan

165. Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Passive. — We have learned the Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative of vocō in the Passive voice. In these tenses the Passive is indicated by the personal endings (e.g. vócor, vocábar, vocábor). In the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect, the Passive voice is expressed by using the Perfect Passive Participle vocátus (-a, -um) with sum for the Perfect; with eram for the Pluperfect; and with erō for the Future Perfect. Thus: vocátus sum, I was called, or I have been called; vocátus

[1] English parallel: "New occasions teach new duties; time makes ancient good uncouth" (Lowell).

éram, I had been called; vocātus éro, I shall have been called. These tenses are conjugated as follows:

PERFECT
Singular
1. vocātus sum,	I was called, or I have been called
2. vocātus es,	you were called, or you have been called
3. vocātus est,	he was called, or he has been called
Plural
1. vocātī súmus,	we were called, or we have been called
2. vocātī éstis,	you were called, or you have been called
3. vocātī sunt,	they were called, or they have been called

PLUPERFECT		FUTURE PERFECT
Singular		Singular
1. vocātus éram,	I had been called	1. vocātus érō,	I shall have been called
2. vocātus érās,	you had been called	2. vocātus éris,	you will have been called
3. vocātus érat,	he had been called	3. vocātus érit,	he will have been called
Plural		Plural
1. vocātī erámus,	we had been called	1. vocātī érimus,	we shall have been called
2. vocātī erátis,	you had been called	2. vocātī éritis,	you will have been called
3. vocātī érant,	they had been called	3. vocātī érunt,	they will have been called

NOTE. — The Perfect Passive Participle is an adjective and changes in form to agree in gender and number with the subject. Thus: puella (f. sing.) vocāta (f. sing.) est; puellae (f. pl.) vocātae (f. pl.) sunt; templum (n. sing.) laudātum (n. sing.) est; templa (n. pl.) laudāta (n. pl.) sunt.

166. Exercise. — Conjugate the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Passive of laudō and culpō.

167. VOCABULARY XVIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
supply (pl. forces)	cōpia, -ae, f.	*copi*ous
need, lack	inópia, -ae, f.
reputation, report	fāma, -ae, f.	fame, *fam*ous
advice, plan	cōnsílium, cōnsílī, n.	counsel, *counsel*or garrison, guard	praesídium, praesídī, n.	*Presid*ent, *presid*e
shout	clāmor, clāmōris, m.	clamor, *clamor*ous
speaking, speech	ōrātiō, ōrātiōnis, f.	oration, oratory
speaker, orator	ōrātor, ōrātōris, m.	*orator*ical
shout	clāmō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	ex*claim*, pro*claim*
bring together	compórtō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	comport
cultivate, dwell in	cólō, -ere, cóluī, cúltus [1]	*cultu*re, *cult*ivate set up, decide	cōnstítuō, -ere, cōnstítuī, cōnstitūtus	constitute consult	cōnsulō, -ere, cōnsúluī, cōnsúltus [2]	*consult*ation
select, choose	dēligō, -ere, dēlēgī, dēlēctus
middle, middle of	médius, -a, -um	im*medi*ate
before	ánte (prep. w. Acc.)	*ante*cedent
on account of	própter (prep. w. Acc.)
on account of	ob (prep. w. Acc.)	*ob*vious

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

168. A. 1. Puella ā mātre laudāta est. Māter rosās in hortō colēbat. Puella mātrī auxilium dederat.

2. Auxilium mātrī ā puellā dātum est. Puellae māter librōs dedit. Puellae ā mātre librī dātī sunt; dātī erant; dantur; dātī erunt.

---

[1] Associate colō with agricola (16) and incola (40).

[2] Associate cōnsulō with cōnsul (consul, one-who-consults, 139). cōnsilium was formed from the root of cōnsulō : cōnsul + ium became cōnsilium (a consulting), a noun of action. A similar noun of action is iūdicium (141).

3. Frūmentum in oppidum comportātum est. Inopia frūmentī in oppidō fuerat. Nunc est cōpia frūmentī in oppidō.

4. Incolae oppidī bellum timēbant. Agricolae ab incolīs in oppidum vocābantur; vocātī sunt; vocābuntur. Dē perīculō cōnsulent.

5. Dux cōpiās in oppidum dūxit. Praesidia oppidī ante bellum cōnfirmāre cōnstituērunt. Mānlius in proeliō vulnerātus est. Nōn iam[1] in proeliō manēre poterat.

6. Vōx mea lībertātem semper dēfendet; dēfendit. Salūs patriae meae in lībertāte est; semper erit; semper fuit. Populus noster semper līber erit.

7. Amīcōs bonōs habēre dēbēmus. Suntne amīcī tuī bonī? Et pater et māter amīcōs meōs laudant. Amīcōs bonōs semper dēligō; dēlēgī; dēligam.

8. In mediō hortō fuit arbor magna et pulchra. Sub arbore Mārcus ōrātiōnēs Cicerōnis (of Cicero) legēbat.

9. Terram colunt agricolae. Amīcōs colimus; coluimus; coluerāmus. Amīcī propter virtūtēs laudātī sunt.

B. 1. You will have been praised. He was praising; he was praised. We shall be able to remain in the town. The soldiers will defend the town.

2. The leader has enrolled new legions. The soldiers are being called together; have been called together. Why are the gates of the town being strengthened?

3. He wounded the leader of the barbarians with a sword.

4. We shall cultivate our friends. We ought to cultivate our friends. We have chosen good friends. The reputation of friends ought to be good. Is the reputation of your friends good?

169. Derivation Exercise. — Can you find additional English words related to clāmō, portō, and ante?

---

[1] iam: by this time, now; nōn iam: no longer.

Palma nōn sine pulvere[1] — Not without dust is the palm of victory

CHAPTER XIX

PASSIVE VOICE: INDICATIVE OF MONEŌ

FIRST SECTION

170. Preliminary Review. — 1. Place side by side the Indicative Passive tenses (1st pers. sing.) of vocō, laudō, culpō. 2. Conjugate, testing your speed, each tense of vocō, laudō, culpō. (Were you able to give these in two minutes?)

171. Indicative Passive of Moneō. — We have seen that in the Present, Imperfect, and Future Indicative the Passive voice is indicated by Passive personal endings (e.g. Pres. vócor, Imp. vocábar, Fut. vocábor). Accordingly these tenses of móneō become in the Passive: Present, móneor, I am advised, or I am being advised; Imperfect, monēbar, I was being advised, or I was advised; Future, monēbor, I shall be advised.

We have also seen that the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect Indicative Passive are expressed with the help of the Perfect Passive Participle (e.g. Perf. vocátus sum, Pluperf. vocátus éram, Fut. Perf. vocátus érō). These tenses, therefore, of móneō, become in the Passive: Perfect, mónitus sum, I was advised, or I have been advised; Pluperfect, mónitus éram, I had been advised; Future Perfect, mónitus érō, I shall have been advised. See page 327.

[1] English equivalent: "No cross, no crown" (Elizabeth Barrett Browning).

172. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate the Indicative Passive tenses of monēō several times, associating with each form its meaning. With the book closed, write a synopsis in the first person singular. 2. Practice giving the synopsis rapidly. 3. Write the principal parts of videō, and a synopsis of the Indicative Passive in the first person singular.

173. Compare the following synopses of vocō and moneō :

	Active	Passive	Active	Passive
Present	vócō	vócor	móneō	móneor
Imperfect	vocābam	vocābar	monēbam	monēbar
Future	vocābō	vocābor	monēbō	monēbor
Perfect	vocāvī	vocātus sum	mónuī	mónitus sum
Pluperf.	vocāveram	vocātus éram	monúeram	mónitus éram
Fut. Perf.	vocāverō	vocātus érō	monúerō	mónitus érō

174. VOCABULARY XIX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
prudence	prūdéntia, -ae, f.	prudence
spirit, courage	ánimus, -ī, m.	animus, *anim*ate influence	auctōritās, -tātis, f.	authority
remind	admóneō, -ēre, -uī, -itus	*admon*ish dare, venture	aúdeō, -ēre, aúsus sum [1]	*aud*acious, *aud*acity
dwell, inhabit	íncolō, -ere, incólui, —	Cf. incola, 40
foresee	prōvídeō, -ēre, prōvīdī, prōvīsus	provide, *provis*ion
move back, remove	remóveō, -ēre, remōvī, remōtus	*remov*able, remote
sit, settle	sédeō, -ēre, sēdī, —	*sed*iment, *sed*entary
be eager	stúdeō, -ēre, stúduī, —	*stud*ent, study

[1] Observe that the Perfect Indicative, aúsus sum, I dared, or I have dared, is Passive in form, but Active in meaning. Likewise the Pluperfect is aúsus éram, I had dared, and the Future Perfect is aúsus érō, I shall have dared.

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
hold, keep	téneō, -ēre, ténuī, —	*ten*acious, con*tain*
obtain, hold	obtíneō, -ēre, obtínuī, obténtus	obtain
reach, extend	pertíneō, -ēre, pertínuī, —	pertain, *pertin*ent
hold back, retain	retíneō, -ēre, retínuī, reténtus	*reten*tion
hold up, sustain	sustíneō, -ēre, sustínuī, susténtus	sustain
necessary	necésse (indeclinable adj.)	*necess*ity
through	per (prep. w. Acc.)	*per*vade, *per*ceive

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

175. A. 1. Pater fīlium monet; monuit; monēbat; monēbit. Fīlius ā patre monētur; monēbitur; monēbātur; monitus est; monitus erat; monitus erit.

The Arch of Trajan
(At Beneventum, South Central Italy)

2. Fīlius Sextī, ducis mīlitum, in scholā nōn studēbat. "Sine studiō," inquit magister, "puer vir bonus esse nōn potest."

3. Magister benignus erat: fīliō Sextī auxilium saepe dābat.

4. Hodiē dīxit, "Sī (if) linguam Anglicam bene (well) cognōscere studēs, necesse est linguam Latīnam cognōscere."

5. Multī magistrum dēlectāre studēbant. Mārcus, fīlius agricolae, cum cūrā labōrābat. A magistrō saepe laudābātur.

6. Fabius agricola nunc in oppidō habitat. Et vīllam et gregēs vēndidit.[1] In oppidō multōs habet amīcōs.

7. Amīcōs in forō (market place) saepe videt. Multōrum fīliī cum Caesare in mediā Galliā sunt. Dē Caesare epistulās mittunt.

8. Prīncipēs Galliae Caesarī grātiās ēgērunt. Caesar Germānōs Galliam relinquere coēgerat.

9. Vīdistīne imāginem Caesaris? Quid cognōvistis dē Caesare? Cum Britannīs bellum gerere cōnstituit.

10. Incolae īnsulae Gallīs auxilium dederant. Caesar dē magnitūdine īnsulae et mōribus incolārum scrīpsit.

B. 1. Good friends will give good advice. We shall be advised by our friends. The influence of good friends is good.

The Victory Arch, New York

2. The barbarians will not dare to attack the town. The Romans have pitched (pōnō) camp across the river. They will compel the Germans to leave Gaul.

3. The Gauls were often waging war with the Germans. The Germans were eager to occupy and hold the beautiful fields of Gaul. The Germans dwelt across the Rhine.

4. Many Romans settled in Gaul and after a few years Roman laws extended to the Rhine.

5. For many years they retained (their) excellent (ēgregius) customs.

---

[1] vĕndō, vĕndere. vēndidī, — : sell (cf. "vend," "vendor").

176. Derivation Exercise. — Give the meaning of "inanimate," "imprudence," and "improvident." Use each in a sentence.

The Arch of the Emperor Constantine

Constantine (323–337 A.D.) rescued the Empire from civil war, founded Constantinople, and made the Empire Christian

Roman Arches

(Optional)

177. In Rome and elsewhere triumphal arches were often erected to commemorate some great service to the State. These large and magnificent arches are often of marble and adorned with various kinds of sculpture. In appearance they recall their original, the city gate.

Three of the best known arches are at Rome: the Arch of Septimius Severus (cf. p. 81), the Arch of Titus, and the Arch of Constantine.

Among the modern commemorative arches that have been built after the pattern of these ancient Roman ones are the Arch of Triumph in Paris, the Washington Arch and the Victory Arch in New York, N. Y.

In hōc signō vincēs[1] — In this sign thou shalt conquer

CHAPTER XX (Review)

WORD LIST

178. Suggestions for Study. — Follow the method outlined in 55. Give a synopsis of each starred verb, then conjugate each tense, testing your speed.

Nouns	Nouns	Nouns	Verbs
cōpia	aestās	ōrātor	salūtō
fāma	arbor	pater	*audeō
grātia	auctōritās	pāx	compleō
inopia	clāmor	pedes	dēbeō
iūstitia	comes	pēs	doceō
mīlitia	cōnsul	prīnceps	*habeō
prōvincia	*dux	*rēx	maneō
prūdentia	eques	salūs	*moneō
sagitta	flūmen	soror	admoneō
vīta	frāter	tempŭs	moveō
animus	grex	timor	removeō
*annus	hiems	*virtūs	respondeō
gladius	imāgō	vōx	sedeō
lēgātus	iūdex	*vulnŭs	studeō
locus	legiō		teneō
arma	lēx	Verbs	obtineō
*castra	lībertās	comparō	pertineō
*cōnsilium	lūx	comportō	retineō
hīberna	māter	conlocō	sustineō
iūdicium	mīles	convocō	timeō
praesidium	mōs	dēmōnstrō	terreō
proelium	*nōmen	nōminō	*videō
	ōrātiō	pācō	prōvideō

[1] Constantine the first Christian emperor, saw in the sky a cross bearing a Greek motto which these words translate. (See p. 53.)

Verbs	Verbs	Adjectives	Prepositions
agō	redūcō	inīquus	ā, ab
cōgō	gerō	iūstus	ante
redigō	legō	medius	dē
cognōscō	mittō	prīmus	ob
colō	pōnō	timidus	per
incolō	regō	vīcīnus	prō
cōnstituō	relinquō		propter
cōnsulō	*scrībō	*meus	sine
dēfendō	cōnscrībō	noster	sub
dīcō		tuus	trāns
dūcō	Adjectives	vester
condūcō	aequus	Adverbs
ēdūcō	crēber	cūr
perdūcō	ēgregius	tum
prōdūcō

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XIX

179. 1. Germānī agrōs pulchrōs Galliae occupāre studēbant.

2. Caesar mīlitēs novōs in Italiā cōnscrībere et statim cum Germānīs bellum gerere ausus est.

3. Sextius, amīcus agricolae, mīlitēs in hīberna redūxerat.

4. Dux mīlitum sagittā vulnerātus erat.

5. Fīlius ducis virtūtem et iūstitiam Caesaris laudāvit.

6. Amīcus noster saepe dē bellō et virtūte mīlitum scrīpsit.

A Roman Cup (silver)
(From the Boscoreale villa near Pompeii)

7. Cūr nōn est Mārcus in scholā hodiē? Estne aeger? Minimē. Cum frātre in agrīs labōrat.

8. Multī discipulī hodiē adesse nōn possunt.

9. Fīlius et fīlia agricolae in scholā paucōs annōs manēre poterunt.

10. Nōnne est lūx patriae nostrae lībertās? Lībertātem semper dēfendēmus.

11. Lēges sunt vōx populī. In Americā populus, nōn rēx, regit. Nostrās lēgēs iūstās laudāmus.

12. Aestāte multī gregēs in agrīs sunt.

13. In mediō flūmine est īnsula parva et pulchra. In īnsulā sunt multae arbŏrēs.

14. Agricola benignus fuit. Miserō servō pecūniam saepe dăbat.

180. Derivation Exercise. Type II. — Select five English words containing nāv (the base of nāvis, f., ship), which appears in nāvigō (nāv + agō), I sail. Write a brief definition of each and insert this exercise, when approved by the teacher, in the notebook. See the following model:

vocō, vocāre, vocāvī, vocātus, call — *voc*ation — a calling, occupation
*voc*ational — pertaining to a vocation or calling *voc*al — pertaining to the voice ev*oke* — call out con*voke* — call together
*voc*ative — case of calling, case of address rev*oke* — call back, remand inv*oke* — call upon, ask for *voc*iferous — with large calling power, with loud tones invocation — a calling upon, a prayer

A Wall Painting from Pompeii
(Psyches Gathering Flowers)

Numquam perīculum sine perīculō vincitur. (Publilius)
Never is peril conquered without peril

CHAPTER XXI

PASSIVE VOICE: THIRD CONJUGATION · PERSONAL PRONOUNS EGO, TŪ · INTENSIVE PRONOUN IPSE · REFLEXIVE PRONOUN SUĪ · REFLEXIVE POSSESSIVES

FIRST SECTION

181. The Indicative Passive of regō is: Present, régor, I am ruled; Imperfect, regḗbar, I was being ruled, I was ruled; Future, régar, I shall be ruled; Perfect, rḗctus sum, I was ruled, I have been ruled; Pluperfect, rḗctus éram, I had been ruled; Future Perfect, rḗctus érō, I shall have been ruled. These tenses are conjugated on page 329.

182. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate each tense, associating with each form its meaning; then practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write a synopsis of the Active and Passive tenses of regō. 3. Write a synopsis of the Indicative Passive of dūcō, mittō, scrībō.

183. Personal Pronouns of the First and Second Persons. — The personal pronoun of the first person is égo, I, plural nōs, we; that of the second person is tū, you (or thou), plural vōs, you.[1]

Since the personal endings of a verb express the person and number of the subject (e.g. laudō, I praise), the subject does not need to be separately expressed by a personal pronoun, except for emphasis (e.g. Ego laudō, I praise).

[1] The personal pronouns of the third person (he, she, it; plural they) are supplied by the demonstrative pronouns (215).

The personal pronouns of the first and second persons are declined as follows:

	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
Nom.	égo, I	nōs, we	tū, you	vōs, you
Gen.	méī, of me	nóstrum,[1] of us	túī, of you	véstrum,[1] of you
Dat.	míhi, to me or for me	nōbīs, to us or for us	tíbi, to you or for you	vōbīs, to you or for you
Acc.	mē, me	nōs, us	tē, you	vōs, you
Abl.	mē,[2] me	nōbīs,[2] us	tē,[2] you	vōbīs,[2] you

184. The Intensive Pronoun. — In English the "compound pronouns" (first person: myself, plural ourselves; second person: yourself or thyself, plural yourselves; third person: himself, herself, itself, plural themselves) are called intensive pronouns when used to emphasize a noun or pronoun beside which they are placed, thus: I myself; mother herself.

In Latin the intensive pronoun (with all persons) is ípse, m., ípsa, f., ípsum, n., self, very. The intensive pronoun agrees in gender, number, and case with the noun or pronoun to which it belongs, thus: Ego ipse, I myself; māter ipsa, mother herself. The Latin intensive pronoun is declined on page 323.

185. Exercise. — (a) Pronounce each verb and give its person, number, and tense; then translate and conjugate each tense for accuracy and speed: 1. regimus, rēximus, regēmus, regēmur, rēctī sumus, rēxerāmus. 2. regit, regitur, regēbat, regēbātur, reget, regētur, rēxit, rēctus est. 3. regis, regēs, regeris, regēris, regēbās, rēxerās, regēbāris, rēxistī, rēctus erās, rēxeris. 4. rēxistis, regētis, regitis, rēxerātis, regēbātis, rēxeritis, rēxērunt, rēxēre.

---

[1] Also nostrī and vestrī, which are used only as Objective Genitives (359).

[2] The Ablative of pronouns referring to persons usually requires a preposition (e.g. ā mē, from or by me). The preposition cum, with, is appended as an enclitic to mē, tē, nōbīs, vōbīs: mēcum, with me; tēcum, with you (thee); nōbīscum, with us; vōbīscum, with you. Similarly with the reflexive pronoun (186) sēcum, with himself, with herself, with themselves.

(b) Pronounce and translate: 1. Multī mīlitēs propter virtūtem ā duce nostrō laudātī sunt; laudābuntur.

2. Legiōnēs novae mediā aestāte cōnscrībentur; cōnscrīptae sunt. Dux castra ad flūmen Rhēnum pōnet; posuit; posuerat.

3. Nōs ipsī patriam nostram dēfendēmus. Patria ā nōbīs semper dēfendētur; dēfēnsa est. Sine auxiliō nostrō lībertās esse nōn poterit.

4. Quid tibi dīxit amīcus noster? Multōsne annōs in Galliā fuit?

5. Dux nōs convocāvit et perīculum magnum nōbīs dēmōnstrāvit. Perīculō magnō nōn territī sumus.

6. Tūne ipse hīberna vīdistī? Hīberna nōn longē ab oppidō absunt.

7. Prīmā lūce barbarī ē silvīs ēductī sunt et castra oppugnāvērunt. Nostrī clāmōribus nōn territī sunt.

8. Ego et mātrem et patrem dē librīs bonīs cōnsulam. Dē Rōmānīs cognōscere studeō.

9. Rōmānī agrōs pulchrōs Galliae multōs annōs dēfendērunt.

186. The Reflexive Pronouns. — In English the compound pronouns are called reflexive pronouns when used as the object of a verb or preposition and separated from the noun or pronoun to which they refer, thus: I blame myself; you blame yourself.

In Latin the reflexive pronoun with the first and second persons is expressed by the personal pronoun in the required case, thus: Mē culpō, I blame myself; tē culpās, you blame yourself.

The reflexive pronoun with the third person is expressed by suī (Gen.), (of) himself, herself, itself, themselves, in the required case, thus: Puer sē (Acc. object) laudat, The boy praises himself; Puerī sē (Acc. object) laudant, The boys praise themselves. The reflexive pronoun of the third person usually refers for its identity to the subject of the verb in the clause. The Latin reflexive pronoun of the third person is declined as follows:

Singular and Plural
Nom.	———
Gen.	suī, of himself, herself, itself, themselves
Dat.	sibi, to (or for) himself, herself, itself, themselves
Acc.	sē or sēsē, himself, herself, itself, themselves
Abl.	sē or sēsē, himself, herself, itself, themselves

187. Use of the Reflexive Pronouns.

Singular	Plural
1. mē laúdō, I praise myself	1. nōs laudámus, we praise ourselves
2. tē laúdās, you praise yourself	2. vōs laudátis, you praise yourselves
3. sē laúdat, he praises himself, or she praises herself	3. sē laúdant, they praise themselves

NOTE. — The intensive pronoun is often added to the reflexive for special emphasis, thus: mē ipsum laudō. I praise my own self, or I praise myself (with vocal emphasis in English).

188. The Reflexive Possessives. — With a pronoun of the first or second person the corresponding possessive adjective is used reflexively, thus: Ego mātrem meam laudō, I praise my (own) mother; Nōs mātrem nostram laudāmus, We praise our (own) mother.

With a noun or pronoun of the third person the reflexive possessive adjective is súus, -a, -um, his own, her own, its own, their own, thus: Agricola fīlium suum laudat, The farmer praises his own son; Puella frātrem suum laudat, The girl praises her own brother.[1]

189. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. You (sing.) praise your books, I (praise) mine. 2. Our friend told me many things concerning the war. 3. He showed us his own sword and horse. 4. The soldiers carry their own grain. 5. Good men do not praise themselves.

SECOND SECTION

190. VOCABULARY XXI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
meeting, council	concílium, concílī, n.	council
signal, standard	sígnum, -ī, n.	sign, signify
truth	vēritās, -tātis, f.	*verit*able mention	commémorō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	commemorate
explore	explōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*explor*er
scout	explōrātor, -tōris, m.	*explor*ation
announce, declare	nūntiō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	pro*nounce*
lead away	abdūcō, -ere, abdūxī, abductus	abduct
lose	āmíttō, -ere, āmísī, āmíssus	amiss
commit	commíttō, -ere, commísī, commíssus	committee, commission
to engage in battle	proélium commíttere
send away, dismiss	dīmíttō, -ere, dīmísī, dīmíssus	dismiss
send ahead	praemíttō, -ere, praemísī, praemíssus	premise
run	cúrrō, -ere, cucúrrī, cúrsum	current, ex*cursion*
cut down, kill	occídō, -ere, occídī, occísus	homi*cide*, in*cisive*
seek	pétō, -ere, petívī (pétiī), petītus	petition, com*pete*

[1] The Romans often, for special emphasis, used with any possessive adjective the possessive Genitive of the intensive pronoun, thus: Dux mīlitēs suōs ipsīus laudat, the leader praises his own soldiers (lit. his own soldiers of himself). Ipsīus is masc. sing. to agree with dux.

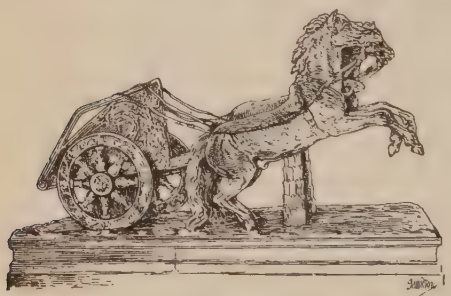
TRANSLATION EXERCISES

191. A. 1. Prīmā lūce dux ipse mīlitēs suōs ā flūmine abdūxit et equitēs praemīsit.

2. Ubi (when) equitēs Rōmānī barbarōs vīdērunt, proelium committere contendērunt. Multī equitēs sagittīs ā barbarīs vulnerātī sunt.

3. Peditēs tandem equitibus auxilium dedērunt; barbarī vērō (but), ubi (when) prīnceps suus signum dedit, in dēnsīs silvīs salūtem petiērunt. Multī autem (however) occīsī sunt.

4. Dux Rōmānus explōrātōrēs in silvās dēnsās dīmīsit; deinde concilium convocāvit equitumque virtūtem magnā cum laude commemorāvit.



A Two-Horse Chariot, or Biga

The body of the chariot, richly adorned with leaves, was used for centuries as an episcopal throne

5. Servus ad amīcum dominī suī cucurrit et veniam (forgiveness) implōrāvit.

6. Iūstitia lēgibus dēfenditur; dēfendētur; dēfēnsa erit. Vēritātem dēfendere nōs ipsī semper dēbēmus.

7. Amīcus noster magnam pecūniam āmīsit. Magna pecūnia ab amīcō nostrō āmissa est. Quid tibi nārrāvit dē pecūniā suā? Vōsne mē culpātis?

B. 1. We shall not seek peace. Peace will not be sought by our allies. 2. Were the scouts sent across the river? Was the battle begun (committō) at dawn? They did not dare to engage in battle. 3. What did the scouts announce to you concerning the river? 4. The fields of the Gauls were being occupied by the Germans. They did not fear the Romans because of (their) small number. 5. Caesar promised aid to the Gauls. The chiefs of Gaul thanked Caesar.

192. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Select for the notebook five English words related to mittō.

LATIN SELECTION

193. Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh

Courtesy wins a royal friend.

Elisabētha, rēgīna Britannōrum, forte (by chance) cum multīs comitibus in viā ambulābat. Subitō (suddenly) ante pedēs multum lutum (mud) vīdit. Rēgīna stābat incerta (uncertain); sed aderat iuvenis (young man); rēgīnam salūtāvit et novum pallium (cloak) in lutō posuit; tum ad sociōs recurrit (ran back). Laeta rēgīna super (upon) pallium ambulāvit neque pedēs maculāvit (soiled). Iuvenis ā rēgīnā in numerō amīcōrum habitus est.

The Victorious Charioteer

Comes facundus in viā prō vehiculō est. (Publilius)
A chatty companion on a journey is as good as a carriage

CHAPTER XXII

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES IN -US AND -ER · DECLENSION OF THE COMPARATIVE · FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS · ABLATIVE WITH THE COMPARATIVE

FIRST SECTION

194. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write side by side the synopses in the Indicative Passive of regō, mittō, dīcō, dūcō. 2. Conjugate each tense, testing your speed. 3. Review the Translation Exercises (191) for oral and written work.

195. Comparison of Adjectives in English. — In English a descriptive adjective regularly changes in form to express the quality in different degrees, thus: high, higher, highest. But with many adjectives the adverbs more and most are used to express greater degrees of the quality, thus: more beautiful, most recent.

A descriptive adjective usually has "three degrees of comparison," named Positive, Comparative, and Superlative.

NOTE. — The Positive degree (cf. pōnō, I place, assign) assigns the quality without comparison (e.g. the high wall); the Comparative degree (cf. cómparō, I bring together, compare) states the quality in comparison with that of one or more other objects (e.g. The wall is higher than the tree); the Superlative degree (cf. súper + lātus, carried above) states the quality as in the highest degree, — above two or more other objects (e.g. This mountain is the highest of the three).

196. Comparison of Adjectives in Latin. — Adjectives are regularly compared in Latin, as in English, by changes in form :

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
high	higher	highest
áltus, álta, áltum	áltior, m., f., áltius, n.	altíssimus, -a, -um
free	freer	freest
líber, líbera, líberum	libérior, m., f., libérius, n.	libérrimus, -a, -um
sick	sicker	sickest
aéger, aégra, aégrum	aégrior, m., f., aégrius, n.	aegérrimus, -a, -um

197. Rule. — The Comparative is formed by adding -ior to the base ; and the Superlative is formed by adding -issimus to the base. Adjectives ending in -er form the Superlative by adding -rimus to the Nominative masculine of the Positive.

198. The Declension of the Comparative. — The Positive and Superlative have the case endings of the First and Second Declensions. The Comparative has the case endings of the Third Declension, thus :

	Singular		Plural
	Masc., Fem.	Neut.	Masc., Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	áltior	áltius	altiōrēs	altiōra
Gen.	altiōris	altiōris	altiōrum	altiōrum
Dat.	altiōrī	altiōrī	altiōribus	altiōribus
Acc.	altiōrem	áltius	altiōrēs (-īs)	altiōra
Abl.	altiōre	altiōre	altiōribus	altiōribus

Observe. — The masculine, feminine, and neuter forms are alike in the Genitive, Dative, and Ablative. It will, therefore, save time to give but one form in these cases.

199. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Repeat the declension of áltior several times from memory. 2. Pronounce carefully the adjectives of the following list in the Positive, Comparative, and Superlative degrees. 3. Practice giving the comparison of the adjectives from memory. 4. Decline rapidly the Comparative of lóngus, and of púlcher.

Positive	Comparative		Superlative
	M., F.	N.
lóngus, -a, -um	lóngior	lóngius	longíssimus, -a, -um
fídus, -a, -um	fídior	fídius	fidíssimus, -a, -um
lātus, -a, -um	lātior	lātius	lātíssimus, -a, -um
fírmus, -a, -um	fírmior	fírmius	firmíssimus, -a, -um
aéger, aégra, aégrum	aégrior	aégrius	aegérrimus, -a, -um
líber, líbera, líberum	lībérior	lībérius	lībérrimus, -a, -um
púlcher, púlchra, púlchrum	púlchrior	púlchrius	pulchérrimus, -a, -um

200. Formation and Comparison of Adverbs. — Adverbs in English are formed from adjectives by adding -ly; the Comparative adverb is expressed by prefixing more to the Positive adverb; the Superlative adverb by prefixing most to the Positive adverb.

Adverbs in Latin are regularly formed from adjectives by adverbial endings. Thus adjectives of the First and Second Declensions form their adverbs as follows:

Positive		Comparative		Superlative
firmly,	fírmē	more firmly,	fírmius	most firmly,	firmíssimē
far,	lóngē	farther,	lóngius	farthest,	longíssimē
freely,	líberē	more freely,	lībérius	most freely,	lībérrimē
feebly,	aégrē	more feebly,	aégrius	most feebly,	aegérrimē

201. Rule. — Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions regularly form the Positive adverb by adding -ē to the base of the adjective ; the Comparative is formed by adding -ius [1] ; the Superlative by adding -íssimē; but all adjectives ending in -er form the Superlative adverb by adding -rimē to the Nominative masculine of the Positive.

202. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Pronounce carefully the above adverbs in the Positive, Comparative, and Superlative. Then cover the Comparative and Superlative forms, and give these forms for each of the adverbs from memory 2. Write the comparison of the following adjectives : áltus, fírmus, tárdus, cértus, iūstus, aéger, líber, púlcher, nōtus, crēber, and dēnsus. 3. Form the adverb from each of these, and write its comparison.

203. VOCABULARY XXII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
painstaking, care	dīligéntia, -ae, f.	diligence
wrong	iniūria, -ae, f.	injury, injurious
memory	memória, -ae, f.	memoir, memorial
example	exémplum, -ī, n.	exemplary
punishment	supplícium, supplícī, n.	supplicate
speed, swiftness	celéritās, -tātis, f.	celerity, accelerate
citizenship, state	cívitās, -tātis, f.	civil, city, citizen
worth, position	dignitās, -tātis, f.	dignity
worthy	dignus, -ā, -um	dignified
work, trouble	lábor, labōris, m.	labor, elaborate
prohibit, prevent	prohíbeō, -ére, -uī, -itus	prohibit
large, distinguished	ámplus, -a, -um	ample, amplify
the rest, remaining	réliquus, -a, -um	relic
altogether, all	ūnivérsus, -a, -um	universe, universal
with difficulty	aégrē (adv.)
unexpectedly	improvísō [2] (adv.)	improvident
far	lóngē (adv.)	Cf. longus, 64
first; at first	prímum; prímō (advs.)	Cf. prīmus, 134
suddenly	súbitō (adv.)

[1] It is really the Accusative singular neuter of the Comparative adjective.

[2] in (not) + prō (before) + p. p. p. of videō (see), unforeseen.

SECOND SECTION

204. The Comparative with Quam. — In the English sentence (1) Summer is longer than winter (is), a comparison is expressed by the Comparative adjective longer followed by the conjunction than. The two things compared are in the same case, for summer is the subject of is, and winter is the subject of is understood. The sentence becomes in Latin: Aestās longior est quam hiems (est).

Also (2) He suffered more from fear than (from) wounds becomes: Timōre magis labōrābat quam vulneribus (labōrābat). Here the things compared are Ablatives of Cause.

205. Rule. — In comparisons, if quam, than, is expressed, the things compared are in the same case (the same usage in Latin as in English).

Roman Lamps

206. The Comparative without Quam. — In Latin, quam, than, is often omitted, but only when the things compared would be in the Nominative or Objective case in English; thus we may say in Latin: Praemia pulchriōra sunt quam dōna or Praemia sunt dōnīs pulchriōra, Rewards are more beautiful than gifts. In the latter sentence quam was omitted and the second thing compared is in the Ablative case.

207. Rule. — In comparisons, if quam, than, is omitted, the second thing compared is put in the Ablative case, which preferably comes before the Comparative.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

208. A. 1. Bonī amīcī bene (well) monent. Dīgnī amīcī melius (better) monēbunt quam indīgnī.

2. Amīcī nostrī auctōritātem magnam habēre dēbent. Auctōritās et dīgnitās sunt praemia labōris.

3. Cīvitās ā bonīs virīs firmē dēfenditur; semper dēfēnsa est; dēfendētur. Quis nōn laudat supplicium malōrum hominum?

4. Templum altius est quam mūrus; est mūrō altius. Arbor altissima est; est altior quam porta; est portā altior. Arborēs pulchrae ā templō nōn longē absunt.

5. Frāter meus hodiē aegrior est quam herī (yesterday); in scholā esse nōn poterit. Ubi sunt reliquī discipulī hodiē? Num aegrī sunt?

B. 1. First he spoke freely concerning the danger, then (deinde) he led (his) soldiers out from the camp. He dared to engage in battle with the Germans. 2. The courage and swiftness of the soldiers pleased the leader. The diligence of the leader was praised by the soldiers. 3. We hold in memory (Abl. of means) the good men of our country. All the good (men) are eager to uphold the dignity of the state. Many punishments have been announced by just laws. 4. The good example of our friends prevented the wrong; they gave large gifts to the good man. 5. The picture of our mother is very beautiful. I have not seen a more beautiful woman than our mother.

209. Derivation Exercise. — Can you give additional English words related to firmus, līber, and multus?

Virtūs hominem iungit Deō. (Cicero) — Virtue unites man with God

CHAPTER XXIII

THE INTERROGATIVE PRONOUN AND ADJECTIVE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS AND ADJECTIVES

FIRST SECTION

210. The Interrogative Pronoun and Adjective. — The interrogative pronoun who? which? is quis, m., f., quid, n. The interrogative adjective, which? what? what kind of? is quis (or quī), m., quae, f., quod, n. The interrogative pronoun is declined as follows:

	Singular		Plural
	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
N.	quis, who?	quid, what?	quī	quae	quae
G.	cúius[1], of whom? whose?	cúius, of what?	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
D.	cui[2], to (for) whom?	cui, to (for) what?	quíbus	quíbus	quíbus
Ac.	quem, whom?	quid, what?	quōs	quās	quae
Ab.	quō,[3] whom?	quō, what?	quíbus[3]	quíbus[3]	quíbus

Note. — In the plural, the interrogative pronoun and the interrogative adjective have the same forms. In the singular, the interrogative pronoun has the same forms for the masculine and feminine; as an interrogative adjective the Nominative singular masculine is quis or quī, and the feminine forms differing from the masculine are: Nom. quae, Acc. quam, Abl. quā. The Nominative and Accusative singular neuter are quod.

[1] Pronounced rapidly as koó-i-us (koó-yus).

[2] Pronounced rapidly as koó-i (kwi).

[3] The Ablatives (masc. and fem.) quō, quíbus, are used chiefly with prepositions. cum is affixed as an enclitic: quōcum, quibúscum, with whom?

A Greek Monument

211. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Decline the interrogative pronoun. 2. Decline the interrogative adjective. 3. Write all the forms with their meanings.

212. Exercise. — 1. Quis librum meum habet? 2. Cui librum tuum dedistī? 3. Quae flūmina magna in Galliā sunt? 4. Quid dīxit explōrātor dē flūmine? 5. Cuius castra oppugnāvērunt barbarī? 6. Ā quō laudātus est Quīntus Cicerō? 7. Quod oppidum cīvitātis nostrae est pulcherrimum? 8. Quis nōn audet prō Americā cum Germānīs bellum gerere? 9. Quī discipulī hodiē absunt? 10. Quis ā scholā longissimē habitat?

213. Demonstrative Pronouns and Adjectives. — In English the Demonstratives are this (plural these), that (plural those). They serve to point out persons or things for special attention, and are used both as pronouns and as adjectives. Thus: (as pronouns) This is my brother; These are my books, those are yours; Who said this? — (as adjectives) This tree is beautiful; These farmers are carrying grain to that town.

In Latin there are five Demonstratives: 1. hic, m., haec, f., hŏc, n., this (near the speaker), thus: hic puer, this boy (here); haec puella, this girl (here); hoc templum, this temple (here). 2. ille, m., illa, f., illud, n., that (at a distance), thus: ille equus, that horse (there); illa arbor, that tree (there); illud praemium, that reward (there). 3. iste, m., ista, f., istud, n., this, or that (near, or belonging to, the one addressed), thus: iste liber, that book (of yours), or your book. 4. is, m., ea, f., id, n., this, or that (being mentioned by the speaker), is less emphatic than hic and ille, thus : is mīles, this soldier ; ea legiō, this legion ; id flūmen, this river. 5. īdem, m., éadem, f., ídem, n., same, thus: īdem amīcus, the same friend ; eadem aquila, the same eagle ; idem nōmen, the same name.

The Demonstratives are declined on page 323.

214. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice on the declensions of hic, is, ille, and īdem for accuracy and speed. 2. With the book closed, write all the forms of each Demonstrative. 3. Compare your written work with the book and correct any errors. 4. Decline all the Demonstratives, testing your speed. Can you give them in two minutes ?

215. Uses of the Demonstratives. — 1. The Latin Demonstratives, like the English Demonstratives, are used as adjectives and as pronouns. As adjectives, they agree in gender, number, and case with the noun to which they belong, thus : hic puer, this boy ; huius puerī māter, this boy's mother. As pronouns they agree in gender and number with the noun to which they refer, thus: Ille est frāter meus, That is my brother ; Illī sunt amīcī meī, Those are my friends.

2. The Latin Demonstratives are also used for emphasis as personal pronouns of the third person, with the following meanings :

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	All genders
Nom.	he	she	it	they
Gen.	of him, his	of her, her, hers [1]	of it, its	of them, their, theirs [1]
Dat.	to or for him	to or for her	to or for it	to or for them
Acc.	him	her	it	them
Abl.	him	her	it	them

[1] The forms hers and theirs are used alone, as predicate possessives, thus : the book is hers ; the rewards are theirs.

NOTE. — The Demonstratives when used as personal pronouns still express their differences of meaning, thus hic, he (near the speaker in space or thought); ille, he (at a distance or for strong emphasis); iste, he (near the one addressed, sometimes contemptuous); is, he (being mentioned by the speaker).

216. Exercise. — 1. Hic liber est meus; librum istum nec habeō nec vīdī. Estne ille tuus? 2. Huius virī exemplum bonum est; hunc ūniversa cīvitās laudat. 3. Huic servō miserrimō et auxilium et pecūniam dābō. 4. Quis nōn studet eī lībertātem dāre? 5. Quid est pulchrius quam haec ipsa (very) terra? 6. Quis istud dē amīcīs vestrīs dīxit? Fuitne hic ipse? 7. Abestne longē templum illud pulcherrimum? 8. Nōn longē abest, mox id vidēbimus. 9. Memoria illīus virī in cīvitāte nostrā semper manēbit. 10. Illōrum mīlitum virtūte dēfendēmur. 11. Ubi est eius māter? 12. Quis huic librum dedit? Suntne amīcī eōrum bonī? Eōs laudō.

SECOND SECTION

217. VOCABULARY XXIII

ENGLISH MEANINGS	LATIN WORDS	RELATED ENGLISH WORDS
nature	nātūra, -ae, f.	natural, naturalize
manner	módus, -ī, m.	mode, modify
hindrance (pl. baggage)	impedīméntum, -ī, n.	impede, impediment
word	vérbum, -ī, n.	verbal, verb
nothing	níhil (indeclinable)	annihilate, Nihilist
demand	póscō, -ere, popóscī, —
think	pútō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	compute, repute
argue, discuss	dísputō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	disputation
check	tárdō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	retard, tardy
fitting, agreeable	cómmodus, -a, -um	commodious
whole, unimpaired	íntegер, íntegra, íntegrum	integer, integral
thither, there	éō (adv.)
from there, thence	índe (adv.)
whither; whither?	quō (rel. and inter. adv.)

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

218. A. 1. Quis eōs mīlitēs hūc (hither) dūxit? 2. Hic dux hīc, ille dux ibi, castra pōnere studet. 3. Ubi incolae sunt timidiōrēs et īnfīdissimī, ibi amīcī meī habitāre nōn audent. 4. Cicerōnī ipsī nihil erat commodius quam disputāre cum amīcīs dē nātūrā amīcitiae. 5. Eō tempore cōpiae Caesaris nōn erant integrae atque multa impedīmenta celeritātem eōrum tardābant.

B. 1. From there (illinc) that consul will within a year send the first legion thither. 2. I am leading your horses to where (whither) that slave of yours has carried your baggage. 3. The same wrongs were mentioned by Caesar himself. 4. What queen most unjustly demanded from (ab) these farmers both fields and money? 5. What do you yourself think of (dē) the words of that scout? 6. What manner of life will these barbarous sailors demand?

219. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Find for the notebook ten English words related to putō.

Pōculum

LATIN SELECTION

220. THE COBBLER PRACTICES MEDICINE

The cobbler becomes a doctor.

Ōlim (once upon a time) fuit in Graeciā sūtor quī inopiā labōrābat. Post paucōs annōs in oppidum magnum ēmigrāre cōnstituit. Ibi nōn sūtor, sed medicus (doctor) falsus fuit. Antidotum (remedy) ēgregium — sīc ipse dīcēbat — vēnditābat.[1]

[1] vēnditō, -āre, etc., vend, sell, peddle (cf. "vendor").

He doesn't take his own medicine.

Et fāmam et pecūniam comparābat. Sed nōn multō post ipse morbō[1] occupātus est. Aegerrimus erat ubi (when) illum rēx oppidī petiit, neque rēgem salūtāre potuit. Rēx statim pōculum (cup) poposcit et antidotum illud in pōculō posuit; deinde (then) medicō falsō cum hīs verbīs dedit, "Tuum antidotum — sīc ipse dīxistī — aegrōs semper sānat."[2] Medicus falsus iam perterritus est neque propter timōrem dīcere potuit. Tandem vērō (but) exclāmāvit, "Veniam (pardon) implōrō, Domine; sūtor, nōn medicus sum."

His patients see their folly.

Itaque rēx populum convocāvit et haec dīxit, "Capita (lives) vestra commīsistis nōn medicō, sed sūtōrī impudīcissimō (most shameless), cui nēmō (no one) soleās (sandals) committere dēbet."

---

[1] morbus, -ī, m., illness, disease (cf. "morbid").

[2] sānō, -āre, etc., cure, make well (cf. "sane," "sanitary").

A Temple in Southern Italy
(Sacred to the God of the Sea)

Līberae sunt enim nostrae cogitātiōnēs. (Cicero)
For our thoughts at least are free

CHAPTER XXIV

CARDINAL NUMERALS · ORDINAL NUMERALS DECLENSION OF ŪNUS, DUO, TRĒS

FIRST SECTION

221. Numerals. — The Cardinal Numerals from one to twenty and the Ordinal Numerals from first to twentieth are given below.

Both the cardinals and ordinals are adjectives. The cardinals here given are, however, indeclinable, except ūnus, duo, trēs (see p. 321). The ordinals are declined like bonus, -a, -um.

Signs[1]	Cardinals (Telling how many)	Ordinals (Telling in what order)
I	ūnus, -a, -um	prīmus, -a, -um
II	dúo, m., dúae, f., dúo, n.	secúndus, -a, -um
III	trēs, m., f., tría, n.	tértius, -a, -um
IIII or IV	quáttuor	quārtus, -a, -um
V	quínque	quíntus, -a, -um
VI	sex	sextus, -a, -um
VII	séptem	séptimus, -a, -um
VIII	óctō	octāvus, -a, -um
VIIII or IX	nóvem	nōnus, -a, -um
X	décem	décimus, -a, -um

[1] These signs originated in holding up the fingers to indicate the numbers; — therefore the numbers from one to ten are called digits, from digitus, finger. I, the Roman sign for one, stands for one finger, II is for two fingers, V (representing the angle between the thumb and the rest of the hand) for five fingers (the whole hand), VI for the hand plus one finger, X for two hands (crossed), i.e. ten fingers, etc.

Signs	Cardinals	Ordinals
XI	ūndecim [1]	ūndécimus, -a, -um
XII	duódecim	duodécimus, -a, -um
XIII	trédecim	tértius décimus [2]
XIV	quattuórdecim	quārtus décimus [2]
XV	quíndecim	quíntus décimus [2]
XVI	sēdecim	séxtus décimus [2]
XVII	septéndecim	séptimus décimus [2]
XVIII	duodēvīgíntī [3]	duodēvīcēnsimus, [3] -a, -um
XVIIII or XIX	ūndēvīgíntī [3]	ūndēvīcēnsimus, [3] -a, -um
XX	vīgíntī	vīcēnsimus, -a, -um

222. Suggestions for Study. — On a sheet of paper place the Roman signs (I–XX), and opposite each write the cardinals and the ordinals marking long vowels and the accent.

SECOND SECTION

223. VOCABULARY XXIV

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
stir, stir up	excitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*excite, excit*able incite	incitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus
pleases	plácet, -ēre, plácuit, — (w. Dat.)	please
it displeases	dísplicet, -ēre, displícuit, — (w. Dat.)	displease

then, next	deínde	and so	ítaque
already	iam	no longer	nōn iam
even, also	étiam	therefore	ígitur
indeed, certainly, at least	quídem (postpositive)	but	sed

[1] Observe the numerals eleven to seventeen: ūndecim = ūnus + decem, duodecim = duo + decem, etc. In the numerals from thirteen to seventeen the ending -decim corresponds to -teen (i.e. ten) in English.

[2] Each of the two ordinals is declined; e.g. annō tertiō decimō, in the thirteenth year.

[3] duo-dē-vīgintī, two-from-twenty; ūn-dē-vīgintī, one-from-twenty; duo-dē-vīcēnsimus, two-from-twentieth; ūn-dē-vīcēnsimus, one-from-twentieth.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

224. A. 1. Prīmus quidem ōrātor incitātus erat agricolārum iniūriīs; dē hīs iniūriīs multa verba dīxit.

2. Deinde cum illō disputāvērunt longum tempus et secundus et tertius ōrātor.

3. Itaque hīs tribus ōrātiōnibus excitātus est populus ūniversus.

4. Etiam tunc Cicerō nōn vīsus est; tandem ex templō est ēductus ā cōnsule ipsō.

5. Ibi quīndecim equitēs et vīgintī peditēs ā frātre meō iam vīsī sunt.

B. 1. This judge, once upon a time, was more unjust than that friend of yours. 2. But no longer is the punishment of good men pleasing to him. 3. And so the seventh legion remained that summer in the same camp. 4. At last two farmers came hither from that place with three horses. 5. To Cicero indeed it was displeasing to be stirred (excitārī) by the shouts of bad men.

225. Derivation Exercise. — Find English words related to the Latin numerals ūnus to decem.

The Roman Public Baths

(Optional)

226. The magnificent Thermae, or Public Baths, were a great feature of Rome under the Empire. Among the most famous of these were the Baths of Caracalla (one of the halls of which is reproduced in the great central hall of the Pennsylvania Station in New York, N. Y.). The Baths of Caracalla could accommodate 1600 bathers at once. They had separate rooms for warm, hot, and cold baths. In the frigidarium, or room for the cold bath, was an immense swimming pool whose dimensions were approximately 172 × 78 feet.

The Roman Baths were great popular social centers; for connected with them were gymnasiums, lecture halls, libraries,

Interior of the Baths of Caracalla shaded walks, and fountains; they were beautified with precious marbles, painting, and sculpture, and they were practically free. In many ways they were like our modern clubs, community playgrounds, and the Y. M. C. A.

CHAPTER XXV (Review)

227. Vocabularies and Syntax. — (a) Review carefully Vocabularies XXI–XXIV. (b) Practice, for accuracy and speed, on concilium, cīvitās, labor, hic, īdem, ille, ipse, is, vocō, moneō, nūntiō, abdūcō, praemittō, duo, trēs, ūnus. (c) Review the Rules of Syntax for Chapters I–XXIV, pages 338–339.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XXIV

228. 1. Cui igitur frāter tuus ostendit illōs trēs librōs?

2. Itaque hanc aestātem Caesar in oppidō parvō cum quīnque legiōnibus manēbat.

3. Dīligentia et peditum et equitum ā cōnsule, virō dignissimō, laudābitur.

4. Nōnne erat imāgō aquilae signum decimae legiōnis?

5. Dux noster quattuor explōrātōrēs ad flūmen praemittere dēbet.

6. Sex annīs Gallia virtūte et labōre mīlitum Rōmānōrum pācāta erit.

7. Vērusne cīvitātis Rōmānae amīcus erat ille rēx?

8. Crēbrīs clāmōribus mīlitum revocābātur.

9. Num amīcus tuus erit iūstior quam meus pāter?

10. Illā quidem hieme dux timidus cum Gallīs proelium committere nōn ausus est.

A Christian Inscription

"Saturninus and Musa made this memorial for their beloved son."
(On the right Christ is represented as the good shepherd)

LATIN WORDS IN ENGLISH

(For Reference)

THE FORM OF LATIN WORDS IN ENGLISH

229. "About four fifths of all the borrowed words in our language we find to come from the Latin, either directly or through the French. The French language, indeed, consists almost wholly of Latin words, and the same thing is true of Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese. So if we take a word from any of these tongues, we are pretty apt to get one which was originally Latin. . . . While the basis of English is a Germanic dialect, not very different from what we call Low Dutch, more than half its words came from the Latin language. . . . Since so large a number of Latin words have been taken into English, we should learn to recognize borrowed Latin words when met in English. In this way a flood of light is poured on the meaning of a large part of our English speech."[1]

While many Latin words have been taken unchanged into English, most of the words from Latin have changed somewhat in form. These changes came about naturally and followed definite paths. The types of changes are illustrated by the following words.

I. Latin Words Unchanged in English

(A) Nouns — VILLA; ODIUM; PENINSULA; CAMERA; MILITIA; CONSUL; ORATOR; ARBOR; LABOR. (B) Adjectives — BONUS; ALBUM; MISER; PAUPER; NOSTRUM; MEDIUM. (C) Verbs — VETO.

---

[1] Cf. The Latin in English, pp. xii, xv, by Harry Pratt Judson, President of the University of Chicago.

II. Latin Words Changed in English

(A) Nouns

1. Base unchanged: ōrātiō, oration; signum, sign; verbum, verb; impedīmentum, impediment.

2. Base changed:

(a) pictūra, picture; fābula, fable; statua, statue; rosa, rose; nātūra, nature; lēgātus, legate; templum, temple.

A Roman Woman and Her Maid

(b) victōria, victory; iniūria, injury.

(c) prūdentia, prudence; dīligentia, diligence.

(d) aedificium, edifice (cf. officium, office); cōnsilium, counsel; concilium, council.

(e) lībertās, liberty; auctoritās, authority; dignitās, dignity.

(B) Adjectives

1. Base unchanged: longus, long; benignus, benign.

2. Base changed:

(a) prīmus, prime.

(b) Base, with change of spelling: secundus, second.

(c) ēgregius, egregious; barbarus, barbarous.

(C) Verbs

1. Verb root unchanged: respondeō, respond.

2. Verb root changed: (a) servō, preserve; ambulō, amble; implōrō, implore; convocō, convoke; comparō, compare; prōvideō, provide; prōdūcō, produce; explōrō, explore; disputō, dispute; excitō, excite; incitō, incite.

(b) exspectō, expect; dēterreō, deter; exclāmō, exclaim; sustineō (sub + teneō), sustain; repetō, repeat; committō, commit; occurrō, occur.

3. Base of the Perfect Passive Participle:

(a) condūcō, conduct; dimittō (di(s) + mittō), dismiss.

(b) līberō, liberate; nōminō, nominate; prōmittō, promise.

THE IMPORTANCE OF LATIN WORDS IN ENGLISH

230. We have been considering changes in the form of Latin words when taken into English. It now remains for us to see in the following selections how important these Latin words are. They will be found to carry the burden of the thought. In the following paragraph from the Declaration of Independence, words from Latin are underscored.

"When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political[1] bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation."

Read the passage aloud, but omit the Latin words. Is there any real meaning left in the paragraph?

In the following selection from President Wilson's Message to Congress, April 2, 1917, the English words from Latin are underscored.

"But the right is more precious than peace, and we shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts — for democracy,[1] for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments, for the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world itself at last free. To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the day has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured.[1] God helping her, she can do no other."

---

[1] From the Greek language.

Similarly in the following passages Latin words are underscored.

1. "The fact that what is called a complete English dictionary contains three Latin or Greek derivations to one word from a Saxon or any other Gothic source, shows us that to the educated man the livest part of his language, so far as science and the higher order of things are concerned, is the Latin and Greek contingent." — Dr. W. T. Harris, late U. S. Commissioner of Education.

2. "A cultural education must include the classics." — Theodore Roosevelt.

3. "We should have scant capital to trade on were we to throw away the wisdom we have inherited and seek our fortunes with the slender stock we ourselves have accumulated. This, it seems to me, is the real, the prevalent argument for holding every man we can to the intimate study of the ancient classics. . . . What you cannot find a substitute for is the classics as literature; and there can be no first hand contact with that literature if you will not master the grammar[1] and the syntax[1] which convey its subtle power." — Woodrow Wilson.

4. "A mastery of the literature and the history of the ancient world makes every one fitter to excel than he would have been without it. . . . Let no one be afraid of the name, 'dead languages.' No language is dead which perfectly conveys thoughts that are alive and are as full of energy[1] now as they ever were." — Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador from Great Britain to the United States.

---

[1] From the Greek language.

Accipere quam facere iniūriam praestat. (Cicero)
It is better to suffer wrong than to do it

CHAPTER XXVI

THIRD CONJUGATION: VERBS ENDING IN -IŌ

FIRST SECTION

231. Third Conjugation Verbs in -iō. — Certain verbs in -iō have the Present Infinitive in -ĕre and are called "-iō verbs of the Third Conjugation." Verbs in -iō, with the infinitive in -ĕre, are conjugated like cápiō, I take. The Principal Parts of capiō are: cápiō, cápere, cēpī, cáptus.

Indicative Active		Indicative Passive
Present: I take, etc.		Present: I am taken, etc.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
1. cápiō	cápimus	1. cápior	cápimur
2. cápis	cápitis	2. cápĕris	capímini
3. cápit	cápiunt	3. cápitur	capiúntur
Imperfect: I was taking, etc.		Imperfect: I was being taken, etc.
1. capiēbam	capiēbāmus	1. capiēbar	capiēbāmur
2. capiēbās	capiēbātis	2. capiēbāris	capiēbāminī
3. capiēbat	capiēbant	3. capiēbātur	capiēbántur
Future: I shall take, etc.		Future: I shall be taken, etc.
1. cápiam	capiēmus	1. cápiar	capiēmur
2. cápiēs	capiētis	2. capiēris	capiēminī
3. cápiet	cápient	3. capiētur	capiéntur

Indicative Active		Indicative Passive
Perfect: I took, or I have taken, etc.		Perfect: I was taken, or have been taken, etc.
Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
1. cēpī	cēpimus	1. captus sum	captī sumus
2. cēpistī	cēpistis	2. captus es	captī estis
3. cēpit	cēpērunt (-ēre)	3. captus est	captī sunt
Pluperfect: I had taken, etc.		Pluperfect: I had been taken, etc.
1. cēperam	cēperāmus	1. captus eram	captī erāmus
2. cēperās	cēperātis	2. captus erās	captī erātis
3. cēperat	cēperant	3. captus erat	captī erant
Future Perfect: I shall have taken, etc.		Future Perfect: I shall have been taken, etc.
1. cēperō	cēpérimus	1. captus erō	captī érimus
2. cēperis	cēpéritis	2. captus éris	captī éritis
3. cēperit	cēperint	3. captus érit	captī érunt

232. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write a synopsis, with the meanings. 3. Conjugate the Present, Imperfect, and Future Active of fugiō, I flee, and faciō, I make.

SECOND SECTION

233. VOCABULARY XXVI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
preserve	cōnsérvō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	conservation
call out	évocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	evoke
recall	révocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	revoke
order	iúbeō, -ēre, iússī, iússus
show	osténdō, -ere, osténdī, osténtus	*ostent*atious accept, receive	accípiō, -ere, accēpī, accéptus	*accept*able
take, accept	excípiō, -ere, excēpī, excéptus	*except*ion
begin, undertake	incípiō, -ere, incēpī, incéptus	incipient
intercept, cut off	intercípiō, -ere, intercēpī, intercéptus	interception

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
desire	cúpiō, -ere, cupīvī (cúpiī), cupītus	*cupi*dity
do, make	fáciō, -ere, fēcī, fáctus	*fact*ory, *fact*or act, deed	fáctum, -ī, n.	fact
flee	fúgiō, -ere, fūgī, fugitūrus	*fugit*ive
flight	fúga, -ae, f.
throw, hurl	iáciō, -ere, iēcī, iáctus	pro*ject*ile
understand, see through	perspíciō, -ere, perspéxī, perspéctus	*perspic*uous
snatch	rápiō, -ere, rápuī, ráptus	*rapi*d, *rapt*ure
snatch away	ērípiō, -ere, ērípuī, ēréptus

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

234. A. 1. Iam haec legiō in peditēs Gallōs tēla iaciēbat; subitō iussa est equitēs barbarōs intercipere. 2. Exercitus Rōmānus multā cum celeritāte hōs servōs timidōs in fugam dabit. 3. Facta ēgregia decimae legiōnis ā Caesare praemia dignissima accipient. 4. Nōnne multa tēla iēcimus in mūrum? 5. Prīmum ille lēgātus tertiam legiōnem ex oppidō ēvocāvit; deinde et tertiam et quīntam legiōnem ad flūmen convocāvit; sed tandem Caesar ipse eum cum hīs cōpiīs in oppidum revocāvit.

B. 1. This disloyal scout began to lead the fifth legion away from the river. 2. We had not at that time seen through the evil plans of the leader, had we? 3. The Gallic chief snatched two arrows away from the soldier. 4. The kind leader desired to save the inhabitants of this town, but many had already fled. 5. This soldier will carry the standard to Caesar himself.

A Grecian Urn

235. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Find, with the help of the dictionary, five English words related to capiō and arrange them in the notebook.

CHAPTER XXVII

LATIN PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

FIRST SECTION

236. Latin Prefixes. — Many English words have been formed by means of prefixes; thus from "turn" was formed "re-turn," with the Latin prefix re- (back, again), and from "make," "re-make." Such a built-up word is called a compound. Many English compound words come from Latin compound words. In the English "a-vert," turn away, we find the Latin prefix ā (ab), away from + vertō, turn. Other familiar compounds are "re-vert," "con-vert," "in-vert"; also "ab-dicate," "con-voke," "ex-cite," "de-port." These and numerous other Latin prefixes appear in English. The following prefixes, already learned, are assembled here for special study.

ā-, ab- (also abs-, au-), away-from: āmittō, I send away, lose.
ad-,[1] to, towards: admittō, I send to, admit.
con- (also com-, col-, and co-), together, with: cōnscrībō, I enroll.
con- (intensive): cōnfirmō, I make very strong.
dē-, from, down-from: dēdūcō, I lead down.
ē-, ex-, from, out-from: exportō, I carry out, export.
in- (also im-, il-), into, in, on: importō, I carry into, import.
in- (also im-) negative, not: inimīcus (in + amīcus), unfriendly, inīquus (in + aequus), unjust.

NOTE. — We have also met the Latin prefixes dis- (dī-), ob- (oc-), per-, prae-, prō-, and re- (red-). These were explained at their first appearance. The following Latin compounds will serve to recall them to mind:

dīmittō	obsideō	perdūcō	praemittō	prōcēdō	recēdō
discēdō	occīdō	perspiciō	praesidium	prōvideō	redigō

[1] In compounds, if ad comes before a consonant, the d usually changes to that consonant.

237. Exercise. — (a) With reference to each of the following compounds, answer three questions: 1. What is the simple verb? 2. What is the prefix? 3. What thought has the prefix contributed to the meaning of the word?

abdūcō	cōgō	cōnfirmō	dēligō	excipiō
absum	committō	cōnscrībō	ēdūcō	expugnō
accipiō	comportō	cōnservō	ēripiō	exspectō
adsum	condūcō	convocō	ēvocō	incipiō

(b) Form five Latin verbs from the simple verb dūcō by using the prefixes ad-, con-, dē-, ē-, and in-. State the meaning of each compound. In the same way form as many compounds as you can from mittō and portō, stating the meanings in each case.

(c) In each of the following English words, state (1) the prefix, and (2) what the prefix has contributed to the meaning of the word. Consult an English dictionary.

abnormal	collision	coöperate	illuminate
accept	condemn	deduct	immigrate
addition	contract	emigrate	intransitive

(d) Write, with meanings, five English words to illustrate the use of each of the following prefixes: a- (ab-), ad-, con-, de-, e- (ex-), in-. State what is contributed by the prefix in each word.

SECOND SECTION

238. Latin Suffixes. — Examine carefully each of the words in the following Table of Suffixes. Learn the effect of each suffix upon the meaning, and associate each derivative with the word to which it is related.

A. Nouns Formed from Verbs

Action Nouns. — 1. -OR forms nouns denoting activity, condition, or state: TIMOR. fear (timeō. I fear), i.e. the act of fearing. CLĀMOR, shout (clāmō, I shout), i.e. the act of shouting.

2. -TOR indicates the agent or doer: ŌRĀTOR, orator, speaker (ōrō, I speak, ask), i.e. the one who does the speaking. EXPLŌRĀTOR, one who investigates, scout (explōrō, I investigate), i.e. the one who does the investigating.

B. Nouns Formed from Other Nouns

Condition or Quality Nouns. — 1. -TŪS forms nouns denoting a condition or quality: VIRTŪS, manliness (vir, man), i.e. the condition or quality of being a true man. SERVITŪS, slavery (servus, slave), i.e. the condition or quality of being a slave.

2. -TĀS forms nouns denoting a quality, condition, or characteristic: AUCTŌRITĀS, authority (auctor, adviser), i.e. the characteristic of being an adviser. CĪVITĀS, citizenship (cīvis, citizen), i.e. the condition of being a citizen.

3. -IA forms nouns denoting condition: MĪLITIA, military service (mīles, soldier), i.e. the condition of being a soldier.

C. Nouns Formed from Adjectives

Condition or Quality Nouns. — 1. -TĀS forms nouns denoting condition or quality: LĪBERTĀS, freedom (līber, free), i.e. the condition of being free. DIGNITĀS, worth (dīgnus, worthy), i.e. the quality of being worthy. CELERITĀS, swiftness (celer, swift), i.e. the quality of being swift. VĒRITĀS, truth (vērus, true), i.e. the quality of being true.

A Roman Medallion

2. -IA and -TIA form nouns denoting condition or quality: MEMORIA, memory (memor, mindful), i.e. the condition or quality of being mindful. AMĪCITIA, friendship (amīcus, friendly), i.e. the condition or quality of being a friend. IŪSTITIA, justice (iūstus, just), i.e. the condition or quality of being just. PRŪDENTIA, prudence (prūdēns, prudent), i.e. the condition or quality of being prudent. DĪLIGENTIA, care (dīligēns, careful), i.e. the condition or quality of being careful.

Sōlem enim ē mundō tollere videntur quī amīcitiam ē vītā tollunt. (Cicero)
For they who take friendship out of life seem to take the sun from heaven

CHAPTER XXVIII

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN · AGREEMENT OF THE RELATIVE

FIRST SECTION

239. Use of the Relative Pronoun in English. — The forms of the relative pronoun in English are who, which, that, and what. Clauses introduced by relative pronouns are called Relative Clauses, thus :

(1) I saw the boy who (or that) was standing near the temple. Here the main clause is I saw the boy; the relative clause describes the boy. The relative pronoun who is the Subject of the verb in the relative clause, and is in the Nominative case. Its antecedent boy is the Object of the main verb, and is in the Objective case. Since the relative stands in place of its antecedent boy, it is, like boy, masculine and third person singular (as is shown by the verb). Thus we see that the relative agrees with its antecedent in gender, person, and number, but its case is determined by its use in the relative clause, and is not necessarily the same as that of its antecedent.

A Roman Medallion

240. The Relative Pronoun in Latin. — The relative pronoun in Latin, quī, m., quae, f., quod, n., who, which, that, and what, is declined as follows:

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	quī	quae	quod	quī	quae	quae
Gen.	cuius [1]	(all genders)		quōrum	quārum	quōrum
Dat.	cui [2]	(all genders)		quibus	(all genders)
Acc.	quem	quam	quod	quōs	quās	quae
Abl.	quō	quā	quō	quibus	(all genders)

English Meanings

Nominative:	who (P), which (T), that (P, T), what (T)
Genitive:	whose (P), of whom (P), of which (T)
Dative:	to or for whom (P), to or for which (T)
Accusative:	whom (P), which (T), that (P, T), what (T)
Ablative:	from whom (P), from which (T), from what (T)

The English forms used in referring to persons are marked P; those used with things are marked T; those used either with persons or things are marked P, T.

The Emperor Trajan goes to dedicate his Forum
(Trajan is the figure in high relief at the right)

[1] Pronounced cŏŏ-yus.

[2] Pronounced cŏŏ-i (kwi).

241. The Use of the Relative Pronoun in Latin. — Translate the following examples:

1. Puerum vīdī quī ad templum stābat. (Subject)
2. Haec puella parva cuius māter ē vītā excessit. (Poss. Gen.)
3. Hic est miles cui dux praemia dedit. (Indir. Obj.)
4. Bellum, quod[1] cum Germānīs gessērunt, longum fuit. (Object)
5. Gladius quō miles sē dēfendit longus est. (Abl. of Means)
6. Frāter meus, quōcum[2] ad urbem vēnī. (Abl. of Accom.)
7. Eā aestāte, quā pater ad bellum vocātus est. (Abl. of Time When)
8. Cīvēs, ā quibus urbs dēfēnsa erat, laudātī sunt. (Abl. of Agent)
9. Vulnera, quibus labōrābat, erant plūrima. (Abl. of Cause)
10. (a) Ego, quī amīcus sum, dīxī. (Antecedent, First Per.) (b) Tū, quī amīcus es, dīxistī. (Antecedent, Second Per.)
    (c) Ille, quī amīcus est, dīxit. (Antecedent, Third Per.)

242. Rule. — In Latin a relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, person, and number, but its case is determined by its use in the Relative clause.

243. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. The Veneti had many boats with which they sailed to Britain. 2. This woman whose son was killed in battle is always grieving (doleō). 3. We who were present thanked him. 4. What (quae, n. Acc. pl.) we learned concerning the war terrified us. 5. We praise the man who (or that) fights in behalf of (prō) his country. 6. I have already read the book (lībrum quem) you gave me. 7. We have already read the books you gave us.

---

[1] In English, the relative pronoun, if used in the objective case, may be omitted. In Latin the relative pronoun is never omitted.

[2] See footnote 2, page 114, and footnote 3, page 126.

The Alban Hills (150)

To the right is the Tomb of Caecilia Metella, on the Appian Way

SECOND SECTION

244. VOCABULARY XXVIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
children	līberī, -ōrum, m.
go to, advance	accēdō, -ere, accessī, accessūrus	accede, accession
yield, give up	concēdō, -ere, concessī, concessūrus	concede, concession
go away, depart	discēdō, -ere, discessī, discessūrus
go out	excēdō, -ere, excessī, excessūrus	exceed, excessive
go forward, advance	prōcēdō, -ere, prōcessī, prōcessūrus	proceed, procession
go back	recēdō, -ere, recessī, recessūrus	recede, recess, recessional
come up, succeed	succēdō, -ere, successī, successūrus	succeed, success
struggle, hasten	conténdō, -ere, contendī, conténtum	contend, contention
fight	dīmicō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum
hurry	próperō, -āre, -āvī, —

TRANSLATION EXERCISES[1]

245. A. 1. Prīmum Aenēās ā patriā discessit; deinde ad multās terrās nāvigāvit; tandem ad Italiam accessit. 2. Quod nōmen habēbat eius fīlius? 3. Iam Aenēās ē vītā excesserat; cuius fīlius, nōmine Ascanius, ad rēgnum patris successit. 4. Sed posteā Amūlius, rēx inīquus, quī ipse fīliōs nōn habēbat, nōlēbat (was unwilling) rēgnum duōbus fīliīs Rhēae Silviae concēdere. 5. Itaque hōs līberōs servī posuērunt in

[1] First read the marginal summary in 246, and observe in the text the Latin equivalents of the proper names. See the footnotes.

"The Shepherd," a Roman Painting
(From the tomb of Statilius Taurus, of about the time of Vergil)

arcā ligneā,[1] ad flūmen properāvērunt, et arcam in aquam coniēcērunt.

B. 1. Who saved the children, Romulus and Remus? 2. Whither did the kind shepherd[2] carry them? 3. Afterwards Romulus built a town near the river, and the name of this town was Rome. 4. The Romans had seized the Sabine women; therefore the Sabines went out from many towns and fought with them. 5. At last the Sabine women hastened to go to the battle; peace was made; the Sabine men went back to their own (sua) towns.

LATIN SELECTION

246. The Founding of Rome

Aeneas comes from Troy.

Ubi (when) Trōia ā Graecīs occupāta est, Aenēās patriam relīquit et ad Italiam paucīs cum sociīs nāvigāvit. Quī in Italiā ā rēge Latīnō in amīcitiam acceptus est.

Ascanius builds Alba Longa on the Alban Hills.

Postquam (after) Aenēās ē vītā excessit, Ascanius, fīlius eius, rēgnum excēpit et Albam Longam, oppidum novum, aedificāvit.

[1] See footnote 2, p. 153.

[2] See footnote 4, p. 153.

King Amulius sets Romulus and Remus adrift upon the Tiber.

Post multōs annōs Amūlius frātrem suum occīdere, quī rēx erat Albānōrum, cōnsilium cēpit et rēgnum occupāvit. Sed fīlia rēgis fīliōs duōs parvulōs[1] habuit, quōs Amūlius in animō habēbat occīdere. Itaque hōs, quōrum nōmina erant Rōmulus et Remus, in arcā ligneā[2] posuit arcamque in flūmen coniēcit. Tum in hīs locīs vāstae sōlitūdines[3] erant.

The floating cradle grounds on the river bank. A wolf befriends the children; a shepherd rescues them.

Pater autem (however) puerōrum erat deus; quī eōs et (also) servāvit. Ad rīpam (bank) enim flūminis, ubi (where) arca relīcta erat, lupam (wolf) mīsit; quae puerōs parvulōs dēfendēbat. Eōs tandem vīdit pāstor[4] benignus, quī suscēpit eōs et ad vīllam suam parvam sēcum portāvit.

Romulus and Remus found Rome.

Rōmulus et Remus, cum prīmum (as soon as) virī fuērunt, Amūlium, rēgem illum malum, occīdērunt rēgnumque Numitōrī dedērunt. Deinde oppidum suum ad illud flūmen, in eō ipsō locō ubi servātī erant, posuērunt. Huius oppidī nōmen erat Rōma.

How the Romans won their Sabine wives.

In eō oppidō nōn erant multae fēminae. Itaque Rōmānī Sabīnōs, quī nōn longē habitābant, cum fēminīs et fīliābus ad spectaculum (a public show) invītāvērunt (invited). Fīliās Sabīnōrum cēpērunt et in mātrimōnium dūxērunt (married). Ea fuit causa bellī cum Sabīnīs, sed fēminae pācem implōrāvērunt.

---

[1] parvulus, -a, -um (diminutive of parvus, -a, -um, small), very small, tiny.

[2] arca lignea, a chest of wood (cf. English "ark").

[3] sōlitūdō, sōlitūdinis, f., "solitude."

[4] pāstor, pāstōris, m. (from pāscō, I feed), lit., one who feeds, shepherd (cf. English "pastor," "pasture").

Vīta sine litterīs mors est. — Life without learning is death

CHAPTER XXIX

TEMPORAL CLAUSES WITH POSTQUAM, UBI, DUM· CAUSAL CLAUSES WITH QUOD, QUIA

FIRST SECTION

247. Temporal Clauses. — In the complex sentence, I saw your brother after I received your letter, the principal clause is I saw your brother. The past tense (I saw) expresses the action of the verb merely as in the past; the particular time referred to in the past is not indicated. The subordinate clause, after I received your letter, indicates more definitely (or defines) the time referred to by the principal clause, and is, therefore, called a Temporal clause; it is introduced by a temporal conjunction (after). Other Temporal conjunctions are when and while.

These Temporal conjunctions in Latin are: postquam, after; ubi, when; and dum, while.

EXAMPLES OF TEMPORAL CLAUSES

1. Postquam epistulam tuam accēpī, frātrem tuum vīdī, After I received your letter, I saw your brother.

2. Ubi eum vīdī, dē frātre tuō rogāvī, When I saw him, I asked about your brother.

3. Dum in Italiā sum, multa oppida pulcherrima vīdī, While I was in Italy, I saw many very beautiful towns.

248. Rules. — 1. A Temporal clause introduced by postquam, after, or ubi, when, if it refers to past time, generally has the Perfect Indicative, which is often translated by the English "Past Perfect."

2 A Temporal clause introduced by dum, while, if it refers to past time, regularly has the "vivid Present" Indicative, which is usually translated by the English "Past Progressive."

249. Causal Clauses. — In the complex sentence, We fight for our country, because we love liberty, the principal clause is we fight for our country. The verb we fight expresses the action as a fact, that is, as true at the time of speaking (the present). The subordinate clause, because we love liberty, gives the cause or reason of the action expressed in the principal clause, and is, therefore, called a Causal clause. It is introduced by a Causal conjunction (because). The verb, we love (Present Indicative), expresses the action of the verb as a fact, that is, as true at the time of speaking (the present).

The sentence becomes in Latin: Prō patriā nostrā pugnāmus, quod (or quia) lībertātem amāmus.[1]

EXAMPLES OF CAUSAL CLAUSES

1. Rēx Rōmānōs vincere nōn potuit, quod Horātius pontem dēfendit, The king could not conquer the Romans, because Horatius defended the bridge.

2. Patriam nostram amāmus, quia nostra est, We love our country, because it is ours.

3. Illōs discipulōs, quod fidī sunt, laudāmus, We praise those pupils, because they are faithful.

---

[1] Instead of a subordinate (causal) clause we may use a coördinate statement with the conjunction nam, for, or enim (postpositive), for, thus: Prō patriā nostrā pugnāmus, nam lībertātem (or lībertātem enim) amāmus.

250. Rule. — A Causal clause introduced by quod or quia, because, has the Indicative to assert the reason as a fact.

251. VOCABULARY XXIX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
apply, employ	adhíbeō, -ére, -uī, -itus	Cf. habeō, 112.
hold together, confine	contíneō, -ére, -uī, conténtus	contain, content
alarm, excite	commóveō, -ére, commōvī, commōtus	*commo*tion
arouse, disturb	permóveō, -ére, permōvī, permōtus
throw to, add	adíciō, -ere, adiēcī, adiéctus	*adject*ive
hurl	coníciō, -ere, coniēcī, coniéctus	*conject*ure
throw into, inspire	iníciō, -ere, iniēcī, iniéctus	inject
throw against, oppose	obíciō, -ere, obiēcī, obiéctus	*object, objec*tion
throw forward	prōíciō, -ere, prōiēcī, prōiéctus	*project, projec*tion
throw back	reíciō, -ere, reiēcī, reiéctus	*reject, rejec*tion
throw across, pierce	trāíciō, -ere, trāiēcī, trāiéctus

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES[1]

252. A. 1. Ubi Porsena, rēx Etrūscus, multōs et peditēs et equitēs in (against) incolās Rōmae dūxit, Horātius pontem dēfendit. 2. Magnō timōre Rōmānī commovēbantur, quod mūrī nōn erant firmī; multam dīligentiam adhibēbant; mūrōs cōnfirmābant. 3. Sed Iāniculum oppidī mūrīs nōndum (not yet) inclūsum (inclosed) erat; novum mūrum Rōmānī obicere Etrūscīs[1] nōn poterant. 4. Postquam igitur Porsena Iāniculum cum celeritāte occupāvit, magnus timor Rōmānīs[1] iniectus est. 5. Tandem Etrūscī ad pontem accessērunt; hic pōns ab Horātiō dēfendēbātur; eius virtūs Rōmānīs[1] multum adiēcit animum.

[1] First read the marginal summary in 253, and observe in the text the Latin equivalents of the proper names. See the footnotes.

Etruscan Gate at Volterra

B. 1. The three Romans dared to fight with a great number of Etruscans. 2. Porsena's soldiers hurled many weapons Horatius was not disturbed, but dared to defend the bridge. 3. When the bridge fell (cecidit, fr. cadō) into the river, Horatius threw himself forward into the water. 4. Horatius himself was not wounded, but his friend was pierced by an arrow. 5. At last the forces of Porsena were thrown back; Rome was saved.

LATIN SELECTION

253. Horatius Defends the Bridge

The enemy approach.

Dum Tarquinius Superbus[2] cum Rōmānīs bellum gerit, auxilium Porsenae, rēgis Etrūscō-

[1] Dative with the compound verb.

[2] Cf. p. 5.

rum,[1] petiit; quī auxilium dedit et multōs mīlitēs contrā (against) Rōmānōs dūxit et Iāniculum[2] occupāvit.

The Romans fight and flee.

Magnō in perīculō erat Rōma. Agricolae cum līberīs in oppidum properāvērunt et mūrōs cōnfirmāre contendērunt. Porsena ipse suōs dūxit et cum Rōmānīs proelium commīsit. Rōmānī magnā cum fortitūdine pugnābant, sed tandem ad pontem fugiēbant, ubi autem stābat Horātius.

Horatius and his two comrades must "keep the bridge."

Iam Porsena cum multīs mīlitibus ad pontem accedēbat. Horātius tamen (nevertheless) manēbat et cum duōbus sociīs, quod reliquī Rōmānī magnō timōre iam discesserant, pontem contrā tantam (so great) multitūdinem dēfendere audēbat.

"Brave Horatius stands alone."

Postquam Rōmānī trāns flūmen fūgērunt, pontem rescindere (to cut down) contendērunt — id enim Horātius iusserat. Tum Horātius sociōs dīmīsit et ipse sōlus mānsit.

The Romans cut down the bridge. Horatius swims to safety.

Neque multō post magna pārs pontis in flūmen cecidit (fell). Tum dēmum (at length) Horātius in flūmine salūtem petiit. Tēla multa Etrūscī iēcērunt, ille tamen sine vulneribus trānāvit (swam across).

Suggested Reading: Macaulay, Lays of Ancient Rome, "Horatius."

---

[1] Etrūscus, -a, -um, Etruscan. Etruria is north of the Tiber. Cf. map facing p. 62.

[2] Iāniculum, n., a hill across the Tiber from early Rome. Cf. map, p. 100.

Horatius at the Bridge

CHAPTER XXX (Review)

254. Vocabularies and Syntax. — (a) Review carefully Vocabularies XXVI–XXIX. (b) Practice, for accuracy and speed, on terra, hortus, templum, cōnsilium, mīles, aestās, pater, flūmen, tempus, ego, tū, hic, ille, īdem, is, ipse, quis, quī, bonus, vocō, moneō, habeō, regō, capiō, sum, possum. (c) Review the Rules of Syntax, I–XXIX, pp. 338–339.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters I–XXIX

255. Be prepared for oral and written work. Parse the words in heavy-faced type.

1. Num Appiō Claudiō Caecō[1] dōna lēgātī placēbant? 2. Cōnsulisne equus in illō proeliō sagittā trāiectus est? 3. Nōnne Pyrrhus ipse eā hieme multōs mīlitēs ex Italiā ēdūxit? 4. Haec pōma putrida maculāvērunt illa bona pōma; itaque malī amīcī certē puerōs bonōs maculābunt. 5. Prīmum Rōmulus et Remus in arcā ligneā sunt positī; deinde haec arca ā servīs Amūlī in flūmen coniecta est. 6. Porsena, rēx Etrūscōrum, cum Rōmānīs proelium commīsit; eōs cum celeritāte in fugam dedit. 7. Quis studet trēs annōs in Galliā bellum gerere? 8. Elisabētha in lutum prōcēdere nōn cupiēbat; imprōvīsō iuvenis ēgregius accessit; novum pallium subitō in viam prōiēcit. 9. Īnfīdōs mīlitēs iūdicī ad supplicium dabimus. 10. Populus ā rēge convocātus est; deinde hic dīxit: "Ille homō nōn est medicus, sed sūtor impudīcissimus."

256. Derivation Exercise, Type III. — Select five words related to dīcō, and after each write an English sentence in which the word is correctly used. Arrange this exercise, when approved by the teacher, in the notebook, following the model:

[1] See 257.

mittō, mittere, mīsī, missus — send mission — He was sent on a mission to Europe.

missionary — He was sent as a missionary to China.
missive — The letter was a formidable missive.
missile — Stones were the missiles of early warfare.
transmit — They will transmit the message to us.
remission — He preached the remission of sins.
commit — It was committed to his care.
submit — They submitted to the inevitable.
submissive — The slave was not submissive omit — Omit the non-essential.

LATIN SELECTIONS

257. King Pyrrhus' Envoy Comes to Rome

King Pyrrhus wishes peace. His envoy Cineas tries bribery.

Pyrrhus, rēx Ēpīrī, quī cum Rōmānīs bellum gesserat [280 B.C.], tandem pācem facere studēbat. Itaque lēgātum, nōmine Cīneam, dē pāce mīsit. Cīneās, lēgātus rēgis, in animō habēbat dōna magna senātōribus (senators) Rōmānīs dare. [Hōc modō pācem cōnfirmāre rēgēs saepe student.] Sed Rōmānī dōna rēgis nōn accēpērunt.

Pyrrhus

The Greek king who assisted the Greek cities of Southern Italy against Rome. He was one of the best generals of antiquity and as chivalrous as brave.

In the senate house Appius Claudius the Dum in cūriā (senate house) Cīneās et virtūtem Pyrrhī laudat et Blind raises his voice against peace.

dē pāce multa dīcit, senātōrēs prīmum pācem facere cupiēbant. Tandem in cūriam ab amīcīs ductus est Appius Claudius Caecus — id cognōmen (particular name) eī propter caecitātem (blindness) datum erat. Contrā (against) pācem ōrātiōnem habuit[1] et senātōrēs iussit lēgātum rēgis dīmittere, neque verba facere dē pācis condiciōnibus (terms).

The senate refuses peace.

Permōtī sunt senātōrēs verbīs Appī et lēgātō respondērunt, "Dum in Italiā rēx cum multīs mīlitibus manet, Rōmānī nōn possunt cum illō pācem facere. Prīmum necesse est Pyrrhum ex Italiā in Ēpīrum recēdere."

The envoy reports to the king.

Lēgātus, quī pācem facere nōn potuerat, ad rēgem discessit et dīxit, "Rōma est templum et senātōrēs Rōmānī sunt rēges."

Suggested Readings:

Greek Cities in Southern Italy, Morey, Roman History.
The War with King Pyrrhus, Morey, Roman History.
Plutarch, Lives, "Pyrrhus."

---

258. The Romans Occupy Tarentum

The Romans declare war on Tarentum.

Tarentum urbs (city) magna et pulchra fuit in Italiā. Incolae eius urbis erant Graecī; multās enim urbēs et in Italiā et in Siciliā Graecī habēbant. Eam urbem Rōmānī occupāvērunt [272 B.C.]. Tarentīnī (the Tarentines) iniūriam fēcerant lēgātīs Rōmānīs quī dē commerciō vēnerant. Quā dē causā Rōmānī Tarentīnīs bellum indīxērunt.

King Pyrrhus helps Tarentum.

Tarentīnī auxilium petiērunt ā Pyrrhō, quī erat rēx Ēpīrī et orīginem suam ab Achille (Achilles) trāxit (traced). Pyrrhus in Italiam cum multīs

[1] ōrātiōnem habēre: to make a speech, to speak.

Coins of the Greek City of Tarentum
(Issued 500–350 B.C.)

mīlitibus et elephantīs vēnit. Tum prīmum Rōmānī cum trānsmarīnō hoste dīmicāvērunt. Contrā rēgem missus est Pūblius Valerius Laevīnus, quī tum erat cōnsul.

The Roman consul captures Pyrrhus' scouts.

Explōrātōrēs Pyrrhī ubi Laevīnus cēpit, per castra Rōmāna dūxit et mīlitēs Rōmānōs eīs ostendit. Deinde ad rēgem illōs remīsit. Explōrātōrēs rēgī dīxērunt: "Captī sumus et, postquam per castra Rōmāna ductī sumus, remissī sumus. Mīlitēs Rōmānōs vīdimus; quī magnā cum fortitūdine pugnābunt."

Pyrrhus' elephants win the battle.

Paulō post (a little later) proelium commissum est. Pyrrhus tandem vīcit auxiliō elephantōrum, quōs Rōmānī numquam anteā vīderant et equī timēbant. Postquam nox proeliō fīnem dedit, Laevīnus per noctem fūgit.

Pyrrhus treats his captives with chivalry.

Multī Rōmānī captī sunt; quōs Pyrrhus magnō honōre tractāvit (treated). Multī occīsī erant, quōrum corpora sepelīrī (to be buried) iussit. Ubi suōs mortuōs (dead) vīdit, caelum (sky) suspexit cum hāc vōce:

"Altera (another) victōria tālis (such) nōs perdet (will be our ruin)."

(End of First Half Year)

Virtūtum amīcitia adiūtrīx ā nātūrā data est. (Cicero)
Friendship was given by Nature as a helpmeet of the virtues

CHAPTER XXXI

FOURTH CONJUGATION: AUDIŌ · EXPRESSIONS OF CAUSE

FIRST SECTION

259. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the synopsis of capiō in the Indicative, Active and Passive side by side. 2. Conjugate each tense twice, testing your speed.

260. Fourth Conjugation. — Verbs of the Fourth Conjugation end in -iō (e.g. aúdiō, I hear). The Present Infinitive Active ends in -īre (e.g. audíre, to hear). The Perfect Indicative Active regularly ends in -īvī (e.g. audīvī, I have heard, I heard). The Perfect Passive Participle regularly ends in -ītus (e.g. audītus, -a, -um, having been heard). The characteristic vowel is ī. Learn the Indicative Active, page 333.

A Coin of Vespasian
(Reverse of Coin on page 88)

261. Observe. — In the Present Indicative Active of capiō (an -iō verb of the Third Conjugation) the i of the Present stem (capi-) is short in all the forms; in audiō (Fourth Conjugation) the ī of the Present stem (audī-) is long, except before a vowel, and in audit, he hears. All verbs in -iō are alike in the Imperfect Indicative and in the Future Indicative.

262. VOCABULARY XXXI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
penalty	poéna, -ae, f.	*pen*al
illness	aegritūdō, -tūdinis, f.[1]
guard, watchman	cústōs, custōdis, m.	*custod*ian, *custod*y
keep watch	vígilō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*vigil*ant
laugh, laugh at	rīdeō, -ēre, rīsī, rīsus	de*rid*e, *rid*icule
it is permitted	lícet, -ēre, lícuit, lícitum est	il*licit*
send back	remíttō, -ere, remīsī, remíssus	remit, remiss
assign, distribute	tríbuō, -ere, tríbuī, tribūtus	tribute, con*tribute*
conquer	víncō, -ere, vīcī, víctus	con*vince*, con*vict*
sleep	dórmiō, -īre, dórmiī, dormítum	*dorm*ant, *dormit*ory
fortify	mūniō, -īre, -iī, -ītus	am*munit*ion
punish	pūniō, -īre, -iī, -ītus	*punit*ive, im*punit*y
come	véniō, -īre, vēnī, véntum	*vent*ure, adv*ent*ure
come together, meet	convéniō, -īre, convēnī, convéntus	convene, convent
come through, arrive	pervéniō, -īre, pervēnī, pervéntum
against	cóntrā (prep. w. Acc.)	pro and con (contra),
never	númquam (adv.)

SECOND SECTION

263. Expressions of Cause. — The English sentence

A B

The soldier is suffering because-of-wounds states a fact (A), and the cause for that fact (B). We may also say: The soldier is suffering from, or on-account-of, or as-a-result-of, wounds. Thus we see that in English we have several phrases to express a cause or reason. Each of these phrases conveys about the same idea.

[1] Associate the noun aegritūdō, illness, with the adjective aeger, aegra, aegrum, ill. The suffix -tūdō expresses a quality or condition. (Cf. the suffixes -tūs, -tās, -ia, 238). The English suffix "-tude" represents the Latin suffix -tūdō, as in "fort*itude*," from fortitūdō, bravery.

This sentence becomes in Latin: Mīles vulneribus (or propter vulnera, or ob vulnera, or ex vulneribus) labōrat. Thus we see that in Latin the cause may be expressed in several ways, but with practically the same meaning.

264. Rule. — Cause is expressed in Latin by the Ablative alone; by ob or propter with the Accusative; by ē (ex) or dē[1] with the Ablative.

265. Exercise. — Express in Latin in four ways: 1. The town suffers from lack of grain. 2. He fled on account of fear.

A Roman Traveling Carriage

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

266. A. 1. Custōdī nōn licet dormīre. 2. Ob fugam hunc mīlitem timidum pūnīre dēbent. 3. Octāva enim legiō Fabiō lēgātō ā duce tribūta erat. 4. Ille vir miser propter aegritūdinem semper vigilābat. 5. Iam barbarī ad flūmen convēnērunt; hūc pervenient cum celeritāte; vincentne mīlitēs Rōmānōs? 6. Rīdēbis verba mea, et licet rīdēre.

[1] e.g. multīs dē causīs: for (from) many reasons; quā dē causā? for what reason?

B. 1. In that year this foot-soldier was punished because of (his) fear. 2. On account of the lack of men, we shall never take that town, which has been fortified with a great wall. 3. Your friend will not come to this place, because the seventh legion has been sent back to the small camp. 4. It is never lawful to punish the good, for, because of (their) virtue, they do nothing contrary to the laws of the state. 5. Because of his father's illness, the scout has not come to our camp.

267. Derivation Exercise. Type II. — Find, for the notebook, five English words related to audiō.

The Roman Roads

(Optional)

268. The entire country occupied by the Romans was covered with a network of great roads for commercial and military purposes. They were built somewhat as our macadam roads are, and were so perfectly constructed that many of them are still in use.

The most famous of the Roman roads was the Appian Way, the "Queen of Roads," which ran nearly southeast from Rome. It was built as far as possible in a straight line, cutting through hills and bridging ravines. It had a pavement of hard stone resting upon several layers of smaller stones partially set in lime. The visitor to Rome usually makes at least one excursion out upon the Appian Way.

> "Awe-struck I gazed upon that rock-paved way,
> The Appian Road; marmorean witness still > Of Rome's resistless stride and fateful will."
>
> (Aubrey de Vere.)

On the Old Appian Way

(Claudian aqueduct in the background ; Alban hills at the right)

Sine virtūte amīcitia esse nōn potest. (Cicero) Without Virtue Friendship cannot be

CHAPTER XXXII

FOURTH CONJUGATION: AUDIŌ (Cont.) · ABLATIVE OF SPECIFICATION

FIRST SECTION

269. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the synopsis of audiō in the Indicative Active, marking long vowels and the accent. 2. Conjugate each tense, testing your speed. 3. Review the Translation Exercises (266).

270. Indicative Passive of Audiō. — The tenses of audiō become in the Passive: aúdior, audiēbar, aúdiar, audītus sum, audītus éram, audītus érō. See pages 333–334.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. With the book closed, write a synopsis of the Indicative Passive. 3. Conjugate each tense several times.

271. VOCABULARY XXXII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
boat	nāvígium, nāvígī, n.	*navig*ate
age	aétās, aetātis, f.
height, depth	altitūdō, -tūdinis, f.	altitude
size, importance	magnitūdō, -tūdinis, f.	magnitude
multitude	multitūdō, -tūdinis, f.	multitude
office, honor	hónor, honōris, m.	*honor*able authority	potéstās, -tātis, f.	Cf. possum, 101
overcome, surpass	súperō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	in*super*able

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
drive, defeat	péllō, -ere, pépulī, púlsus	pulse
drive together, force	compéllō, -ere, cómpulī, compúlsus	*compel, compul*sion
drive out	expéllō, -ere, éxpulī, expúlsus	*expel, expul*sion
drive on, incite	impéllō, -ere, ímpulī, impúlsus	impel, impulse
drive back, repulse	repéllō, -ere, réppulī, repúlsus	*repel, repul*sion
hinder	impédiō, -íre, -ívī, impedītus	*impede, impedi*ment
come upon, find	invéniō, -íre, invēnī, invéntus	*invent, inven*tion
between, among	ínter (prep. w. Acc.)	*inter*vene
meanwhile	ínterim (adv.)
over, upon	súper (prep. w. Abl. and Acc.)	*super*human

Basilica (Court House) in the Forum of Trajan

This style of building, with wide central aisle and narrower side aisles, became the model for the early Christian churches

SECOND SECTION

272. Ablative of Specification. — In the English sentence, He surpassed his brother in courage, the prepositional phrase in courage specifies in what respect he surpassed his brother. The sentence becomes in Latin : Frātrem virtūte superāvit. Here we see that in Latin the Ablative without a preposition is used to specify in what respect the statement is made.

273. Rule. — The Ablative without a preposition, used to specify in what respect the statement is made, is called the Ablative of Specification.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

274. A. 1. Inter Galliam et Germāniam est flūmen Rhēnus; hoc Italiae flūmina magnitūdine superat. 2. Ubi ille dux multa nāvigia ūnum in locum compulit, deinde studēbat barbarōs ad bellum impellere. 3. Et aetāte et potestāte Appius Claudius reliquōs Rōmānōs superābat. 4. Subitō trēs aquilae ā Gallīs vīsae sunt super castra Rōmāna. 5. Interim labor mīlitum nostrōrum altitūdine illīus flūminis impediēbātur.

B. 1. Among the inhabitants of this town my brother excelled in dignity; and so, many honors had been given to him. 2. The farmer himself had driven a great multitude of bad boys from these fields. 3. First, the Gauls were repulsed; then, when they were driven out of the wood, they came to a river; there they found many boats. 4. What scout can surpass this man in speed and diligence? 5. Because of illness the consul was forced to depart from Gaul.

275. Derivation Exercise. — To what Latin words are "audience," "attributable," and "victory" related?

The Aqueducts of Rome

(Optional)

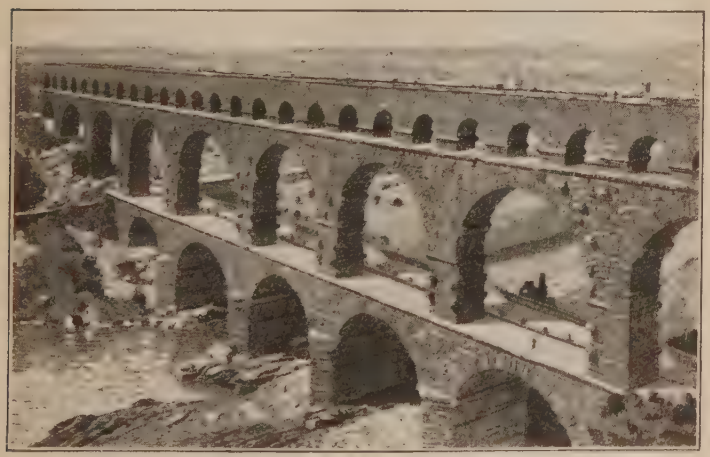
276. Rome's water supply came from the hills through aqueducts, of which there were eventually as many as fourteen, one of them fifty-nine miles long. In the plain near the city the streams were carried on lofty arches, the ruins of which are still conspicuous. These aqueducts are said to have brought more water to the city than flowed past it in the Tiber. The Claudian Aqueduct (see p. 167) was one of the most famous of these imposing structures.

Rome still has an abundant supply of water brought in part by the ancient aqueducts, and is, as in ancient times, famous for its beautiful fountains.



A Roman Aqueduct in Southern France
(The Pont du Gard at Nîmes)

Mēns sāna in corpore sānō. (Juvenal)
A healthy mind in a healthy body

CHAPTER XXXIII

THIRD DECLENSION: I-STEMS · ABLATIVE OF MANNER

FIRST SECTION

277. Third Declension Nouns with I-Stems. — Thus far in the Third Declension we have considered only nouns with the base ending in a consonant; now we meet nouns whose "stem" ends in -i.[1] These have in the Genitive plural -ium; neuter nouns with i-stems have in the Ablative singular -ī, and in the Nominative and Accusative plural -ia; masculine and feminine nouns with i-stems have in the Accusative plural -īs or -ēs.

hóstis, m. or f., enemy (Stem: hosti-)	nūbēs, f., cloud (Stem: nūbi-)	ánimal, n., animal (Stem: animāli-)	urbs, f., city (Stem: urbi-)
Sing.	Sing.	Sing.	Sing.
Nom. hóstis	nūbēs	ánimal	urbs
Gen. hóstis	nūbis	animālis	úrbis
Dat. hóstī	nūbī	animālī	úrbī
Acc. hóstem	nūbem	ánimal	úrbem
Abl. hóste	nūbe	animālī	úrbe
Plur.	Plur.	Plur.	Plur.
Nom. hóstēs	nūbēs	animālia	úrbēs
Gen. hóstium	nūbium	animālium	úrbium
Dat. hóstibus	nūbibus	animālibus	úrbibus
Acc. hóstēs (-īs)	nūbēs (-īs)	animālia	úrbēs (-īs)
Abl. hóstibus	nūbibus	animālibus	úrbibus

[1] The term "base" designates the unchanging part of a noun to which its case endings are added. The "stem," however, of the First Declen-

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write the declension of nox, Gen. nóctis, f., night, and mōns, Gen. móntis, m., mountain.

278. I-Stem Nouns: How Recognized. — The following nouns have i-stems:

1. Masculine and feminine nouns in -ĭs or -ēs not increasing in the Genitive;[1]
2. Monosyllables ending in -s or -x (after a consonant); also nox, Gen. noctis, f., night;
3. Neuter nouns in -e, -al, -ar;
4. All nouns in -ns or -rs.

Note. — A few i-stem nouns (masc. and fem.) have in the Accusative singular both -em and -im. Of these the most important are: ignis, turris, avis, cīvis, fīnis, nāvis.

The Roman Tower at York, England

sion ends in ā, which appears in -ārum of the Genitive plural; that of the Second Declension ends in -o, which appears in -ōrum of the Genitive plural. Similarly nouns of the Third Declension with -ium in the Genitive plural are said to have i-stems.

[1] A noun "increases" in the Genitive if in the singular the Genitive has more syllables than in the Nominative. Thus hostis, Gen. hostis, does not increase in the Genitive, while mīles, Gen. mīlitis, does increase.

279. The Gender of Nouns with I-Stems. — 1. Nouns ending in s or x (after a consonant) are generally feminine: as mēns, mentis, f., mind; pars, partis, f., part; but mōns, montis, mountain, and pōns, pontis, bridge, are masculine.

2. Nouns ending in ēs (not increasing in the Genitive) are feminine: as nūbēs, nūbis, f., cloud; famēs, famis, f., hunger, famine.

3. Nouns ending in ĭs (not increasing in the Genitive) are masculine or feminine: as ignis, ignis, m., fire; turris, turris, f., tower.

4. Nouns ending in e, al, ar are neuter: as mare, maris, n., sea; animal, animālis, n., animal; calcar, calcāris, n., spur.

280. VOCABULARY XXXIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
cause	caúsa, -ae, f.	*caus*al
bird	ávis, ávis, f.	*avi*ator, *avi*ation
citizen	cīvis, cīvis, m.	*civ*il, *civ*ic
end (pl. territory)	fīnis, fīnis, m.	*fin*al, *fin*ish
fire	ígnis, ígnis, m.	*ign*ite, *ign*eous
sea	máre, máris, n.	*mar*ine, *mar*iner
mind	mēns, méntis, f.	*ment*al, de*ment*ed
death	mors, mórtis, f.	*mort*al, *mort*gage
ship	nāvis, nāvis, f.	*nav*y, *nav*al
part	pars, pártis, f.	*part*ial, party
bridge	pōns, póntis, m.	*pont*oon
tower	túrris, túrris, f.	*turr*et climb, mount	ascéndō, -ere, ascéndī, ascēnsus	ascend, *ascens*ion
descend	dēscéndo, -ere, -ī, dēscēnsum	con*descend*
lead across	trādūcō, -ere, trādūxī, trādúctus	traduce
drag	tráhō, -ere, tráxī, tráctus	at*tract*, *tract*or neighboring	fīnítimus, -a, -um
highest, top of	súmmus, -a, -um	sum, *summ*it
at night	nóctū (adv.)

SECOND SECTION

281. The Manner of an Action. — The manner of an action may be expressed in English by an adverb, thus: He defended the city bravely. Instead of the adverb bravely, we may say with bravery. Similarly, instead of very-bravely, we may say with-great-bravery. Thus, in place of an adverb and equivalent to it, we often use in English a prepositional phrase to express the manner of an action. Latin does the same, thus: Urbem fortissimē (adv.) dēfendit, He defended the city very-bravely; Urbem cum magnā fortitūdine dēfendit, He defended the city with-great-bravery.

Mosaic of Parrots and Cat

NOTE.— The preposition cum may be omitted only if an adjective (or limiting Genitive) is used with the noun in the phrase expressing manner. Thus: He answered with great dignity, Cum magnā dīgnitāte (or Magnā dīgnitāte) respondit.

282. Rule. — The manner of an action is expressed by the Ablative with cum; but cum may be omitted if an adjective (or limiting Genitive) is used with the noun expressing manner.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

283. A. 1. Mentem sānam (sound) in corpore sānō habēre dēbeō. 2. Cūr cōnsulēs in hanc partem urbis ascendērunt? 3. Dux mīlitum cum hostibus proelium committere parat; nautae multās nāvēs in mare iam trāxērunt, et hostēs nostrōs repellent. 4. Multā nocte (late at night) ille custōs pontis ob aegritūdinem vigilāre nōn poterat. 5. Quā dē causā sunt multa animālia in silvīs et montibus?

A Roman Fleet in Harbor

B. 1. The consul's slave will lead[1] these animals across the bridge to yonder[2] high mountains. 2. Many birds had been seen among the clouds by the citizens of our city. 3. When the Romans (had) climbed the mountain, they fought with great bravery; at last night made an end of the battle. 4. Those towers surpass your ship in height. 5. Meanwhile at night many fires had been seen on the top of the mountain.

284. Derivation Exercise. — Give the meaning of "urbanity," "civics," "immortality," and "marines." Use each in a sentence.

---

[1] trādūcō, I lead across, takes two accusatives. [2] ille.

Nihil est vēritātis lūce dulcius. (Cicero)
Nothing is sweeter than the light of truth

CHAPTER XXXIV

THIRD DECLENSION ADJECTIVES · COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES · ABLATIVE OF DEGREE OF DIFFERENCE

FIRST SECTION

285. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the declension of hostis, marking long vowels and the accent. 2. Decline (orally), giving the gender and stem of each, nūbēs, animal, urbs, nox, mōns. 3. Repeat the declension of these nouns. Can you give them in one minute?

286. Third Declension Adjectives. — Adjectives of the Third Declension are divided in the Positive into two classes, those with consonant stems, and those with i-stems. Those with i-stems are by far the more numerous.[1]

The adjectives with i-stems, like i-stem nouns, have in the Genitive plural -ium; in the Ablative singular always -ī (never -e like most of the i-stem nouns); in the Accusative plural the masculine and feminine forms have both -ēs and -īs; the neuter Nominative and Accusative plural ends in -ia.

Adjectives of the Third Declension are also classified according to the number of forms in the Nominative singular. A few adjectives in -er have no ending in the Nominative singular masculine (e.g. celer, m., celeris, f., celere, n., swift) and, therefore, are called "adjectives of three forms."[1] Most adjectives, however, have in the Nominative the same forms for the masculine and feminine, and are, therefore, "adjectives of two forms" (e.g. fortis, m., f., forte, n., brave). Numerous adjectives

[1] In this book the only Third Declension adjective with a consonant stem is vetus, m., f., n., old, Gen. veteris (cf. "veteran").

The Acropolis of Athens

(in -āx, -āns, and -ēns) have but one form for all genders in the Nominative singular, and are called "adjectives of one form" (e.g. audāx, m., f., n., bold). The declension of ācer, facilis, audāx, and prūdēns is given on page 320.

287. Observe. — All adjectives of the Third Declension have the same forms for all genders in all cases except the Nominative and Accusative, singular and plural. It will save time, therefore, to give but one form in the cases where all forms are the same.

---

[1] The adjectives in -er, except celer, swift, "lose the e" (e.g. ācer, m., ācris, f., ācre, n., sharp, keen, spirited).

288. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write the declension of ācer, facilis, audāx, prūdēns. 3. Decline (orally), testing your speed, omnis, all, and difficilis, difficult. 4. Decline proelium ācre, mīles audāx, and māter prūdēns.

289. These adjectives are compared as follows:

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
ācer-, m., ācris, f., ācre, n.	ācrior, m. f., ācrius, n.	ācerrimus, -a, -um
fortis, m. f., forte, n.	fortior, m. f., fortius, n.	fortissimus, -a, -um
facilis, m. f., facile, n.	facilior, m. f., facilius, n.	facillimus, -a, -um
audāx, m. f. n.	audācior, m. f., audācius, n.	audācissimus, -a, -um
prūdēns, m. f. n.	prūdentior, m. f., prūdentius, n.	prūdentissimus, -a, -um

Observe. — 1. The Comparative degree is formed by adding -ior, m., f., -ius, n. to the base of the Positive. 2. Adjectives in -er form the Superlative by adding -rimus (-a, -um) to the masculine form (Nominative singular) of the Positive. 3. facilis forms the Superlative by adding -limus (-a, -um) to the base of the Positive (similarly difficilis, difficult; similis, similar; dissimilis, dissimilar; humilis, humble, lowly; gracilis, slender). 4. Other adjectives form the Superlative by adding -issimus (-a, -um) to the base of the Positive.

A Roman Salt Dish

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Write the comparisons of the adjectives in 289. 2. Decline, testing your speed, the Comparative of ācer, and of fortis.

290. VOCABULARY XXXIV

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
grieve	dóleō, -ēre, -uī, dolitūrus	condole
grief	dólor, dolōris, m.	dolorous
it is fitting	opórtet, oportēre, opórtuit, —
private	prīvātus, -a, -um	privacy
sacred, holy	sácer, sácra, sácrum	sacrament
difficult	difficilis, m., f., -e, n.	difficulty
cavalry (adj.)	equéster, m., -tris, f., -tre, n.	equestrian
infantry (adj.)	pedéster, m., -tris, f., -tre, n.	pedestrian
brave	fórtis, m., f., fórte, n.	fortify
heavy, serious	grávis, m., f., gráve, n.	gravity
immortal	immortālis, m., f., -e, n.	immortality
light	lévis, m., f., léve, n.	levity
every (pl. all)	ómnis, m., f., ómne, n.	omnibus
enough, quite	sátis (indecl. adj., and adv.)	satisfy

SECOND SECTION

291. Measure or Degree of Difference. — The English sentences (1) He is much taller than his brother, and (2) He is a foot taller than his brother, state a comparison (here a difference). The amount (degree) of the difference is indicated: (a) by an adverb, much; and (b) by the measure of the difference, a foot (one foot). We may also say in English, He is taller by a foot. This is the Roman way of saying it (i.e. with the Ablative of Degree of Difference). Thus we have in Latin: (1) Multō altior est quam frāter (lit. he is taller by much), He is much taller than his brother. (2) Ūnō pede altior est quam frāter (lit., he is taller by a (one) foot), He is a foot taller than his brother.

292. Rule. — In Latin the Measure or Degree of Difference is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition.

NOTE. — If a superlative adjective or adverb is used, the degree of difference much is expressed by the adverb longē, as: This road will be far or much the easiest, Hoc iter longē facillimum erit.

293. Observe. — To express distance, as The city was five miles distant from the river, we may say in Latin either: (a) Urbs ā flūmine quīnque passuum mīlia aberat, or (b) Urbs ā flūmine quīnque passuum mīlibus aberat. In (a) we have "extent of distance"; in (b) "measure of degree of difference."

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

294. A. 1. Multī elephantī sunt equīs audāciōrēs, sed omnēs equī multō sunt celeriōrēs quam elephantī. 2. Mors patris erat mātrī meae dolor ācerrimus. 3. Nōn oportēbat morte illīus rēgis inīquī dolēre. 4. Satis facile dē monte quōvīs (any) dēscendere, sed ascendere altissimum in montem difficillimum est. 5. Prīmum cōpiae Rōmānae et pedestrēs et equestrēs ācre proelium commīsērunt cum Pyrrhī mīlitibus atque hōs fortitūdine superāvērunt; deinde, ubi paulō post[1] elephantōs vīdērunt, timēbant; tandem per noctem magnā celeritāte fugērunt.

B. 1. Will it not be fitting to build here a holy temple to the immortal gods? 2. Part of the soldiers were grieving, not because of lack of grain, but because of the death of our prudent leader. 3. The cavalry forces will not be braver than the infantry. 4. My sword is much heavier than yours, but the rest of my arms are a little lighter. 5. All the private citizens of this small town had laughed at the "very sacred" birds of the consul, and so they paid a serious penalty.

295. Derivation Exercise. — Give additional English words related to omnis, trahō, and urbs.

[1] The prepositions ante and post are also used as adverbs, e.g. paulō post (lit. afterwards by-a-little), a little later; paucīs post annīs, a few years later.

LATIN SELECTIONS

296. Spartan Courage

A Spartan question

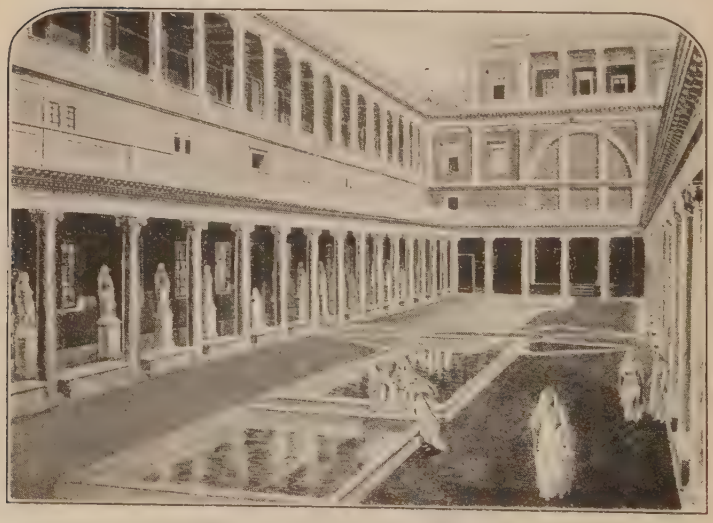
Rēx Spartānus dīxit, "Meī cīvēs nōn rogant, 'Quam multī sunt hostēs?' sed 'Ubi sunt?'"

A Spartan answer.

Ōlim dux hostium — quī iam proelium committere parābat — ducī Spartānō dīxit, "Sōlem (sun) propter multitūdinem tēlōrum et sagittārum vidēre nōn poteritis." Statim dux Spartānus respondit, "In umbrā (shade) igitur pugnābimus."

The walls of Sparta.

Ōlim rēx Spartānus rogātus est, "Cūr mūrōs nōn habet Sparta?" Rēx statim respondit, "Nostra urbs mūrōs habet optimōs, incolārum virtūtem."



Within the Hall of the Vestals

297. Vesta and the Vestals

The ever-burning fire

Per annōs multōs Rōmānī omnēs erant agricolae; in vallibus gregēs custōdiēbant (guarded) et, ubi nox aderat, compellēbant eōs ad collēs (hills). In domiciliīs manēbant fēminae et ignem servābant. Difficile enim erat novum ignem facere.

Vesta's temple.

Quia Vesta, dea Rōmāna, custōs erat focī, eam Rōmānī colēbant et eī post annōs multōs templum ē marmore (marble) albō in Forō dēdicāvērunt (dedicated). Quod templum parvum et rotundum (round) pictūra nostra ostendit (Cf. p. 81). Ignis sacer in templō Vestae servābātur, quō in locō focus erat cīvitātis Rōmānae.

The Vestals.

Puellae annōrum fermē sex (about six years old) ā Pontifice Māximō (the Pontifex Maximus) dēligēbantur et XXX (trīgintā) annōs in Ātriō (Hall) Vestae habitābant. Eae appellābantur Vestālēs.

Their duties and privileges.

Fīdae erant Vestālēs et amābantur. Eīs honōrēs tribuēbantur. Trīgintā annōs, ut (as) dīximus, in Ātriō Vestae habitābant; tum eīs licēbat Ātrium Vestae relinquere et domicilia prīvāta repetere. Īnfīdae Vestālēs — perpaucae (very few) īnfīdae erant — semper pūniēbantur et ad mortem condemnābantur (were condemned).

The story of Tuccia.

Ōlim Tuccia, bona et fīda Vestālis, accusābātur (was being accused). Inimīcī eius dīxērunt, "Nōn est bonae virtūtis." Tuccia autem (however) Vestam implōrāvit. Dea benigna virginī (maiden) auxilium dedit et mīrāculō (miracle) auxilium manifēstum (manifest) fēcit. Nam dum Tuccia crībrum (sieve) aquā complet et aquae plēnum crībrum suprā caput tollit, deae auxiliō aqua in crībrō mānsit.

Dulce et decōrum est prō patriā morī. (Horace)
Sweet and seemly it is to die for fatherland

CHAPTER XXXV (REVIEW)

WORD LIST

298. Suggestions for Study. — Review carefully, testing your speed on the starred words.

NOUNS	NOUNS	VERBS	ADJECTIVES
causa	multitūdō	expellō	fortis
poena	nāvis	impellō	gravis
nāvigium	nox	repellō	immortālis
aegritūdō	nūbēs	remittō	levis
aetās	*pars	trādūcō	omnis
altitūdō	pater	trahō	pedester
*animal	pēs	tribuō	prīvātus
avis	pōns	*vincō	*prūdēns
cīvis	potestās	audiō	sacer
corpus	servitūs	dormiō	summus
custōs	soror	impediō	ADVERBS
dīgnitās	*turris	mūniō	interim
dolor	*urbs	pūniō	noctū
dux	virtūs	*veniō	numquam
eques	VERBS	conveniō	paulō
fīnis	superō	inveniō	satis
flūmen	vigilō	perveniō	CONJUNCTIONS AND PREPOSITIONS
frāter	doleō	ADJECTIVES	contrā
*hostis	licet	*ācer	enim
*ignis	oportet	*audāx	inter
magnitūdō	rīdeō	celer	nam
*mare	ascendō	difficilis	super
māter	dēscendō	equester	ubi
mēns	*pellō	*facilis
*mōns	compellō	fīnitimus
*mors

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XXXI–XXXIV

299. 1. Dī immortālēs dolōrem graviōrem meō patrī dedērunt quam tuō, nam omnēs amīcōs iam āmīsit.

2. Interim barbarī ē castrīs contrā Rōmānōs ēductī erant; prīmum ācerrimō animō pugnābant: rēx enim' ipse inter prīmōs mīlitēs stābat et cōnsilia prūdentia dabat.

3. Hae nāvēs in omnēs maris partēs pervenient summā cum celeritāte; nāvēs enim multō sunt omnibus animālibus celeriōrēs.

4. In summō monte hostēs nostrī castra posuērunt; itaque propter magnam montis altitūdinem ad haec castra nōn possumus ascendere.

5. Omnēsne mentis dolōrēs vincuntur magnitūdine animī?

6. Gravī aegritūdine hic cīvis nōn potest esse turris sacrae custōs; eumne igitur ad urbem Rōmam remittēmus?

7. Licēbitne hanc multitūdinem virōrum prīvātōrum ob verba audācia pūnīre?

8. Ōlim multō erat difficilius quam nunc facere ignem novum; magnā igitur dīligentiā in Vestae templō ignis sacer semper colēbātur.

Tuccia Lifting the Sieve

9. Hunc ignem colere habēbātur honor summus; multae puellae esse Vestālēs cupiēbant; Vestālēs reliquās Rōmānās et virtūte et potestāte superābant.

10. Iūdex inīquus iussit Tucciam prīmō crībrum aquā complēre, deinde hoc crībrum aquae plēnum super caput tollere; hic labor certē satis difficilis erat.

300. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Select for the notebook ten English words related to sedeō (174). Bear in mind that after a prefix the verb root sed weakens to -sid.

In the Atrium of a Roman House

LATIN WORDS IN ALGEBRA AND BIOLOGY

(Optional)

301. In Algebra the term equation (Latin aequātiō, from aequō, I make equal) is an expression of equality; and in Biology the nerves which bear (Latin ferō, I bear) the nervous impulse to (Latin ad-, af-, to) the brain are called afferent, while efferent nerves bear the nervous impulse from (Latin ē-, ex-, ef-, from) the brain. And in science generally most technical terms are derived from Latin (or Greek).[1]

[1] Scientists in America, England, France, Germany, Russia, and elsewhere, are continually studying different plants and animals. For their Observe carefully the following terms used in (A) Algebra and (B) Biology.

A. Algebra

Term	Latin Source	Meaning
exponent	expōnō, I place out; expōnēns (present participle), placing out	A symbol setting forth the power to which the base is to be raised.
fraction	frangō, I break; frāctiō, breaking	A part into which a whole has been broken.
radical	rādīx, root; rādīcālis (adj.), of a root	The sign of a root $\surd$, originally the letter r, the initial of rādīx.

B. Biology

Term	Latin Source	Meaning
auditory	audiō, I hear; audītor, a hearer; audītōrius, of a hearer	Pertaining to the sense or the organ of hearing.
respiration	respīrō, I breathe back; respīrātiō, a breathing back	Breathing in and out.
terminal	terminus, end; terminālis, of an end	Occurring at the end, as "terminal buds."

The following terms used in one or the other of these sciences are from Latin: annual, bacillus, bivalve, coefficient, deciduous, duct, equation, factor, insoluble, integer, involuntary, motor nerves, perennial, primary, sensory, simultaneous, subtract, vaccine, valve, voluntary.

Reason out the meanings. Consult an English dictionary, if necessary.

Exercise. — On a page of the notebook place these terms of Latin origin used in Algebra and Biology, and add others as you meet them.

---

convenience Latin names are usually adopted in advanced scientific works. Thus the English or house sparrow is called Passer domesticus, and the American elm, Ulmus americāna, so that scientists of different countries may always use the same terms.

Nihil est virtūte amābilius. (Cicero)
Than Virtue nothing is more lovable

CHAPTER XXXVI

ADVERBS FROM THIRD DECLENSION ADJECTIVES · IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES

FIRST SECTION

302. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the comparison of the following adjectives and their adverbs: firmus, longus, līber, aeger. 2. Write the comparison of: ācer, facilis, prūdēns, audāx.

303. Adverbs from Adjectives of the Third Declension. — The Positive adverb regularly ends in -ter added to the stem; all stems being treated as i-stems except those in -āx and -ns, the latter of which lose -ti of the stem. Thus: ācer, m., ācris, f., ācre, n., sharp, ācriter, sharply; fortis, m. f., forte, n., brave, fortiter, bravely; audāx, m. f. n., bold, audācter, boldly; prūdēns, m. f. n., prudent, prūdenter, prudently.

The Comparative adverb regularly ends in -ius added to the base of the Positive adjective, thus: ācrius, more sharply; fortius, more bravely; audācius, more boldly; prūdentius, more prudently.

The Superlative adverb regularly ends in -issimē added to the base, thus: fortissimē, most bravely. But all adjectives in -er form their Superlative adverb by adding -rimē to the masculine form of the Positive, thus: ācerrimē most sharply; and the six adjectives in -lis, with their Superlative adjective in -limus,[1] form their Superlative

[1] Cf. 289 — facilis, easy; difficilis, difficult; similis, like; dissimilis, unlike (also humilis, humble, gracilis, slender, which are not

adverb by adding -limē to the base of the Positive, thus : facillimē, most easily.

The comparison of adverbs from Third Declension adjectives is also given on page 321.

304. Certain adjectives have irregular comparison :

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
bonus, -a, -um, good	melior, m. f., melius, n., better	optimus, -a, -um, best
malus, -a, -um, bad	peior, m. f., peius, n., worse	pessimus, -a, -um, worst
magnus, -a, -um, large	maior, m. f., maius, n., larger	maximus, -a, -um, largest parvus, -a, -um, small	minor, m. f., minus, n., smaller	minimus, -a, -um, smallest
multus, -a, -um, many a, much (pl. many)	. . . . . plūs,[1] n., more (pl. plūrēs, m. f., plūra, n.)	plūrimus, -a, -um, most

305. The adverbs from these adjectives are :

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
bĕnĕ, well	melius, better	optimē, best
mălĕ, ill	peius, worse	pessimē, worst
magnopere,[2] greatly	magis,[2] more	maximē,[2] most
parum, little	minus, less	minimē, least
multum, much	plūs, more	plūrimum, most used in this book). The Positive adverb of facilis is facile, easily (neut. Acc. sing. used as an adv.); cf. prīmum, first. The Positive adverb of difficilis is difficulter, with difficulty.

[1] plūs is used as a neuter noun or as an adverb. In the plural it is an adjective.

[2] magnopere = magnō opere (Abl. of opus, work), Ablative of Manner ; magis and maximē express degree, and are used to compare adjectives in -ius and -eus, thus : magis dubius, more doubtful ; maximē idōneus, most suitable.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write the comparison of these irregular adjectives and their adverbs, marking long vowels and the accent.

306. Derivation Exercise. — Examine the following English words related to these irregular adjectives and adverbs, determine the exact meaning of each, and use each in an English sentence: *bene*factor, *bene*fit, *bene*ficent, *bene*ficiary, *male*factor, *male*volent, major, *major*ity, maximum, minor, *minor*ity, minimum, *plur*al, *plur*ality.

A Coin of Augustus

307. VOCABULARY XXXVI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
arm, equip	ármō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	*arma*ment
esteem, love	dīligō, -ere, dīlēxī, dīlēctus
careful	dīligēns, m., f., n., Gen. dīligéntis	diligent
with care	dīligénter (adv.)	*diligent*ly
understand	intéllegō, -ere, intellēxī, intellēctus	*intelli*gent nevertheless	támen (adv.)

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

308 A. 1. Maiōra castra illae trēs legiōnēs bene dēfendērunt; minōra tamen ab hostibus facillimē sunt expugnāta. 2. Ācriter et fortiter Rōmānī proelium committēbant; improvīsō dē nūbibus multitūdō avium ad terram dēscendit; omnēs mīlitēs magnopere timēbant; hōc modō fīnis proeliō celeriter datus est. 3. Servōs armāre erat exemplum pessimum; sed cōnsulēs animōs cīvium male intellegēbant. 4. Plūrimī dominī cum servīs in agrīs dīligentissimē labōrant; illi ā servīs magnopere dīliguntur. 5. Numquam meliōrem custōdem illīus pontis invenīēs quam fīlium amīcī meī prūdentissimum.

E. 1. Our leader is diligently fortifying the city, for we cannot easily drive the enemy from our territory. 2. Often the best men are disturbed by pain of body and soul more seriously than the most wicked. 3. This diligent woman, whose husband was fighting with Caesar, very prudently had plowed all her field. 4. This small boy hurled the weapon much more boldly than did that larger slave. 5. Who will understand Cicero's words more easily, more quickly, than the best citizens of Rome?

309. Derivation Exercise, Type III. — Find for the notebook six English words related to vincō. After each write an English sentence in which the word is correctly used, and insert this exercise, when approved by the teacher, in the notebook.

LATIN SELECTION

310. ANDROCLUS AND THE LION

Androclus is matched against an African lion.

In Circō Maximō hominēs cum animālibus saepe pugnābant. Inter quae ōlim erat leō immānis (huge). Cum hōc leōne Androclum servum pugnāre dominus crūdēlis (cruel) iusserat et spectātōrēs multī aderant; quī spectābant leōnem magnā cum admīrātiōne (astonishment) et dicēbant, "Hodiē Androclus cum illō leōne pugnābit, sed leōnem occīdere nōn poterit. Numquam enim immāniōrem leōnem vīdimus."

The strange conduct of the lion.

Leō postquam Androclum vīdit, prīmum spectābat eum, deinde ad eum accessit et caudam (tail) blandē (in a friendly way) movēbat, tum ad pedēs Androclī recubuit. Quod spectātōrēs intellegere nōn potērant; itaque dicēbant "Mīrum (strange) est, ille leō et ille homō sunt amīcī!"

Androclus' Story.

Tum Androclus dē leōne nārrāvit: "In Africā in agrīs labōrābam. Quia dominus meus crūdēlis erat, fūgī in montēs et in cavernam (cave) vēnī. Nōn multō post in eandem cavernam vēnit hic leō, cui pēs ūnus cruentus (bloody) erat. Pedem cruentum leō ostendit, in quō invēnī stirpem (thorn) ingentem. Quem extrāxī (pulled out) et vulnus siccāvī (stanched). In eādem cavernā nōs, leō et homō, habitābāmus. Dum in silvīs errō, ā mīlitibus tandem captus ex Āfricā in Italiam tractus sum."

Androclus receives the lion and his freedom.

Haec dīxit Androclus. Eī lībertās data est et leō. In urbe saepe Androclus cum leōne ambulābat; quōs ubi populus vīdit, exclāmābat, "Hic est leō amīcus hominis, hic est homō medicus leōnis."

Vēritās vōs līberābit[1] — The truth shall make you free

CHAPTER XXXVII

DATIVE WITH ADJECTIVES

FIRST SECTION

311. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the comparison of ācer, fortis, audāx, prūdēns, facilis; then form the Positive adverb of each adjective and write its comparison, giving with each degree its meaning. 2. Write the comparison of the irregular adjectives bonus, malus, magnus, parvus, multus; then form the Positive adverb of each adjective and write its comparison, giving with each degree its meaning. 3. Give the comparison of these ten adjectives, and that of their adverbs.

312. Dative with Adjectives. — In Latin the Dative is used with certain adjectives, just as their equivalents in English are used with the prepositions to and for. Thus Pater est mihi benignus, Father is kind to me. Here mihi indicates the person to whom the quality expressed by the adjective is directed or referred.

Familiar adjectives used with the Dative are: amīcus, friendly, inimīcus, unfriendly; aequus, fair, inīquus, unfair; facilis, easy, difficilis, difficult; iūstus, just, iniūstus, unjust; similis,[2] like, dissimilis,[2] unlike; idōneus, suitable.

313. Rule. — The Dative of Reference is used with certain adjectives to indicate that to which the quality expressed by the adjective is directed or referred.

314. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. This language is not difficult for me. Is it difficult for you? 2. The leader of the enemy was very unjust to all the inhabitants. 3. Caesar himself chose a place suitable for a camp. 4. The son is like (his) father in character (virtūs).

---

[1] Motto of the Johns Hopkins University.

[2] The Genitive also is used with similis and its compounds: Frāter est sorōris similis, The brother is like the sister (cf. the expression "the like of").

315. VOCABULARY XXXVII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
guard	custōdia, -ae, f.	custody
household, slaves of the household	familia, -ae, f.	family
intimate	familiāris, m., f., -e, n.	familiar
letter (of the alphabet)	littera, -ae,[1] f.	*liter*ary
zeal, enthusiasm	stúdium, stúdī, n.	*study, studi*ous
journey	iter, itíneris, n.	*itiner*ary
old man	sénex, sénis, m.	*seni*le
force, violence	vīs,[2] vim (Acc.), f.	vim
put away, hide	ábdō,[3] -ere, ábdidī, ábditus
add	áddō, -ere, áddidī, ádditus	*addi*tion
give up, surrender	dēdō, -ere, dēdidī, dēditus
give back	réddō, -ere, réddidī, rédditus
hand over	trādō, -ere, trādidī, trāditus	*trai*tor
set on fire	incéndō, -ere, incéndī, incēnsus	*incend*iary, incense
send to the help of, yield	submíttō, -ere, submīsī, submíssus	*submit, submiss*ion take back, receive	recípiō,[4] -ere, recēpī, recéptus	*recipi*ent, receipt

moreover, on the other hand	autem (conj. postpositive)
among, at the home of	apud (prep. w. Acc.)
in truth, but	vērō (adv. postpositive)
not only . . . but also	nōn modō . . . sed etiam

[1] In place of litterae (letters, writing, a letter), the Romans often used epistula (from the Greek), a letter; cf. "epistle."

[2] vīs has no Genitive singular; the Dative and Ablative singular are vī; the plural is vīrēs (strength), vīrium, vīribus, vīrīs (vīrēs), vīribus.

[3] Compounds of -dō are generally of the Third Conjugation.

[4] sē recipere, to withdraw (lit. to take one's self back); cf. mē recipiō, I withdraw, tē recípis, sē recipit, etc.

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

316. A. 1. Quis vestrum cōnsulis litterās vīdit? Apud quem erit hodiē cōnsul ipse? 2. Iam tibi Caesar satis magnum auxilium mīsit; mihi vērō meās legiōnēs reddere nōn vult (does not wish). 3. Quibus tribuērunt Rōmānī custōdiam ignis sacrī? 4. Illae cohortēs, quae prīmō sē ad flūmen recēpērunt, ibi nōn modō sē dēdidērunt sed etiam centuriōnēs suōs prīncipī barbarōrum trādidērunt. 5. Nōs quidem ad oppidum longō itinere nōs recipiēmus; vōs vērō ad silvam vīcīnam vōs celerrimē recipere dēbētis.

A Gallic Chief Surrenders to Caesar

B. 1. When the barbarians had hidden away all their arms and burned all their buildings, then at last they surrendered to Caesar. 2. My father called together all his family and his most intimate friends; then he read to them the orator's letter. 3. The soldiers were already fighting with very great energy, but new zeal was added to their energy by the words of this old man. 4. Not only has the eighth legion marched[1] to the small mountain, but it has also already pitched its camp there. It was difficult to find a place suitable for a camp. 5. Once upon a time a lion suffered greatly from a serious wound; but Androclus easily pulled out the thorn from his foot.

[1] to march = iter facere.

LATIN SELECTION

317. The Miser's Shoes

A practical joker exchanges the miser's shoes for the consul's.

Senex, nōmine Albulus, quī dīves et avārus erat, sordidās vestēs gerēbat. Omnēs cīvēs cognōscēbant avārī soleās. Ōlim senex sē lavābat apud thermās (baths) pūblicās. Interim vir iocōsus locum intrāvit. Ubi vīdit vestīmenta (clothes) Albulī, statim calceōs eius cēpit. Apud eāsdem thermās cōnsul sē lavābat.

Roman Shoes

What happened then.

Postquam Albulus sē lavit, calceōs suōs nōn vīdit, sed purpureōs (purple) cōnsulis. Deīs grātiās ēgit prō tantō (such) mīrāculō, et cum cōnsulis soleīs discessit. Cōnsul vērō ubi suōs calceōs invenīre nōn potuit et cognōvit calceōs Albulī, vix continuit īram. Albulum līctōrēs (lictors) ad cōnsulem trāxērunt et accūsāvērunt. Ille multīs cum lacrimīs veniam petiit frūstrā. Nam cōnsul asperā vōce līctōrēs iussit avārum pūnīre.

What became of the shoes.

Deinde Albulus ad Tiberim flūmen, quod nōn longē aberat, dēscendit. Tum, dum magnā vōce exclāmat, "Numquam iterum (again) dominum perdētis," calceōs in flūmen abiēcit.

Carmina morte carent. (Ovid) — Poetry cannot die

CHAPTER XXXVIII

ABLATIVE OF SEPARATION

FIRST SECTION

318. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the synopsis in the Indicative Active of habeō and moveō; then conjugate all the tenses of each verb. 2. Write the synopsis in the Indicative Active of gerō, mittō, petō, pōnō, accipiō, faciō; then conjugate all the tenses of each verb in order.

319. The Ablative of Separation. — In English we indicate separation or removal by from, away-from, out-from, out-of, down-from. The equivalent Latin prepositions are ā (ab), away-from (from), ē (ex), out-from (out-of, from), dē, down-from (from).

In Latin with a verb of motion actual separation is regularly expressed, as in English, by a preposition with the Ablative, thus:

1. Ā flūmine castra mōvit, He moved the camp from (away-from) the river;
2. Eōdem diē ex urbe discessit, The same day he left the city (lit. the same day he-went-away from (out-from) the city);
3. Prīmā lūce Caesar cōpiās ē castrīs ēdūxit, At dawn Caesar led his troops from the camp (led-out . . . out-from);
4. Incolae dē montibus dēscendērunt et in agmen impetum fēcērunt, The inhabitants came-down from (down-from) the mountains and made an attack upon the line.

Separation was felt to be implied (not actual) in the verbs careō, I lack, am without, need, and līberō, I set free. With these verbs separation is regularly expressed by the Ablative without a preposition, thus:

5. Multī cīvēs frūmentō carēbant, Many citizens were without grain;

6. Patriam nostram perīculō līberāre dēbēmus, We ought to free our country from peril.

320. Rule. — Actual separation or removal is regularly expressed in Latin by ā (ab), ē (ex), dē, with the Ablative; but if the separation is figurative (not actual), the Ablative is used without a preposition.

NOTE. — With names of cities and towns, separation is expressed without a preposition; if ā (ab) is used, the meaning is from-the-vicinity-of, from-the-direction-of. Thus Rōmā vēnit, He came from-Rome; but Ab Rōmā vēnit, He came from-the-vicinity-of (from-the-direction-of) Rome.

Also, the Ablatives domō, from home, and rūre, from the country, are used without a preposition.

321. LATIN PHRASES (Review)

ENGLISH MEANINGS	LATIN PHRASES
to accept as a friend	in amīcitiam accipere
to intend	in animō habēre (w. inf.)
about (with numerals)	ad or circiter (adv.)
to engage in battle	proelium committere
to wage war	bellum gerere (w. cum and Abl.)
to pitch camp	castra pōnere
to break camp	castra movēre
to make a journey, to march	iter facere
to inform	certiōrem[1] facere (lit. to make more certain); pl. certiōrēs facere
to put to flight	in fugam dare

[1] Cf. certior (pred. adj.) factus sum, I was informed; certiōrēs (pred. adj.) factī sumus, we were informed.

LATIN PHRASES (Review) — Continued

English Meanings	Latin Phrases
to attempt to escape	fugā salūtem petere
to be grateful	grātiam habēre (w. Dat.)
to give thanks	grātiās agere (w. Dat.)
to give each other, exchange	inter sē dare
at dawn	prīmā lūce
late at night	multā nocte
until late at night	ad multam noctem
at midnight	mediā nocte
a few years after	post paucōs annōs, or paucīs post (adv.) annīs
a little afterwards	paulō post (lit. afterwards by a little)
and not long afterwards	nec (neque) multō post
to be very powerful	plūrimum (adv.) posse
as soon as	cum prīmum (lit. when first)
as soon as possible	quam prīmum
as quickly as possible	quam celerrimē [1]
to pay the penalty	poenam dare
for the future	in reliquum (sc. tempus)
to suffer from wounds	vulneribus labōrāre
to deliver a speech	ōrātiōnem habēre
to make an end (of), stop	fīnem facere (w. Gen.)

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

322. A. 1. Cum prīmum lēgātus hostēs in fugam dedit, statim Caesarem hāc dē victōriā certiōrem fēcit. 2. Dux Rōmānus maximam grātiam habēbat huius oppidī incolīs, quōrum ad vīgintī in amīcitiam populī Rōmānī accēpit. 3. Nec multō post, ab illīs sorōribus, quae inter sē magnopere amant, ego dē morte patris meī certior factus sum. 4. Cōn-sul, quī gravibus vulneribus labōrābat, tamen ōrātiōnem habēre studēbat. 5. Amīcus meus in Galliā circiter trēs annōs bellum gessit; cupit autem in reliquum hīc in Italiā habitāre.

[1] quam with any superlative adjective or adverb = "as possible."

Portrait Statue of a Roman Woman

B. 1. The tenth legion, with which Caesar had arrived at daybreak, engaged in battle with the Gauls as quickly as possible; the latter, however, were much more powerful. 2. Until late at night these soldiers intended to attempt to escape. 3. Did you not as soon as possible thank the doctor (medicus) who put an end to your illness? 4. A few years ago those two friends, to whom has been assigned the guarding of the bridge, exchanged swords. 5. Why did the avaricious old man throw away his dirty shoes into the Tiber? We, at least, do not understand this part of the story very well.

LATIN SELECTIONS

323. Caesar's Daughter Julia; Cicero's Daughter Tullia

Cicero sends a letter of sympathy to Caesar in Britain.

Hāc aestāte [54 B.C.] Iūlia, Caesaris fīlia, quae Pompeiī uxor (wife) erat, ē vītā excessit. Quod ubi audīvit Cicerō, cuius frāter cum Caesare in Britanniā erat, Caesarī dē morte eius fīliae epistulam hūmānissimam (very sympathetic) scrīpsit.

Caesar in turn expresses his sympathy.

Post paucōs annōs Cicerō fīliam suam Tulliam āmīsit [45 B.C.]. Dolōrem fīliae āmissae graviter sustinēbat. Ex litterīs et ex studiīs sōlācium (solace) petēbat multōsque librōs scrīpsit. Caesar, quī Cicerōnem dīligēbat, epistulam statim scrīpsit; quod idem fēcērunt amīcī Cicerōnis multī. Ūna epistula, quam Servius Sulpicius scrīpsit, est bene nōta. Ā multīs etiam nunc legitur.

324. Two Patriotic Brothers

A Roman mother and her sons.

Cornēlia fīlia fuit Pūblī Cornēlī Scīpiōnis Āfricānī, quī Hannibalem vīcit [202 B.C.]. Illīus marītus fuit Tiberius Semprōnius Gracchus. Fīliōs duōs habuērunt, quōrum senior fuit Tiberius Semprōnius Gracchus, minor Gāius Semprōnius Gracchus.

Scipio Africanus

"These are my jewels."

Ōlim mātrōna nōbilissima Cornēliae ōrnāmenta sua ostendēbat, quae erant pulcherrima et pretiōsissima. Ea Cornēlia laudāvit, deinde fīliōs suōs ad sē vocāvit: "Haec," inquit, "sunt mea ōrnāmenta."

Cornelia's epitaph.

Monumentum Cornēliae, quod ā populō Rōmānō dēdicātum est, īnscrīptiōnem brevem habuit: "Māter Gracchōrum."

The education and success of her sons.

Tiberius et Gāius praeceptōrēs (teachers) Graecōs habēbant et litterās Graecās magnō cum studiō legēbant. Tiberius et ōrātor clārus et mīles fortis fuit. Mūrōs Carthāginis prīmus cōnscendit [146 B.C.]. Ā cīvibus et laudābātur et amābātur.

Their sympathy for the poor.

In omnī parte Italiae multitūdō magna erat servōrum. Cīvēs plūrimī, quibus difficile erat in agrīs vīvere, iam in urbem vēnerant. Quod cīvitās Rōmāna magnō in perīculō iam erat, patriae auxilium dare Tiberius et Gāius studēbant. In animō habēbant multōs cīvēs ex urbe in agrōs redūcere et agrōs pūblicōs, quōs iam obtinuerant dīvitēs (rich) paucī, distribuere. Et Tiberius et Gāius ab inimīcīs occīsī sunt.

Their death for their country.

Hōrum frātrum duōrum memoriam populus Rōmānus semper colēbat. Statuae eīs dēdicātae sunt. Quam vērē (truly) dīxit Horātius poēta (poet):

"Dulce et decōrum est prō patriā morī."

Sweet and seemly it is to die for fatherland.

A Roman Mother and her Sons

CHAPTER XXXIX

FOURTH DECLENSION · DATIVE OF THE POSSESSOR

FIRST SECTION

325. Fourth Declension. — Nouns of the Fourth Declension are mostly masculine; among the few feminine nouns are manus, hand, and domus, home; the only neuter noun used in this book is cornū, horn, wing (of an army). The Genitive singular ends in -ūs (e.g. manūs, domūs, cornūs). These nouns are declined as follows:

	mánus,[1] f., hand (Stem: manu-)	córnū, n., horn (Stem: cornu-)	dómus, f., home (Stem: domu-)
	Sing.	Sing.	Sing.
Nom.	mánus	córnū	dómus
Gen.	mánūs	córnūs	dómūs
Dat.	mánuī or -ū	córnū	(dómuī) dómō[2]
Acc.	mánum	córnū	dómum
Abl.	mánū	córnū	(dómū) dómō[2]
	Plur.	Plur.	Plur.
Nom.	mánūs	córnua	dómūs
Gen.	mánuum	córnuum	(dómuum) domōrum[2]
Dat.	mánibus	córnibus	dómibus
Acc.	mánūs	córnua	(dómūs) dómōs[2]
Abl.	mánibus	córnibus	dómibus

[1] manus, hand, often means a company, force, band (cf. a "handful" of men).

[2] Second Declension forms These (except in the Genitive plural) are more common.

Observe. — 1. For convenience the u of the stem is printed as a part of the case endings. 2. In the declension of cornū, n., the forms of the singular, except the Genitive, are the same.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Write the declension of impetus, m., attack. 2. Decline together magnus exercitus, a large army. Practice for accuracy and speed.

326. VOCABULARY XXXIX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
arrival	advéntus, -ūs,[1] m.	Adventist
army	exércitus, -ūs, m.	exercise
cavalry	equitátus, -ūs, m.
attack	ímpetus, -ūs,[1] m.	impetuous
magistrate	magistrátus, -ūs, m.	magistrate
birth	nātus, nātūs,[2] m.	natal, native
senate	senātus, -ūs,[1] m.	senator
intrust, order	mándō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	mandate
gather	cólligō, -ere, collēgī, collēctus	collect
catch sight of, see	cōnspíciō, -ere, cōnspéxī, cōnspéctus	conspicuous
sight	cōnspéctus, -ūs, m.
undertake	suscípiō, -ere, suscēpī, suscéptus	susceptible
right	déxter, déxtra, déxtrum	dexterous
left	siníster, sinístra, sinístrum	sinister

SECOND SECTION

327. The Dative of the Possessor. — In Latin with the verb sum a Dative may indicate the possessor, thus: Mihi sunt agrī multī (lit. there are to me many fields). Here the statement, sunt agrī multī, there are many fields, is made

[1] Notes on word formation: (a) The suffix -tus added to a verb root denotes the action expressed by the verb, or the result of the action: adventus, a coming to, arrival; impetus, a seeking against, attack. (b) The suffix -ātus added to the base of a noun denotes office or official body: senātus, an official body of old men, the senate.

[2] Cf. maior nātū (Abl. of Specification), older; maximus nātū, oldest; minor nātū, younger; minimus nātū, youngest.

with-reference-to-me (mihi) ; hence the sentence is equivalent to the English, I have many fields.

Note. — We may also say: (Ego) agrōs multōs habeō.

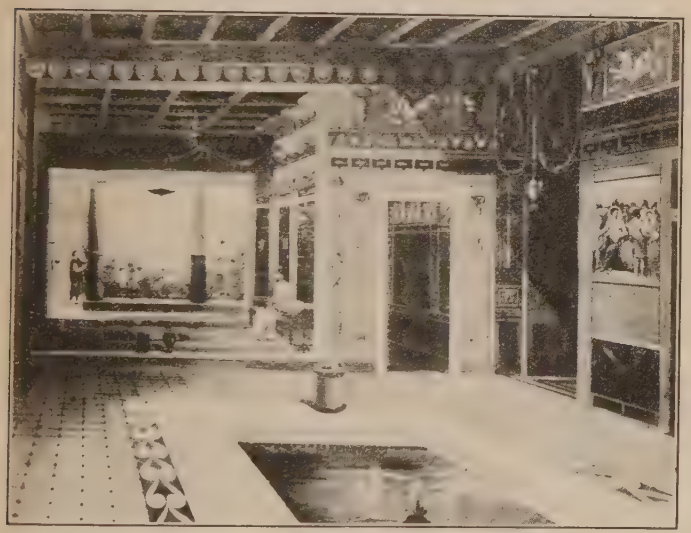
328. Rule. — The Dative of the Possessor is used with the verb sum, the thing possessed being the subject.



Interior of a Roman House

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

329. A. 1. In cōnspectū omnium magistrātuum illa domus pulcherrima cīvium malōrum manū incēnsa est. 2. Deinde Gallī in sinistrum cornū exercitūs Rōmānī subitō impetum magnā vī fēcērunt. 3. Hoc bellum contrā Germānōs, quōrum magna multitūdō flūmen Rhēnum iam trāducta est, nōs omnēs acrī studiō suscipiēmus. 4. Auxiliō nostrō hostēs, quī in Gallōs impetum fēcerant, pācem petere coāctī sunt. 5. Ubi adventus exercitūs nostrī hostibus nūntiātus est, quam maximās cōpiās collēgērunt.

B. 1. The boy is very like his father; the daughter, however, is unlike both father and mother. 2. The senate will choose a house suitable for the highest (summus) magistrate. 3. This leader, who is much younger than I, will gather as large an army as possible. 4. To the oldest senator was intrusted the most difficult task (work). 5. The cavalry of the Gauls was on our right wing; against this part of the enemy Caesar made an attack as soon as possible.

LATIN SELECTION

330. The Haunted House in Athens[1]

The haunted house.

A Coin of Athens

Erat in urbe antīquā (ancient) spatiōsa (spacious) et pulchra domus. Sed nēmō ibi habitāre audēbat; per silentium (silence) enim noctis saepe sonus ferrī (sound of iron) et clangor vinculōrum (clang of chains) erant, deinde veniēbat imāgō, senex quī squālidam (unkempt) barbam et capillōs (locks of hair) longōs habēbat. Etiam vincula gerēbat (he wore). "Imāginem," inquit dominus, "saepe vīdī neque dormīre posteā potuī; territus sum. In mente meā memoria imāginis manet." Deinde domus dēserta (deserted) erat, quam tamen dominus prōscrīpsit (advertised). Pretium parvum erat.

A philosopher rents the house.

Athēnodōrus philosophus domum vīdit, titulum (notice) lēgit, dē pretiō parvō rogāvit. Ubi dominus dē imāgine nārrāvit, philosophus rīsit et pretium dedit. (Philosophī enim imāginēs nōn timent.)

---

[1] This ghost story can easily be presented as a little play in Latin or in English. It is especially appropriate for the Latin Club at Halloween.

At midnight the ghost appears.

Ubi nox adfuit, iubet servōs librōs suōs et lūmen (lamp) et tabulās in ātriō pōnere. Servōs dīmittit et scrībere incipit. Mediā nocte clangor ferrī et vinculōrum fuit. Iam in ātriō sonābant vincula. Athēnodōrus tamen scrībēbat neque oculōs (eyes) sustulit. Tum maximus clangor vinculōrum erat. Philosophus respexit (looked back) et post sē vīdit imāginem quae stābat et digitō (finger) signa faciēbat. "Nōn est," inquit philosophus, "vēra (real) imāgō." Oculōs āvertit et scrībēbat. Mox clangōrem vinculōrum super caput suum audiēbat. Iterum (again) spectāvit imāginem, quae signa ut (as) anteā (before) faciēbat. Timēbat et lūmen sustulit. Imāgō in hortum praecessit. Philosophus vērō cum timōre imāginem spectābat et ipse in hortum ambulāvit. Ubi in hortum vēnit imāgō, subitō non fuit (it vanished). Philosophus herbām (grass) et folia (leaves) in locō posuit.

The ghost is laid.

Ubi lūx erat, ad magistrātum contendit et dē imāgine nārrāvit, "Vēra imāgō," inquit, "fuit; oculīs meīs ipse vīdī." Postquam locum effōdērunt (dug up), ossa (bones) et vincula vīdērunt, quae collēgērunt et in terrā rīte (duly) abdidērunt In illā domō imāgō posteā numquam vīsa est.

From a Roman Lamp
(Mercury brings a Soul to Charon)

CHAPTER XL (REVIEW)

WORD LIST

331. Suggestions for Study — Review carefully, testing your speed on the starred words.

NOUNS
causa
custōdia
familia littera
poena
———
nāvigium
studium
———
aegritūdō
aetās
altitūdō
animal avis cīvis custōs
dolor
fīnis hostis
ignis
*iter magnitūdō
mare
mēns
*mōns
*mors
multitūdō

NOUNS
*nāvis
nox
*pars
pōns
potestās
senex turris
*urbs
vīs
———
adventus
cōnspectus
*domus equitātus
exercitus
*impetus magistrātus
*manus
nātus
senātus

VERBS
armō
*mandō superō
vigilō
———
*doleō

VERBS
licet
oportet
rīdeō
———
abdō
addō
dēdō
reddō
*trādō ascendō
dēscendō
colligō
dīligō
intellegō
cōnspiciō
incendō
*pellō
compellō
expellō
impellō
repellō
*recipiō
suscipiō
remittō
submittō
trādūcō
trahō

VERBS
tribuō
*vincō
———
audiō dormiō
impediō
mūniō
pūniō
veniō
conveniō
inveniō
perveniō

ADJECTIVES
*ācer
*audāx
celer
dexter
*difficilis
dīligēns
dissimilis
equester
*facilis familiāris
fīnitimus
*fortis
gravis

Adjectives	Adverbs	Adverbs	Conjunctions and Prepositions
*idōneus	*ācriter	*magnopere	apud
immortālis	*audācter	*male	contrā
levis	autem	noctū	enim
omnis	*bene	numquam	inter
pedester	*celeriter	paulō	nam
prīvātus	*dīligenter	plūs	nōn modō . . sed etiam
*prūdēns	*facile	*prūdenter	super
sacer	*fortiter	satis
*similis	*graviter	tamen
sinister	interim	vērō
summus

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XXXI–XXXIX

332. 1. Mediā nocte hic magistrātus, cui nōs auxilium saepe submīserāmus, tandem ad itineris suī fīnem pervēnit.

2. Tū quidem patrī es similis ; ego autem sum similior mātrī.

3. Amīcus vester aegritūdine gravī in senātū adesse nōn poterat.

4. Plūrimae nāvēs etiam turrēs altitūdine superant.

5. In Gallōs, quī sē ad montem celeriter recēperant, equitātus Rōmānus impetum ā dextrō cornū magnā vī fēcit.

6. Tiberius Gracchus, quī multō maior nātū erat Gāiō, partem cīvium ex urbe in agrōs remittere magnopere cupiēbat.

7. Ille leō, quōcum Androclus in cavernā habitābat, dominō suō erat multō benignior quam spectātōrēs.

8. Interim cōpiae pedestrēs nōn sōlum iter ad flūmen cum celeritāte fēcērunt, sed etiam pontem satis firmum ibi aedificāvērunt.

9. Mortis timōre saepe virī fortiōrēs fugā salūtem petiērunt.

10. Audīvistisne, virī optimī, ōrātiōnem quam Cicerō apud senātum hodiē habuit ?

11. Postquam dux barbarōrum omnēs domōs incolārum incendit, cōpiās suās ex urbe ēdūxit.

12. Pater meus, cui nōn est pecūnia magna, est tamen beātus (happy) ; habet enim amīcōs multōs et fīdōs.

LATIN SELECTION

333. The Shipwreck and the Rescue

The dangerous coast.

Ūna pars Britanniae ad septentriōnēs spectat. Eius partis in lītore rūpēs (cliffs) asperrimae sunt. Nāvēs ibi multae naufragium (shipwreck) faciunt.

The lighthouse.

Itaque incolae in rūpe maximā turrim aedificāvērunt, quam habitābat senex cum fīliā. Noctū semper lucernam (lantern) incendēbant nautāsque dē perīculō monēbant.

The wreck.

Ōlim postquam fuērunt multōs diēs continuae (continuous) tempestātēs, tandem custōdēs ē turrī magnam vīdērunt nāvem quae in saxīs erat; mox etiam paucōs vīdērunt nautās quī signa faciēbant auxiliumque petēbant.

The rescue.

Tum fīlia parva cum patre nāviculam (boat) dēdūxit et fortiter nāvem magnam petēbant. Difficile erat, quod fluctūs magnī erant atque ventus violentus. Perīculō tamen nōn territī ē morte nautās ēripuērunt omnēsque nautās ad turrim reportāvērunt.

A Roman Ship at Sea

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS FROM THE LATIN

(Optional)

334. Quotations from the Latin frequently appear as mottoes, maxims, and phrases of various sorts. Nearly every state has a Latin motto. Thus, the motto on the seal of Connecticut, beneath three vines, is Quī trānstulit sustinet, He who transplanted, sustains. Universities usually have Latin mottoes: thus that of Harvard is Vēritās, Truth; and that of Syracuse is Scientia suōs cultōrēs corōnat, Wisdom crowns those who seek her. Often graduating classes choose a Latin motto, as Labor omnia vincit, Work overcomes every obstacle. Many families have Latin mottoes inherited from the days of heraldry when Latin was the international language. The motto of George Washington's family was Exitus acta probat, Action is tested by results.

Again, many hymns have Latin names, as Tē Deum Laudāmus and Stābat Māter; in fact many hymns are still sung entirely in Latin. The Lord's Prayer is often called the Pater Noster, these being the words with which it begins in Latin. In English literature we meet Latin quotations, as in Scott's "Ivanhoe" and often in Thackeray. As a title for one of his essays Stevenson selected a quotation from Horace, Virginibus Puerīsque, For Lads and Lasses.

Translate the following mottoes:

1. Massachusetts: Ēnse[1] petit placidam[2] sub lībertāte quiētem.[3]
2. Virginia: Sīc semper tyrannīs.[4]
3. New York: Excelsior.[5]
4. North Carolina: Esse quam vidērī.
5. Arkansas: Rēgnant[6] populī.
6. District of Columbia: Iūstitia omnibus.
7. United States: Ē plūribus ūnum.

---

[1] ēnsis, sword. [2] placidus, peaceful. [3] quiēs, rest. [4] tyrannus, tyrant. [5] excelsus, high. [6] rēgnō, rule.

LATIN WORDS AND PHRASES IN COMMON USE

(Optional)

335. In addition to the large number of English words that have come from Latin, we have numerous Latin words and phrases in current use. These have really become a part of the English language, and are pronounced as English words. Among the most familiar are:

alias:	at another time, otherwise
alibi:	presence elsewhere
alter ego:	another self
ante bellum:	before the war
bona fide:	in good faith
casus belli:	a cause of war
Dei gratia:	by the grace of God
Deo volente (D.V.):	God willing
ex cathedra:	from the seat of authority
ex tempore:	at the moment
in toto:	entirely
ipse dixit:	he himself said it; a dogmatic assertion
ipso facto:	by the fact itself
lapsus linguae:	a slip of the tongue
modus operandi:	method of working
per se:	by itself
post mortem:	after death
prima facie:	at first sight
pro tempore:	for the time being
sine die:	without a fixed date appointed
terra firma:	firm ground
verbatim:	word for word
via:	by way of
vice versa:	the terms being exchanged, conversely
viva voce:	with the living voice, orally
vox populi:	the voice of the people

Exercise. — Use each of these Latin phrases in an English sentence.

Trāicit et fātī lītora magnus amor. (Propertius)
Great love o'erpasses e'en the coasts of fate

CHAPTER XLI

INDIRECT OBJECT WITH CERTAIN INTRANSITIVE VERBS

FIRST SECTION

336. Indirect Object with Certain Intransitive Verbs. — Certain verbs which are transitive in English are intransitive in Latin. In Latin, therefore, these verbs cannot have a direct object. They may have an indirect object.

Their English meanings are : favor, help, please, trust (and their contraries) ; also believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, envy, threaten, pardon, and spare. Memorize the whole list for future convenience.

The more common of these verbs are given in the following Vocabulary (339).

Note. — These Latin verbs are intransitive, because they really have not quite the same meaning as the English verbs used to translate them (which are transitive). A word in one language often represents a thought not fully covered by a word in another language ; thus English injure is really somewhat different from noceō, which was felt by the Romans as I-am-harmful (to). Likewise placeō was felt to be not quite like I-please, but rather as I-am-pleasing (to); imperō was felt as I-give-an-order (to), rather than as I-command.

The Accusative case of neuter pronouns and neuter adjectives (used as nouns) is often used with these verbs, thus : Id imperat amīcus meus, My friend orders this.

In the Passive voice these verbs are used only impersonally, and retain the Dative used with the Active, thus : Lēgibus pārētur, The laws are obeyed or obedience is given to the laws (lit. it is obeyed to the laws).

337. Rule. — Certain verbs which are transitive in English are intransitive in Latin, and the English object becomes in Latin a Dative of the Indirect Object. In the Passive these verbs are used only impersonally, and the English subject is expressed in Latin by the Dative.

338. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Write in a column the English verbs given in 336, and opposite each place its Latin equivalent if given in the following Vocabulary. 2. Write the principal parts of each Latin verb, marking long vowels and the accent. 3. Repeat the English verbs with their Latin equivalents from memory.

339. VOCABULARY XLI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
command, order	ímperō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum
commander	imperātor, -tōris, m.	emperor
command, power	impérium, impérī, n.	empire
threaten	mínor, -ārī, minātus sum [1]	*mina*tory
envy	invídeō, -ēre, invīdī, invīsum	*invid*ious
injure	nóceō, -ēre, nócuī, nocitūrus	in*noc*ent
persuade	persuádeō, -ēre, persuāsī, persuāsum	*persua*sion, *persua*sive
benefit	bene fáciō, -ere, fēcī, fáctum	benefit, *benefac*tor
kindness	benefícium, -ī, n.	*benefic*ent
began	coépī, coepísse, coéptus sum [2]
trust	cōnfídō, -ere, cōnfīsus sum [3]	confide, *confid*ent
believe, intrust to	crēdō, -ere, crēdidī, crēditus	incred*ible*, credit
pardon	ignōscō, -ere, ignōvī, ignōtum	*ign*oble
hate	ōdī, ōdísse, — [2]	*od*ious, *od*ium
spare	párcō, -ere, pepércī, párs(u)m	*pars*imonious
obey	pāreō, -ēre, -uī, paritūrus
resist	resísto, -ere, réstitī, —	*resist*ance
serve	sérviō, -īre, -īī, servītum	*serv*ice
not . . . even	nē . . . quidem

[1] minor, threaten, is Passive in form, but Active in meaning. Since it puts aside most of the Active forms, it is called a deponent verb (cf. dēpōnō, I place down, put aside).

[2] coepī and ōdī lack the Present, Imperfect, and Future tenses. ōdī, however, has the meaning of a Present. Such verbs are called defective, because they lack certain tenses.

[3] Like audeō (174), cōnfīdō is semi-deponent: it has no Active

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

340. A. 1. Nē hostēs quidem ōdisse dēbēmus, nam etiam eīs sunt multae virtūtēs. 2. Quis potest hīs nautīs bene facere? Ego quidem eīs persuādēre cupīvī, sed verbīs meīs nōn satis ab eīs crēditum est. 3. Tibi ignōscō, sed numquam tibi cōnfīdam, nam et mihi et amīcīs meīs multum nocuistī. 4. Prīmum hī cīvēs imperiīs meīs resistere coepērunt, sed paulō post facillimē illīs ā mē persuāsum est. 5. Quid igitur vōbīs ā cōnsule imperātum est? Cūr id nōn facitis? Quī timor est vōbīs? Nōnne estis, mīlitēs, līberīs pessimīs simillimī?

B. 1. That king, who has been pardoned by Caesar, will now serve the Roman state with great diligence. 2. He began to envy this general, whose fame was very great. 3. The lieutenant to whom you gave your letter will have chosen a suitable place for the camp. 4. Not even a private citizen ought to receive favors from the enemy. 5. They believed, but did not pardon, the consul, for their chief had not been spared by him.

The Roman House

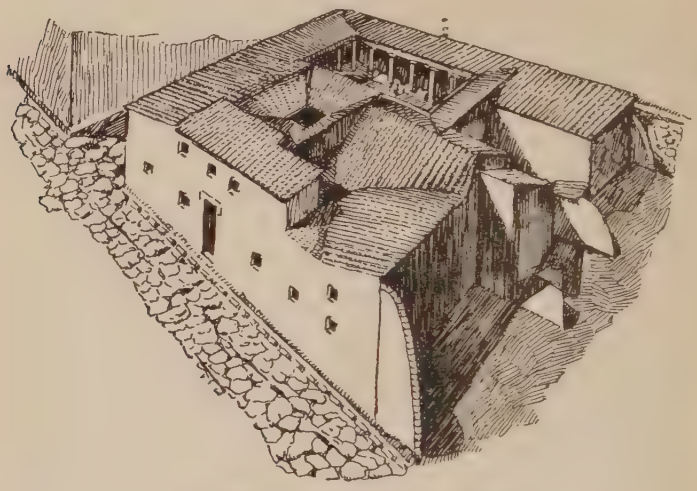
(Optional)

341. The Roman house usually consisted of two parts, each surrounding a central area toward which the roof sloped inwards. Through the vestibulum (vestibule) one entered the ātrium, a large court. In its center, beneath an opening to the sky, was a basin (impluvium) to catch the rain water. The ātrium was frequently used as a public reception room. At its rear was the tablīnum, or office of the master of the house.

---

forms in the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect tenses. The Passive forms have always, however, an active meaning, thus: He trusted his friend, Amīcō cōnfīsus est.

The second part of the house began behind the tablinum with the peristȳlium,[1] a Greek portico usually surrounding a garden;



The House of the Vettii, at Pompeii

about the peristȳlium were the rooms devoted to the home life of the family.[2]

Roman Wall Decorations

The Romans did not have wall paper, but decorated their plastered walls with fresco paintings. Favorite pictures were scenes from mythology, also landscapes, gardens, harbors, and fountains.[3]

---

[1] Like the patio of a Spanish home.

[2] Cf. Pellison, Roman Life in Pliny's Time, pp. 58–79; Johnston, The Private Life of the Romans, pp. 117–157.

[3] A room from a Roman villa near Pompeii may be seen in the Metropolitan Museum, New York, N. Y. A complete restoration of a Roman house is at Saratoga, N. Y. (the Pompeia). See also the Frontispiece and the illustrations on pages 66, 112, 186, 205, 224.

Amīcus certus in rē incertā cernitur. (Ennius)
"A friend in need is a friend indeed"

CHAPTER XLII

FIFTH DECLENSION

FIRST SECTION

342. Fifth Declension. — Nouns of the Fifth Declension end in -ēs, and are feminine.[1] Only two words of this declension (diēs, m., day, and rēs, f., thing) are declined in full; fídēs, f., good faith, has only the singular; spēs, f., hope, has in the plural only the Nominative and Accusative. These nouns are declined as follows:

díēs, m. f.,[1] day (Stem: diē-)	rēs, f., thing (Stem: rē-)	fídēs, f., good faith (Stem: fidē-)	spēs, f., hope (Stem: spē-)
Sing.	Sing.	Sing.	Sing.
Nom. díēs	rēs	fídēs	spēs
Gen. diēī	rḗī	fídēī	spḗī
Dat. diēī	rḗī	fídēī	spḗī
Acc. díem	rem	fídem	spem
Abl. díē	rē	fídē	spē
Plur.	Plur.	Plur.	Plur.
Nom. díēs	rēs	(lacking)	spēs
Gen. diērum	rērum		—
Dat. diēbus	rēbus		—
Acc. díēs	rēs		spēs
Abl. diēbus	rēbus		—

[1] Except diēs, m., day, and merídiēs, m., midday (from media diēs). And diēs is usually feminine when meaning an appointed time, or time in general.

Observe. — In the Genitive and Dative singular the final -e of the stem is long after a vowel, but short after a consonant. The Ablative singular ends in -ē.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. With the book closed, write the declension of prīma aciēs, the first battle line

343. VOCABULARY XLII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
ditch	fóssa, -ae, f.
to dig a ditch	fóssam perdūcere
hour	hōra, -ae, f.	hour
rampart, palisade	vāllum, -ī, n.	wall
earth wall, embankment	ágger, ággeris, n.	ex*agger*ate marching column	ágmen, ágminis, n.
rear guard	novíssimum ágmen
line of battle	áciēs, aciēī, f.
plain	plānítiēs, plānitiēī, f.	plane
hope, hope for	spērō, -āre, -ā́vī, -átus	de*spair*
lose hope, despair	dēspērō, -āre, -ávī, -átus	desperate
grain supplies	rēs frūmentária, rḗī frūmentáriae, f.
military affairs, art of war	rēs mīlitáris, rḗī militáris, f.
commonwealth, government	rēs pūblica, rḗī pūblicae, f.	republic
take one's place	cōnsístō, -ere, cōnstitī, ——	consist
pile up, erect	éxstruō, -ere, exstrūxī, exstrūctus	con*struct*
arrange	īnstruō, -ere, īnstrūxī, īnstrūctus	instruct
to-day	hŏ́diē (hōc diē) (adv.)

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

344. A. 1. Hī Gallī sē suaque omnia in fidem atque potestātem populī Rōmānī tribus ante annīs trādidērunt. 2. Equitātus Gallicus plūrimum potest; quā rē nōn iam victōriam spērāmus. 3. Illō diē Caesar mīlitēs suōs iussit castra maiōra fossā et aggere mūnīre. 4. Ubi aciēs Rōmāna hāc in plānitiē īnstrūcta est, Gallī dē victōriā dēspērāre coepērunt. 5. Hōdiē novissimum agmen in hōc oppidō duās hōrās cōnsistet atque ibi rem frūmentāriam quam celerrimē comparābit.

"To the Loyalty and Valor of the Swiss"
(The Lion of Lucerne)

B. 1. Military affairs were not very pleasing to this consul, yet he always served the commonwealth with the greatest diligence and bravery. 2. Within three hours the Roman soldiers will have dug a ditch and erected a rampart. 3. On this day Cicero was envied by many orators. 4. For five hours we kept marching (iter faciō) through a broad plain. 5. The soldiers of the rear guard had lost all hopes of life; therefore they fought very bravely.

THE ROMAN CALENDAR

(Optional)

345. How to Express a Date in Latin

1. Our names for the months are derived from the Roman names. These were: Iānuārius, Februārius, Mārtius, Aprīlis, Māius, Iūnius, Iūlius (named for Julius Caesar), Augustus (named for Augustus Caesar), September, Octōber, November, December. These words are properly adjectives in agreement with mēnsis, m., month, understood. The number of days in the Roman months were the same as in our corresponding months.[1]

2. Dates were reckoned as on or before one of three points in the month:

a. The Kalends (Kalendae, -ārum, f.; cf. "calendar"), the first of each month.

b. The Nones (Nōnae, -ārum, f.), usually the fifth day of the month, but "in March, July, October, May, the Nones fall on the seventh day."

Calendarium
(Almanac on an altar)

c. The Ides (Īdūs, -uum, f.), usually the thirteenth, but "in March, July, October, May, the Ides fall on the fifteenth day."

3. Dates on the Kalends, Nones, and Ides were expressed by the Ablative of Time When. Dates between the Kalends and the Nones were reckoned as so many days before the Nones; dates between the Nones and the Ides as so many days before the Ides; dates after the Ides as so many days before the Kalends of the next month.

4. In thus reckoning backward the day before the Kalends, Nones, or Ides was designated as prīdiē (followed by Accusative) Kalendās (or Nōnās, or Idūs). Other days were designated by their ordinal number before the nearest reckoning point. The Romans counted both ends of the series of days, and so, before the Nones and Ides, one more than we do; before the Kalends (except last two days), two more than we do.

5. The name of the month is added as an adjective, of which there are two types (i.e. 1, Iānuārius, -a, -um; 2, September, -bris, -bre) agreeing with Kalendās (or Nōnās, or Idūs).

[1] Our calendar, called the Julian Calendar, was instituted by Julius Caesar at the beginning of 45 B.C.

6. Examples:

a. Dates on Kalends, Nones, or Ides: 1. Jan. 1 (New Year's Day) = Kalendīs Iānuāriis (which may be abbreviated to Kal. Iān.). 2. Jan. 5 = Nōnīs Iānuāriis (Nōn. Iān.). 3. Jan. 13 = Īdibus Iānuāriis (Īd. Iān.).

b. Dates between Kalends and Nones: 1. Jan. 4 = Prīdiē Nōnās Iānuāriās (Prīd. Nōn. Iān.) 2. July 4. Since the July Nones fall on the seventh, July 4 is the third day before the Nones according to our reckoning and therefore the fourth according to the Roman. It was usually expressed by the idiom "Before the fourth day, the Nones of July," ante diem quārtum Nōnās Iūliās (a. d. IV Nōn. Iūl.). Here Nōnās Iūliās is in apposition with diem.

c. Dates between Nones and Ides: 1. Feb. 12 = Prīdiē Īdūs Februāriās (Prīd. Id. Feb.). 2. Feb. 10. Since the February Ides fall on the thirteenth, Feb. 10 is "before the fourth day, the Ides of February," ante diem quārtum Īdūs Februāriās (a. d. IV Īd. Feb.).

d. Dates between Ides and the Kalends of the following month: 1. Dec. 31 = Prīdiē Kalendās Iānuāriās (Prīd. Kal. Iān.). 2. Feb. 22 (Washington's Birthday) is (except in leap years) "before the eighth day, the Kalends of March," ante diem octāvum Kalendās Mārtiās (a. d. VIII Kal. Mār.).

346. Exercise. — Express according to the Roman Calendar:

Feb. 12 (Lincoln's Birthday); Mar. 4 (Inauguration Day); Mar. 15 (Death of Julius Caesar); Apr. 19 (Patriots' Day); May 30 (Decoration Day); Oct. 12 (Columbus Day); Nov. 6 (General Election Day); Dec. 25 (Christmas Day); your own birthday; some friend's birthday; the date at which you are writing.

Make a Roman calendar for the present month, and each day write the Roman date on the blackboard.

LATIN SELECTION

347. Midas of the Golden Touch

King Midas receives the gift of the Golden Touch.

Ōlim rēx Phrygiae, nōmine Midās, ā Bacchō dōnum ēgregium petiit, quod etiam Bacchus dedit. Itaque Midās potuit in aurum (gold) omnia mūtāre (to change) quae corpore suō tangēbat (touched); id enim optāverat (had wished). Laetus statim per rēgiam (palace) quam celerrimē currēbat et, cum prīmum mēnsās, pōcula et vāsa (vases) vidēbat, tangēbat omnia. Mox ubi nihil erat nisi aureum (golden), grātiās Bacchō ēgit.

A Roman Cup

Even food and wine become gold.

Paulō post dum cibum (food) in ōre pōnit, is statim mūtātus est in aurum. Nec multō post vīnum (wine) prō rēge positum est, quod etiam in aurum solidum (solid) mūtātum est.

King Midas regrets his wish.

Tandem Midās, quī per paucōs diēs neque cibum sūmere (to take) neque aquam bibere (to drink) poterat, Bacchum implōrāvit. Deus rīsit et, postquam Midās in Pactōlō (Pactolus) flūmine sē lāvit, dōnum remōvit. Sed arēnae (sands) flūminis posteā aureae fuērunt.

Suggested Reading: Nathaniel Hawthorne, Wonder Book, "The Golden Touch."

A Street in Rome

Vīta enim mortuōrum in memoriā est posita vīvōrum. (Cicero)
For the life of the dead rests upon the memory of the living

CHAPTER XLIII

PLACE AND DISTANCE · ROMAN NUMERALS (Cont.)

FIRST SECTION

348. Expressions of Place. — In Latin, as in English, prepositional phrases are regularly used to express (a) the Place-from-which, (b) the Place-to-which, and (c) the Place in-which. Thus:

(a) PLACE-FROM-WHICH: 1. Ex urbe vēnit, He came from the city. 2. A flūmine cōpiās abdūxit, He led the troops away-from the river. 3. Pāstor gregem dē monte dēdūxit, The shepherd led the flock down-from the mountain.

(b) PLACE-TO-WHICH: 1. Ad urbem vēnit, He came to the city. 2. Ad urbem discessit, He left for the city. 3. In urbem contendit, He hastened to (into) the city.

(c) PLACE-IN-WHICH: In oppidō magnō habitat, He lives in a large town.

Observe. — 1. In (a) we see that three prepositions express the general relation "from," but differ in their exact meaning: from, if equivalent to out-from, is expressed by ē, ex; if equivalent to away-from, by ā, ab; if equivalent to down-from, by dē, with the Ablative. 2. In (b) we see that to, if equivalent to into, is expressed by in, with the Accusative.

NOTE. — With the names of cities and towns, also with domus, home, and rūs, the country, the Place-from-which is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition. Thus: Rōmā vēnit, He came from Rome.

Domō discessit, He went away from home. Rūre revēnit, He came back from the country. The Place-to-which is expressed by the Accusative without a preposition. Thus: Rōmam vēnit, He came to Rome. Domum contendit, He hastened home. Rūs discessit, He went away to the country. The Place-in-which is expressed by a special case, the Locative. See below.

349. The Locative Case.—In the singular of the First and Second Declensions the Locative has the same form as the Genitive; in the Third Declension, and in all plurals, the Locative has the same form as the Ablative. Thus: Rōmae, in (at) Rome; Corinthī, in (at) Corinth; Carthāgine (or Carthāginī), in (at) Carthage; Trallibus, in (at) Tralles; domī, at home; rūre (or rūrī), in the country.

350. Rules.—1. Place-from-which is expressed by ā (ab), ē (ex), or dē with the Ablative, but with names of cities and towns, also with domus and rūs, no preposition is used. 2. Place-to-which is expressed by ad and in with the Accusative, but with names of cities and towns, also with domus and rūs, no preposition is used. 3. Place-in-which is expressed by in with the Ablative, but with names of cities and towns, also domus and rūs, the Locative case is used.

351. Exercise.—Express in Latin: 1. The farmer is leaving for the town. 2. The citizens are hastening from the fields. 3. He will lead the soldiers into the new camp. 4. That man lived many years in Rome, in Athens, in Corinth, and in Carthage. 5. Is your father at home? No. He is in the country. 6. In what city does your friend live?

A Roman Wall Painting from Pompeii

352. Expressions of Distance. — In the English sentence (1) He walked two miles, the word miles is used adverbially (an "adverbial Objective case") and expresses the extent of space. Also in (2) He was six feet tall, the word feet is an adverbial Objective and expresses the extent of space (height).

Corresponding to the English Objective we have in Latin the Accusative: (1) Ambulāvit duo passuum mīlia, He walked two miles (lit. two thousands of paces); (2) Fuit sex altus pedēs, He was six feet tall (lit. he was tall for [a height of] six feet).

353. Rule. — The Extent of Space is expressed by the Accusative.

Note. — Distance from (away-from) a place, if considered as the Extent of Space, is expressed (as above) by the Accusative case, thus: He was three miles away-from Rome, Rōmā tria passuum mīlia aberat. But distance from (away-from) a place, if thought of as the Degree of Difference (291), is expressed by the Ablative case, thus: Rōmā tribus passuum mīlibus aberat (lit. He was away-from Rome by [the difference of] three miles).

354. VOCABULARY XLIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
space, time, distance	spátium, -ī, m.	spacious
cohort	cóhors, cohórtis, f.	cohort
pace (about five feet)	pássus, pássūs, m.	pace, pass
remain, hold out	permáneō, -ēre, -mānsī, -mānsūrus	permanent
stay behind, remain	remáneō, -ēre, -mānsī, -mānsūrus	remain
halt, encamp	cōnsídō, -ere, cōnsēdī, cōnséssum
one thousand	mīlle, mīlle,[1] n.	mile, million

[1] mīlle, thousand, is an indeclinable adjective; but in the plural (thousands) it is a noun; mīlia (or mīllia), -ium, n.

SECOND SECTION

355. The Cardinal Numerals (21–1000)

XXI	twenty-one vīgíntī ūnus[1]	LXX	seventy septuāgíntā
XXII	twenty-two vīgíntī dúo[1]	LXXX	eighty octōgíntā
XXIII	twenty-three vīgíntī trēs[1]	XC[2]	ninety nōnāgíntā
XXIV[2]	twenty-four vīgíntī quáttuor	C	one hundred céntum
XXV	twenty-five vīgíntī quīnque	CC	two hundred ducéntī, -ae, -a
XXVI	twenty-six vīgíntī sex	CCC	three hundred trecéntī, -ae, -a
XXVII	twenty-seven vīgíntī séptem	CCCC	four hundred quadringéntī, -ae, -a
XXVIII	twenty-eight duodētrīgíntā	D	five hundred quīngéntī, -ae, -a
XXIX[2]	twenty-nine ūndētrīgíntā	DC	six hundred sescéntī, -ae, -a
XXX	thirty trīgíntā	DCC	seven hundred septingéntī, -ae, -a
XL	forty quadrāgíntā	DCCC	eight hundred octingéntī, -ae, -a
L	fifty quīnquāgíntā	DCCCC	nine hundred nōngéntī, -ae, -a
LX	sixty sexāgíntā	M	thousand mílle

[1] For declension of ūnus, duo, trēs, see page 321.

[2] In inscriptions the method of notation by adding was commoner than the method by subtracting; so XXIIII, XXVIIII, and LXXXX are usual; XXIV, XXIX, and XC rare.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

356. A. 1. Quīngentī quīnquāgintā equitēs dē montibus ad plānitiem dēscendērunt; deinde illud parvum oppidum ācriter oppugnāre coepērunt. 2. Nē trīgintā quidem diēbus Athēnās perveniēmus. 3. Haec castra quattuor mīlibus passuum ā flūmine aberant; hīc quadrāgintā diēs remānsimus. 4. Ā Gallīs cohortēs Rōmānae spatiō duōrum mīlium passuum cōnsēderant. 5. Viā longiōre (Abl. of Means) nōs quidem Rōmam accessimus; sex diēs autem rūrī cōnsēdimus.

B. 1. Caesar carried on war in Gaul (for) four years. 2. We shall remain fifty-seven days in Rome. 3. Thirty-three horsemen have halted two miles from our city near a very high mountain. 4. My father often comes from Rome to the country. 5. This small town has not even six hundred inhabitants; of these two hundred are men, three hundred are women, and the rest are children.

LATIN SELECTION

357. A Roman Mother

Cornelia awaits her son Tiberius Gracchus, the tribune.

Exspectābat Cornēlia, māter Gracchōrum, domī fīlium Tiberium, quī tribūnus plēbis (a Tribune of the People) iam creātus erat, et ā populō amābātur, quod pauperibus (the poor) agrōs distribuere cupiēbat. "Mox (soon) certē," inquit Cornēlia amīcīs servīsque, "domum reveniet."

An ominous silence.

Mox sonum pedum in viā audīvērunt.

"Iam iam adest, domina," inquit ancilla (maid).

"Cūr nōn audīmus clāmōrēs populī et vōcēs laetās amīcōrum?" respondit Cornēlia.

Friends bear in the body of Tiberius.

Nunc in cōnspectum Cornēliae veniunt, et silentēs (silent) accēdunt. Corpus enim Tiberī domum portant — occīsus erat tribūnus plēbis ab inimīcīs.

The Gracchi

All show their grief.

Amīcī ac servī cum multīs lacrimīs strepitum faciunt (raise an outcry). Māter prīmum dīcere nōn poterat.

A Roman mother's pride in her son's noble death.

"Nihil est trīste (sad)," inquit tandem Cornēlia, "sī Rōmānum sē fortem ostendit. Multās hōrās meum fortem fīlium exspectō. Nunc eum etiam mortuum laeta tamen accipiam. Hodiē tē maximē et amō et laudō. Nunc enim ego sum omnium mātrōnārum beātissima (happiest). Pater meus Hannibalem superāvit; vir meus glōriam (renown) sibi ex Hispāniā reportāvit. Fīliōs duōs reī pūblicae dedī. Tiberius hīc iacet — prō patriā est mortuus; Gāius vīvit — labōrābit et ille prō patriā. Vōbīs, amīcī, grātiās agō, quī hoc corpus Tiberī meī ad mē portāvistis. Nunc ad templum mēcum venīte (come): dīs immortālibus grātiās agere dēbēmus. Mātrōnam ad templum deōrum dūcitis beātissimam — Scīpiōnis fīliam, Gracchī uxōrem, mātrem Gracchōrum!"

CHAPTER XLIV

SUBJECTIVE AND OBJECTIVE GENITIVE · GENITIVE OF THE WHOLE · GENITIVE WITH ADJECTIVES · GENITIVE AND ABLATIVE OF DESCRIPTION

FIRST SECTION

358. Subjective Genitive. — In the expression, the arrival of the enemy, adventus hostium, the noun arrival (adventus) expresses action; of-the-enemy serves to show the doer of the action. If in place of the noun we were to have a verb, the doer of the action would be indicated by the subject, thus: Hostēs adveniunt, The enemy arrive. Hence the Genitive is called a Subjective Genitive.[1]

359. Objective Genitive. — In the expression, our fear of the peril, timor noster perīculī, of-the-peril serves to show the object toward which the fear is directed. If in place of our fear (of) we write we fear (timēmus), the peril becomes the object: perīculum timēmus. Hence the Genitive is an Objective Genitive.[2]

---

[1] The "Subjective Genitive" is used chiefly with abstract nouns (i.e. nouns which refer not to material objects, but to things removed from the senses. Abstract nouns express action, as adventus, arrival; timor, fear; or qualities, as virtūs, courage; misericordia, pity, etc.

[2] The "Objective Genitive" is used chiefly with abstract nouns. Whether a particular Genitive is Subjective or Objective may usually be determined by the sense, thus, odium hostium, the hatred of the enemy, might mean either the hatred felt by the enemy (Subjective Genitive), or the hatred felt toward the enemy (Objective Genitive).

360. Genitive of the Whole. — In the sentence, A large part of the city was burned, Magna pars urbis incēnsa est, of-the-city limits the noun part and indicates the whole to which the part belongs. Hence the Genitive is called the Genitive of the Whole.

NOTE. — With most words the whole to which the part belongs may also be expressed by ō, ex, or dē with the Ablative, thus: multī amīcōrum meōrum, or multī ex (dē) amīcīs meīs, many of my friends, or many out of (from) my friends.

361. Genitive with Certain Adjectives. — In English with certain adjectives expressing desire, knowledge, fullness, sharing, guilt, and their opposites, the relation of the adjective to the noun[1] is expressed by of, sometimes by for, or in. This relation is indicated in Latin by the Genitive, thus: Many are desirous of peace, Multī avidī pācis sunt.

The Castle of St. Angelo
(Mausoleum of the Roman Emperor Hadrian, 117–138 A.D.)

362. Rule. — In Latin a noun in the Genitive may be used to limit or define the meaning of another noun. The Genitive may be a Possessive Genitive, a Subjective Genitive, an Objective Genitive, or a Genitive of the Whole ("Partitive Genitive"), according to the relation it bears to the noun it limits. Also a noun in the Genitive may be used to limit or define certain adjectives expressing desire, knowledge, fullness, sharing, guilt, and their opposites.

[1] The noun is the object of a verbal idea contained in the adjective; consequently this Genitive is Objective.

363. Genitive and Ablative of Quality or Description. — In the English sentence, (1) Cicero was a man of loyalty, the prepositional phrase of-loyalty is equivalent to the adjective loyal and describes the noun man. This sentence becomes in Latin: Cicerō vir fīdus fuit; of-loyalty is translated by an adjective. Similarly if we say, (2) Cicero was a man of great loyalty, the phrase of-great-loyalty may be translated by fīdissimus; but we may also say: Cicerō vir magnae fideī (or magnā fidē) fuit. The noun with its adjective forms an adjective phrase describing vir.

NOTE. — The phrase, if it expresses mental (internal) character, may be in either the Genitive or Ablative. Physical (external) character is usually expressed only by the Ablative, thus: puer magnō capite, a boy with a large head. In certain special phrases expressing measure, only the Genitive is used, thus: fossa octō pedum (lit. a trench of eight feet), an eight-foot trench; and iter paucōrum diērum, a journey of a few days, or a few days' journey.

364. Rule. — In Latin a noun accompanied by an adjective may be used as an adjective phrase to describe a noun. The phrase may be in either the Genitive or the Ablative, but the Ablative is generally used to express physical characteristics, and the Genitive is used to express measure. If in the English sentence no adjective is used with the noun in the phrase, the phrase must be expressed in Latin by an adjective alone.

365. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. A wall of great height. 2. A bright-eyed girl, lit. a girl with bright (clārus, -a, -um) eyes (oculus, -ī, m.). 3. Citizens of good character.

4. A journey of ten days. 5. A man of bravery. 6. The soldiers' fear of danger. 7. The attack of the enemy. 8. The help of our allies. 9. He is a soldier of great courage. 10. Our praise (laus) of our allies. 11. Many of the citizens are more desirous of money than of reputation.

SECOND SECTION

366. VOCABULARY XLIV

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
hatred	ódium, ódī, n.	*odium, odi*ous
love	ámor, amōris, m.
patriotism	ámor pátriae
bring about	effíciō, -ere, effēcī, efféctus	effect, efficient
kill	interfíciō, -ere, etc.
accomplish	perfíciō, -ere, etc.	*perfect, perfec*tion
fond of, loving	ámāns, m., f., n., Gen. amántis
patriotic	ámāns pátriae
eager for	áppetēns, m., f., n., Gen. appeténtis	*appe*tite
covetous, greedy	ávidus, -a, -um	*avid*ity
the other, rest of	cēterī, -ae, -a	etc. (et cetera)
desirous, eager	cúpidus, -a, -um	Cf. cupiō, 233
desire, greed	cupíditās, -tātis, f.	cupidity
skilled, experienced	perītus, -a, -um
unskilled, inexperienced	imperītus, -a, -um

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

367. A. 1. Amor huius patris, imperātōris ēgregiā fāmā, multum nocēbat fīliō, quī erat puer minimae prūdentiae. 2. Multī ex rēgis amīcīs, quōrum cupiditās potestātis erat maxima, illōs annōs eī dīligenter serviēbant. 3. Hic cīvis patriae amantissimus, quī lībertātis cupidus erat, ob odium suum rēgis inīquī interfectus est. 4. Amīcus tuus satis perītus est reī mīlitāris. 5. Tū, quī vir es magnae dīligentiae atque appetēns labōris, facile poteris perficere omnia quae ā tē rēs pūblica petierit.

B. 1. Among the Romans patriotism was held (habeō) (as) a very great virtue. 2. Part of my friends are here in Rome, all the rest always remain in the country. 3. Those who are rather greedy for office often envy the magistrates. 4. That consul, a man of great virtue, will boldly bring about what the people demand. 5. On that day all things which the covetous Midas touched, even the food and wine, suddenly were of gold (aureus, -a, -um).

The Emperor Marcus Aurelius (161–180 A. D.) Sparing the Captives

LATIN SELECTION

368. The Trumpeter is Put to Death

Tubicen (trumpeter), ab hostibus captus, dīxit; "Vōs mē interficere nōn dēbētis, nam arma nōn habeō praeter (except) hanc tubam" (trumpet). Sed hostēs respondērunt: "Propter hanc ipsam tubam tē interficiēmus: tū ipse imperītus es quidem tēlōrum, sed cēterōs ad proelium incitās."

Nōn malōs modō, sed etiam eōs quī ad malum dūcunt pūnīrī (to be punished) oportet.

CHAPTER XLV (Review)

369. Vocabularies and Syntax. — (a) Review carefully Vocabularies XLI–XLIV. (b) Practice, for accuracy and speed, on diēs, rēs, fidēs. Review the Rules of Syntax, I–XLIV, pages 338–341.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters XLI–XLIV

370. A. 1. Hōc in oppidō Caesar septem diēs remānsit; octāvō diē exercitum ex oppidō ēdūxit.

2. Gallī duōbus ante diēbus cōnsēderant ad silvam quae ab illō oppidō nōn magnō spatiō aberat; ibi fossam septem pedēs altam perdūcēbant atque vāllum octō pedum exstruēbant.

3. Dux hōrum barbarōrum, vir maximae virtūtis atque amantissimus patriae suae, et populum Rōmānum ōderat et Caesarī invidēbat; quārē cupiēbat nōn modo huic exercituī Rōmānō multum nocēre sed etiam imperātōrem ipsum interficere.

4. Huic autem ducī multum cōnfīdēbātur ā cēterīs prīncipibus Gallōrum; hī igitur quī reī mīlitāris imperītiōrēs erant, eō tempore magnam victōriam spērābant.

5. Ubi Caesaris exercitus iam sex mīlia passuum prōcessit, Fabius, lēgātus ēgregiā fāmā, quī novissimum agmen cum prūdentiā dūcēbat, subitō circiter quadrāgintā equitēs Gallōs ā sinistrā manū cōnspexit.

B. (Optional). 6. Fabius tamen pugnāre nōn cupiēbat, equitātū enim Gallī Rōmānōs magnopere superābant; praetereā (besides) hic locus proeliō nōn erat idōneus; quā rē summā celeritāte ad cēterās exercitūs Rōmānī partēs contendit.

7. Tandem quattuor hōrīs Rōmānī longā viā ad Gallōrum castra pervēnērunt; ibi Caesar aciem suam magnā in plānitiē īnstrūxit.

8. Ubi Rōmānī duās hōrās hāc in plānitiē cōnstitēbant neque tum quidem barbarī ex castrīs vēnērunt, Fabius, cui Caesar multum cōnfīdēbat, iussus est impetum in portās castrōrum māximā vī facere.

9. Deinde maiōrem huius diēī partem Gallī fortiter restitērunt, sed Rōmānī erant etiam multō eīs audāciōrēs; itaque tandem Gallī victī sunt atque sē in silvās recēpērunt.

10. Posterō (next) diē Gallī sē suaque omnia Caesarī dēdidērunt, quī plūrimōs ex prīncipibus in fidem populī Rōmānī accēpit.

11. Paulō post Fabius Rōmam vēnit. Hīc invēnit frātrēs et sorōrēs; pater autem et māter rūrī permanēbant.

371. Derivation Exercise, Type III.— With the help of a dictionary, find ten English words related to faciō. Insert these, with illustrative sentences, in the notebook. Bear in mind that after a prefix the verb root fac weakens to -fic, and the perfect passive participle factus becomes -fectus.

THE CLASSICAL INFLUENCE UPON ADVERTISING

(Optional)

372. In advertising, Latin (and Greek) names, chosen to emphasize the special merit claimed, are often used. These names create interest and suggest that the article is truly standard in quality. Thus, the "Hercules Stump Puller" is so named since Hercules in ancient legend was a divine being who performed beneficial labors for mankind; and the "Vulcan Toaster" appropriately gets its title from the god of Fire.

Advertisements are often made attractive by decorative designs from Greek and Roman art, or by pictures concerned with classical subjects.

It will be easy to find on the covers of magazines, in advertisements, posters, and other means of publicity, such examples of the influence of Greek and Roman civilization.

Exercise. — Look for examples of classical influence upon advertising, and make a collection of them for your notebook.

Fīnis corōnat opus — The end crowns the work

CHAPTER XLVI

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES WITH INDICATIVE

FIRST SECTION

373. Preliminary Review. — Review the Latin sentences of 370 for oral and written work at the beginning of the recitation.

374. Conditional Sentences. — In the English sentence,

A B

If he obeys the laws, he is a good citizen, the subordinate clause (A) indicates the condition under which the principal clause (B) becomes true. The sentence is called a Conditional sentence. The subordinate clause, introduced by the conjunction if, is called a Conditional clause or the Condition.

A Vase Painting
(Ship and Dolphins)

375. Simple (or Neutral) Conditions. — A conditional clause in which the speaker or writer presupposes a fact, without implying whether the condition is fulfilled or not fulfilled, is called a Simple (or Neutral) Condition. Simple Conditions have the Indicative, and are called Present, Past, and Future according to the time referred to.

The Latin conditional conjunctions are sī, if; nisi, if . . . not, unless; sīn, but if (following an affirmative Condition).

EXAMPLES OF SIMPLE (OR NEUTRAL) CONDITIONS

1. Present:

Sī amīcus tuus Rōmae est, Forum saepe videt.

If your friend is in Rome, he often sees the Forum.

2. Past:

Sī Rōmae erat (or fuit), multa aedificia pulchra vīdit (or vidēbat).

If he was in Rome, he saw many beautiful buildings.

3. Future :[1]

Sī Rōmam veniet, Forum vidēbit.

If he comes (or shall come[2]) to Rome, he will see the Forum.

376. VOCABULARY XLVI

ENGLISH MEANINGS	LATIN WORDS	RELATED ENGLISH WORDS
blame, fault	cúlpa, -ae, f.	*culp*rit
tongue, language	língua, -ae, f.	*lingu*al
condition, terms	condíciō, -ōnis, f.	*condition*al
tribe, people	gēns, géntis, f.	*gent*leman
praise	laus, laúdis, f.	*laud*able
finish, exhaust	cōnfíciō, -ere, -fēcī, -féctus	*confect*ionery
close, confine	claúdō, -ere, claúsī, claúsus	*cloi*ster
shut out	exclūdō, -ere, -clūsī, -clūsus	*exclus*ive
shut off, stop	interclūdō, -ere, -clūsī, -clūsus
throw down	dēíciō,[3] -ere, dēiēcī, dēiéctus[4]	dejected
throw out	ēíciō, -ere, ēiēcī, ēiéctus	eject
desist from, cease	dēsístō, -ere, dēstitī, —	desist
divide	dīvidō, -ere, dīvīsī, dīvīsus	*divid*end
doubtful	dúbius, -a, -um	dubious
doubt, hesitate	dúbitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	in*dubit*ably
powerful	pótēns, Gen. poténtis	potent

[1] A "Future More Vivid Condition," because the auxiliaries shall and will express futurity more vividly than should and would.

[2] The Future tense is used in Latin, since the Condition refers to future time.

[3] Pronounced dē-íiciō. Similarly ēíciō is pronounced ē-íiciō.

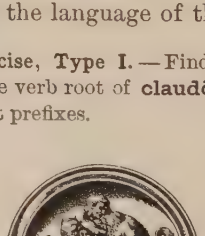
SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

377. A. 1. Ubi hostēs ex hōc oppidō ēiectī erunt, dēsistent exercitum nostrum ā rē frūmentāriā exclūdere. 2. Hic cīvis potentissimus, vir minimae virtūtis, semper plūs laudis sibi quaerit. 3. Inīquae sunt pācis condiciōnes quās dux hostium nōbīs dat. Agrōs nostrōs captōs retinēbit et dīvidet. 4. Tum cōnsul, omnī spē dēiectus, complūrēs hōrās dubitābat equitēs Gallōrum ab reliquō exercitū interclūdere. Quī (and these) igitur celerrimē fugā salūtem petere coepērunt. Quā rē (and consequently) cōnsul miserrimus in magnā erat culpā. 5. Nōn dubiam victōriam spērāmus, equitātū enim hostēs magnopere superāmus.

B. 1. The oldest chief of that tribe, who a few days before had been freed from rather serious (gravior) blame, now sought the friendship of the Roman people. 2. He left (discēdō) home for-the-country; she, however, came from-the-country to-Rome. 3. The soldiers of this cohort were cut off from supplies, yet they were not without hope. 4. The lieutenant, whom the Gauls had shut up in this town, suddenly cast himself down from the wall. 5. The language of the Gauls was very unlike the language of the Romans.

378. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Find for the notebook four English words in which the verb root of claudō (claud, -clūd) appears. Select words with different prefixes.



From a Roman Lamp
(Hercules Overcoming the Lion)

Mortālem vītam mors cum immortālis adēmit. (Lucretius)
When immortal death has taken away the mortal life

CHAPTER XLVII

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD · CLAUSES OF PURPOSE

FIRST SECTION

379. Preliminary Review. — Review the Translation Exercises of 377 for oral and written work.

380. The Moods in English. — By mood or mode (from modus, manner) is meant the manner in which the action (or state) is expressed by the verb. There are four Finite [1] moods in English: the Indicative, which expresses the action as a fact; the Subjunctive, which expresses the action as an idea; the Potential, which expresses the action as a possibility; the Imperative, which expresses the action as a command.[2]

381. The Latin Subjunctive. — The Latin Subjunctive has four tenses: Present, Imperfect, Perfect, Pluperfect. The Subjunctive (Active) tenses of vocō are formed as follows: Present, voce (the Present stem vocā, with a

[1] "Finite" is from fīnītus (fīniō), "bounded," "limited." The Finite Moods are those "limited" by person and number. The Infinitive (sometimes called a Mood) is from īnfīnītus; that is, the Infinitive forms express the verbal idea in a general, "unlimited" way.

[2] The names of the moods are from the Latin: Indicative (indicō, I declare), used to declare or assert something as a fact; Subjunctive (subiungō, I subjoin), used chiefly in subordinate clauses (i.e. clauses subjoined or attached to a part of a complex sentence); Potential (potēns, able), used to express something as possible; Imperative (imperō, I command), used chiefly to express a command.

changed to e) + m (personal ending), vócem, I may call;[1] Imperfect, vocā (Present stem) + rem, vocārem, I might call; Perfect, vocāv (Perfect stem) + erim, vocāverim, I may have called; Pluperfect, vocāv (Perfect stem) + issem, vocāvíssem, I might have called.

In the Passive the Present and Imperfect tenses have the Passive personal endings, thus : vócer, I may be called; vocārer, I might be called; the Perfect and Pluperfect tenses are formed by means of the Perfect Passive Participle, with sim for the Perfect, vocātus sim, I may have been called; with éssem for the Pluperfect, vocātus éssem, I might have been called. The four tenses of the Subjunctive (Active and Passive) of vocō are conjugated on p. 326.

382. Subjunctive of Sum. — The four Subjunctive tenses of sum are : Present, sim, I may be; Imperfect, éssem, I might be; Perfect, fúerim, I may have been; Pluperfect, fuíssem, I might have been. These tenses are conjugated on page 335.

383. A Clause of Purpose in English. — In the English sentence, (1) He comes to praise the soldiers, the Infinitive gives the purpose of the action. We may also express the same idea by (2) He comes that (or in order that) he may praise the soldiers.[2] In English we usually express purpose by an Infinitive, as in (1). In (2) that (or in order that) he may praise the soldiers is a subordinate clause of purpose, introduced by the conjunction that (or in order that); and the auxiliary verb may (Past tense might) is used to form a "Potential verb phrase" (i.e. a phrase expressing possibility). If we change the main verb to a Past tense, we must use the Past tense of the auxiliary verb in the clause of purpose, thus: (3) He came that (or in order that) he might praise the soldiers. Here we have a past purpose, and the Past tense of the auxiliary.

[1] The Latin Subjunctive has various meanings; in this Chapter it is treated, for convenience, as equivalent to the English Potential.

[2] Or for the purpose of praising the soldiers.

384. A Clause of Purpose in Latin. — In Latin we express purpose, as in (2) and (3), by a subordinate clause with the Subjunctive, thus: Present, Vĕnit, ut mīlitēs laudet, He comes that he may praise the soldiers; Past, Vēnit, ut mīlitēs laudāret, He came that he might praise the soldiers. In Latin, as in English, when the main verb is changed to a Past tense, the verb in the clause of purpose is also changed to a Past tense. We might say that when the tense is "moved back a notch" in the main clause, the tense is "moved back a notch" in the clause of purpose.

NOTE. — The Romans felt a clause of purpose not as a fact, but as an idea, that is, an action willed or intended. The Present Subjunctive is used to express an action as willed or intended from-the-present; and the Imperfect Subjunctive is used to express an action as willed or intended from-the-past.

After a Present, a Future, a "Present Perfect," or a Future Perfect tense in the main clause, use a Present Subjunctive in the clause of purpose; after a Past tense (Imperfect, Historical Perfect, or Pluperfect), use an Imperfect Subjunctive in the clause of purpose. (See pp. 343–344.)

385. For practice, the ut-clause of purpose should be inflected rapidly as follows:

	PRESENT	IMPERFECT
	Singular	Singular
1.	ut laudem, that I may praise	ut laudārem, that I might praise
2.	ut laudēs, that you may praise	ut laudārēs, that you might praise
3.	ut laudet, that he may praise	ut laudāret, that he might praise
	Plural	Plural
1.	ut laudēmus, that we may praise	ut laudārēmus, that we might praise
2.	ut laudētis, that you may praise	ut laudārētis, that you might praise
3.	ut laudent, that they may praise	ut laudārent, that they might praise

386. A Negative Clause of Purpose. — The English sentence, They are defending liberty, that they may not be slaves, becomes in Latin: Lībertātem dēfendunt, nē servī sint. Here we see that the clause of purpose is negative and is expressed by nē, that . . . not, with the Subjunctive. This sentence in Past time becomes: They were defending liberty, that they might not be slaves, Lībertātem dēfendēbant, nē servī essent.

387. Rule. — Purpose is expressed in Latin by the Subjunctive introduced by ut (that, in order that) or nē (that . . . not, in order that . . . not). In Latin the Infinitive should not be used to express purpose.

388. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. I hastened into the field to ask my father. 2. I came back as quickly as possible in order not to be late. 3. The citizens are assembling (conveniunt) to praise the leader of the soldiers. 4. He fought bravely that the citizens might be free. 5. He was banished (ēiciō), that he might not harm (noceō) the state. 6. We shall remain at home in order to read the new book.

SECOND SECTION

389. VOCABULARY XLVII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
trader	mercātor, -tōris, m.	*mer*chant
blood	sánguis, sánguinis, m.	*sanguin*ary
arouse, excite	cóncitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	See excitō, 223
go, yield	cēdō, -ere, céssī, cessūrus	cede, se*cede*
put around, surround	circúmdō, -āre, -dedī, -dătus
come around, surround	circumvéniō, -īre, -vēnī, -véntus	circumvent
fail, revolt, rebel	dēfíciō, -ere, -fēcī, -féctus	deficient, defect
satisfy	satis fáciō, -ere, fēcī, fáctum	*satisfac*tion

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
put down, put aside	dēpōnō, -ere, -posuī, -positus	depose, deposit
set forth, explain	expōnō, -ere, etc.	exponent, expose
put on, impose	impōnō, -ere, etc.	impostor
put against, oppose	oppōnō, -ere, etc.	opposite
put before, propose	prōpōnō, -ere, etc.	proposition
near	prope [1] (adv. and prep. w. Acc.)
near, a relative	propinquus, -a, -um	propinquity

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

390. A. 1. Illī Gallī arma sua dēposuērunt; eīs (Dative) igitur Caesar servitūtem nōn imposuit. Vōbīs, Ō cīvēs Rōmānī, haec verba dīxī, ut Caesar ā vōbīs omnibus putārētur imperātor benignissimus. 2. Hic mercātor cōnfectus est multīs vulneribus; et sanguis et vīrēs eum iam dēficiunt. 3. Propinquī meī maximum praemium iūdicibus prōpōnent nē iūstam poenam dent. 4. Barbarī, quī odiō lēgātī Rōmānī magnopere concitātī erant, silvam ad quam is sē recēperat celeriter circumvēnērunt. 5. Cīvitās quae lībertātis lūce caret numquam potest lēgēs habēre optimās.

A Roman Mosaic
(Doves and Bowl)

B. 1. All the Roman merchants were now going out of Gaul, for winter was approaching. 2. Caesar imposed rather heavy labor upon the fourth and seventh legions (Dative), in order that within three hours he might surround the smaller camp with a wall and a ditch. 3. This matter, soldiers, I will explain to you in a few words, in order that you may not be excited without cause. 4. The leader of the Gauls opposed his cavalry to the right wing (Dative) of the Romans, which had taken its place near the river. 5. To free the inhabitants of this town from fear of the enemy, Caesar decided to seize the neighboring mountain.

---

[1] From prope were formed the adjectives: propior, -ius, nearer; proximus, -a, -um, nearest. Cf. "ap*proxim*ate," "*proxim*ity."

391. Derivation Exercise. Type I. — From cēdō we have over one hundred related English words. Select five for the notebook.

The Romans as Builders, Artisans, and Artists

(Optional)

392. The Romans built very grandly. The domes of their magnificent temples, the stately arches of their bridges and aqueducts, serve as models to the modern world. Cathedrals, churches, monumental arches, courthouses, railroad terminals, and private dwellings, — all alike echo the Roman architecture.

The greatest contribution of the Romans to scientific building methods was their effective use of cement. Many of their cement constructions have lasted in first-rate condition to the present day.

Among the articles in the manufacture of which the Roman artisans were experts was pottery, which they used more than we because they were not equally skillful in producing utensils of metal. Their pottery was often molded into beautiful shapes, and was painted by way of decoration.

Sometimes the Roman artists worked in glass and made beautiful vases. They were also remarkable as goldsmiths and silversmiths, as gem cutters and makers of mosaics.

In these lesser arts, as in the nobler fields of painting and sculpture, the Romans were the pupils of the Greeks. We must never forget how completely the influence of Greece penetrated the civilization of Rome.

LATIN SELECTION

393. Joseph, Son of Jacob[1]

The plot of Joseph's jealous brothers.

Frātrēs Iosēph cōnspēxērunt mercātōrēs, quī petēbant Aegyptum cum camēlīs (camels) quae portābant varia arōmata (spices). Cōnstituērunt frātrēs Iosēph vēndere (to sell) eīs mercātōribus, id quod etiam fēcērunt.

Jacob mourns his son as dead.

Tunc frātrēs Iosēph tinxērunt vestem (coat) eius in sanguine haedī quem occīderant, et eam mīsērunt ad patrem cum hīs verbīs, "Invēnimus hanc vestem. Estne fīlī tuī?" Quam ubi vīdit pater, exclāmāvit, "Vestis est fīlī meī; fera pessima dēvōrāvit (devoured) Iosēph." Deinde scindit (rent) vestem (garment) suam. Omnēs līberī eius convēnērunt, ut lēnīrent dolōrem patris, sed Iacōb nōn accēpit cōnsōlātiōnem (consolation) dīxitque, "Ego dēscendam dolōre magnō cum fīliō meō ad mortem."

But Joseph becomes the governor of Egypt.

Potiphar Aegyptius, quī ēmit Iosēph ā mercātōribus, benignē eum accēpit. Rēx tandem ad sē vocāvit Iosēph eīque nārrāvit somnia (dreams) quibus permōtus erat; et Iosēph illī sīgnificātiōnem eōrum dīxit. "Itaque, Rēx," inquit Iosēph, "necesse est virum prūdentem dēligere eumque iubēre partem frūmentī in aedificiīs pūblicīs pōnere atque eam dīligenter servāre, nam inopia erit frūmentī." Rēgī placuit cōnsilium; quārē dīxit Iosēph, "Quis est in Aegyptō tē prūdentior? Nēmō certē est." Dētrāxit (took off) dē manū suā ānulum (ring) et Iosēph dedit.

---

[1] From the Latin Bible (the Vulgate). Joseph, Jacob, and Benjamin, being Hebrew words, are not declined.

Cōnsilium vērum dare audeāmus līberē. (Cicero)
Let us dare to give truthful counsel freely

CHAPTER XLVIII

SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD (Cont.) · SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDEPENDENT CLAUSES

FIRST SECTION

394. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write a synopsis of the Subjunctive (Active and Passive) of vocō. 2. Conjugate each tense, testing your speed.

395. Subjunctive of Moneō. — The Subjunctive (Active) tenses of moneō are formed as follows: the Present tense is monē (Present stem) + a (sign of the Subjunctive in all except the First Conjugation) + m, móneam; the Imperfect tense is monē (Present stem) + rem, monērem; the Perfect tense is monu (Perfect stem) + erim, monúerim; the Pluperfect tense is monu (Perfect stem) + issem, monuíssem.

In the Passive the Present and Imperfect tenses have the Passive personal endings, thus: Present tense, mónear; Imperfect tense, monērer. The Perfect and Pluperfect tenses are formed by means of the Perfect Passive Participle, with sim for the Perfect, mónitus sim; with éssem for the Pluperfect, mónitus éssem. The four Subjunctive tenses of moneō are conjugated on pages 327–328.

396. Subjunctive of Possum. — The four Subjunctive tenses of possum are — Present, póssim; Imperfect, póssem; Perfect, potúerim; Pluperfect, potuíssem. These tenses are conjugated on page 336.

Subjunctive in Independent Clauses

397. I. Wishes. — In English we use the Subjunctive mood to express a wish, thus: (1) Peace be with you! Sometimes the wish is introduced by may, would that, would, or O that, as: (2) O that he were here! In Latin also the Subjunctive mood is used to express wishes: (1) Pāx sit vōbīscum! (2) Utinam hīc esset!

Wishes are classified as (1) Future Possible, (2) Present Unfulfilled, and (3) Past Unfulfilled. These three classes are illustrated by the following sentences: (1) Pater Rōmam crās veniat! May father come to Rome to-morrow! (2) Utinam pater Rōmae hodiē esset! Would that father were in Rome to-day! (3) Utinam pater herī Rōmam nē vēnisset! Would that father had not come to Rome yesterday!

Observe. — The negative is nē, not. Utinam, would that, O that, may be used with Future Possible Wishes, and is regularly used in the other two classes. Finally, note carefully the tense used for each class.

398. Rule. — In Latin, as in English, the Subjunctive is used to express a wish, and is called the "Optative Subjunctive" (from optō, I wish). The negative is nē. There are three kinds of wishes. In these the same tenses are used as in English: "Future Possible Wish" (Present Subjunctive); "Present Unfulfilled Wish" (Imperfect Subjunctive); "Past Unfulfilled Wish" (Pluperfect Subjunctive).

399. II. Exhortations. — In English and in Latin the Subjunctive is used to express an exhortation, that is, an act willed or urged by the speaker with reference to himself and certain others. For example: Praise we the king! Rēgem laudēmus! In English, however, an exhortation usually is expressed by "let us" [1] followed by an Infinitive without to, thus: Let us praise the king! The tense in exhortations is the Present.

400. III. Commands. — A command in the second person is generally expressed by the Imperative mood.[2] When, however, a command is given in the third person, we have, as in the exhortation, action willed by the speaker, although with reference to some one other than himself. Such commands are expressed, both in English and in Latin, in the same way as exhortations. Thus: Let disloyal citizens remain in prison! Maneant in carcere cīvēs īnfīdī! The tense of exhortations and commands is almost always the Present.

401. Rule. — In Latin, as in English, the Subjunctive is used to indicate something as willed or urged, and is called the "Volitive Subjunctive" (from volō, I will). The Subjunctive is, therefore, used to express an exhortation (or request), or a command. The negative is nē.

SECOND SECTION

402. IV. Potential Expressions. — Just as the English auxiliaries should and would[3] are used to express a weaker

---

[1] "Let" is a verb in the Imperative mood, "us" is its object; the Infinitive "(to) praise" depends on "let."

[2] A negative command (i.e. a prohibition), if addressed to an individual second person (or persons), is (politely) expressed by nōlī (singular), be thou unwilling, nōlīte (plural), be you unwilling, thus: Do not blame this good man! Nōlī (nōlīte) hunc virum bonum culpāre!

[3] The use of should and would with different persons is determined in the same way as the use of shall and will. In statements of futurity shall and should are used with the first person (singular and plural), will and would are used with the second and third persons; will and would are used with the first person to express willingness, consent, or determination; in questions as to futurity shall and should are used with the first and second persons, will and would with the third person.

futurity than is denoted by shall and will, so in Latin the Present Subjunctive is used to express a weaker futurity than that of the Future Indicative. Thus: laudābō, I shall praise (a future fact), but laudem, I should praise (a future probability). This potential use of the Subjunctive to express weak futurity is sometimes called the "Conditional Subjunctive," because it is used in such conditional sentences as require in English should and would, thus: If I should see him, he would tell me, Sī eum videam, mihi dīcat.

403. Rule. — In Latin the Conditional Subjunctive is used to express something merely as probable. It is then translated with the aid of the modal auxiliaries should and would. The negative is nōn.

404. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. O that my son may be a good and brave man! 2. Would that we were now in Rome! 3. Would that I had seen that city! 4. Let us praise the courage of the loyal citizens. 5. Let us not hesitate to blame the disloyal. 6. Let all good citizens dare to fight for their country. 7. Do not envy (lit. be unwilling to envy) this good man. 8. He would not say this about us. 9. If I should see him, I would ask him about his brother, who is in France.

405. Derivation Exercise, Type III. — Find for the notebook five English words related to sūmō, cōnsūmō, resūmō.

A Christian Epitaph from the Catacombs

Gerontī, vībās (vīvās) in Deō — Gerontius, mayest thou live in God

(The tree and the sheep with the shepherd probably symbolize the tree of life and the soul of Gerontius, now with Christ, its Shepherd)

LATIN SELECTION

406. Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued)

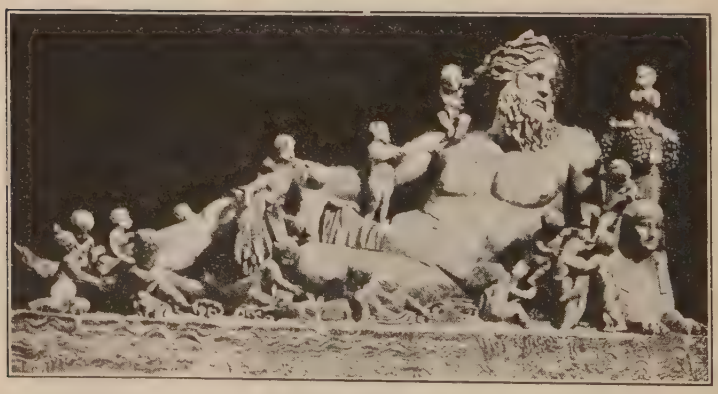
A famine in Egypt.

Vēnit inopia frūmentī per septem annōs et famēs (famine) gravis erat. Tunc Aegyptiī, quōs premēbat famēs, vēnērunt ad rēgem et petēbant cibum. Quōs Pharaō mīsit ad Iosēph, quī Aegyptiīs frūmentum vēndēbat.

Joseph's brothers come to Egypt to buy grain.

Iacōb etiam propter inopiam frūmentī mīsit fīliōs suōs in Aegyptum. Itaque eō pervēnērunt frātrēs Iosēph, sed pater retinuit domī nātū minimum, quī vocābātur Beniamīn. Decem fratrēs in cōnspectum Iosēph vēnērunt et eum suppliciter salūtāvērunt. Cognōvit eōs Iosēph nec ipse est cognitus ab eīs. Nōn indicāvit (declare) sē statim, sed eōs interrogāvit, "Quā ex terrā vēnistis et quō cōnsiliō?" Quī respondērunt, "Vēnimus ē terrā Canaan ut emerēmus frūmentum."



Father Nile

(The sixteen playing children symbolize the sixteen cubits that the river rises. The Sphinx, Horn of Plenty, Hippopotamus, and Crocodile are emblematic of Egypt)

Nēmō vir magnus sine afflātū dīvīnō umquam fuit. (Cicero)
Without inspiration of God no man was ever great

CHAPTER XLIX

SUBJUNCTIVE (Cont.) · CLAUSES OF RESULT

FIRST SECTION

407. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write a synopsis of the Subjunctive (Active and Passive, side by side) of vocō and moneō; then write the synopsis of sum and possum. 2. Conjugate all the Subjunctive tenses of these verbs. Can you do this in two minutes?

408. Subjunctive of Regō. — The Subjunctive (Active) tenses of regō are formed as follows: the Present tense is reg (verb root) + a (sign of the Subjunctive in the Third Conjugation) + m, régam; the Imperfect tense is rege (Present stem) + rem, régerem; the Perfect tense is rēx (Perfect stem) + erim, rēxerim; the Pluperfect tense is rēx (Perfect stem) + issem, rēxíssem.

In the Passive the Present and Imperfect tenses have the Passive personal endings: Present tense, régar; Imperfect tense, régerer. The Perfect and Pluperfect tenses are formed by means of the Perfect Passive Participle, with sim for the Perfect, rēctus sim; with éssem for the Pluperfect, rēctus éssem.

Subjunctive of Capiō. — The Present Subjunctive (Active) of capiō is cápi-am (cf. rég-am); the Imperfect, cáp-erem (cf. rég-erem); the Perfect, cēp-erim; the Pluperfect, cēp-íssem.

Subjunctive of Audiō. — The Present Subjunctive (Active) of audiō is aúdi-am; the Imperfect, audī-rem; the Perfect, audīv-erim; the Pluperfect, audīv-íssem.

The Subjunctive tenses (Active and Passive) of regō, capiō, and audiō are given on pages 329, 330, 332, 334.

A Roman Coin of Hadrian

409. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Conjugate each tense of the Subjunctive of regō. 2. With the book closed, write a synopsis of regō (Active and Passive, side by side). 3. Repeat the synopsis from memory; then conjugate each tense, testing your speed. 4. In the same way learn the Subjunctive of capiō and audiō. 5. Write in parallel columns a synopsis of the Subjunctive (Active) of culpō, obsideō, exclūdō, interficiō, mūniō. Conjugate each tense three times, testing your speed.

410. VOCABULARY XLIX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
heart	cor, córdis, n.	*cord*ial, con*cord*
difficulty	difficúltās, -tātis, f.	difficulty
take care, care for	cūrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	cure, curative
care, attention	cūra, -ae, f.	sine*cure*
disturb, alarm	pertúrbō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	perturbation
alarm	pertérreō, -ēre, -uī, -itus
be afraid	pertimēscō, -ere, pertímuī, —
lie down, lie slain	iáceō, -ēre, -uī, —	ad*jacent*
besiege	obsídeō, -ēre, obsēdī, obséssus	obsess, obsession
press, oppress	prémō, -ere, préssī, préssus	pressure
overwhelm, crush	ópprimō, -ere, oppréssī, oppréssus	oppress, oppression
live	vívō, -ere, vīxī, vīctūrus	*viv*acious, *viv*id
alive	vívus, -a, -um	*viv*isection
such	tālis, m., f., -e, n.
scarcely	vix (adv.)

SECOND SECTION

411. A Clause of Result in English. — In the English sentance,

A B

(1) The road is so difficult that we are not able to proceed, the subordinate clause (B) expresses the result and is introduced by the conjunction that. The result is stated as a fact (by the Indicative mood). The result may, however, be stated not as a fact, but merely as probable or likely, thus: (2) The road is so difficult that we should not be able to proceed (i.e. if we should try). Here the clause of result states what, under the circumstances, naturally would be true; it is expressed as only probable (the fact is only implied). In English the result is usually expressed (as in 1) as a fact.

412. A Clause of Result in Latin. — In Latin a clause of result is expressed merely as probable or likely. Therefore the Subjunctive mood must be used (cf. 402). Thus: Iter tam difficile est ut prōcēdere nōn possīmus, The road is so difficult that we are not able to proceed (lit. that we should not be able to proceed). Since in English we usually express a clause of result as a fact, the Subjunctive in a Latin clause of result (though it really expresses something only as probable) is usually translated by the English Indicative.

413. Rule. — A Clause of Result is expressed in Latin by ut, that, so that (if negative, by ut . . . nōn) with the Subjunctive. It is, however, usually translated by the English Indicative.

414. Use of Tenses in Clauses of Result. — In clauses of result the tenses of the Latin Subjunctive are translated by the corresponding tenses of the Indicative. Thus:

The Barber Shop of Licinius

(1) Nostrī (mīlitēs) tam fortiter pugnant ut hostēs dē victōriā dēspērent (are despairing, despair) ; ut . . . dēspērāverint (have despaired). (2) Nostrī (mīlitēs) tam fortiter pugnābant ut hostēs dē victōriā dēspērārent (were despairing, despaired) ; ut . . . dēspērāverint (despaired).[1] From these examples we may draw the following rule.

415. Rule. — If the verb of the main clause refers to PRESENT (or future) time, the result, if not completed, is expressed by the Present Subjunctive ; if completed, by the Perfect Subjunctive. If the verb of the main clause refers to PAST time, the result, if not completed, is expressed (as a past action or state in progress) by the Imperfect Subjunctive ; if completed (and prior to a particular past time) by the Pluperfect Subjunctive.[1]

416. Exercise. — Express in Latin : 1. The road was so difficult that we could not proceed. 2. They attacked the camp so fiercely that the enemy surrendered (dēdō).[2] 3. The wound of the soldier is so severe (tantus, -a, -um) that he has remained in the camp. 4. Our leader was so kind that all the inhabitants praised him. 5. He wrote the letter in Latin (Latīnē, adv.) with such care that I read it without difficulty.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

417. A. 1. Centuriō tam multīs vulneribus cōnfectus erat ut ad pedēs rēgis barbarōrum iacēret; hic autem etiam tum magnum odium vix continēre poterat. 2. Nē cīvēs perturbentur hīs hostium vōcibus, numquam cōnsulēs nostrī tālēs condiciōnēs pācis audient. 3. Caesaris nōmen semper vīvet

[1] After a Past tense in the main clause a Clause of Result often has the Perfect Subjunctive. This "Historical Perfect" gives to the result clause the emphasis of an historical statement. Thus: Nostrī tam fortiter pugnābant ut hostēs fūgerint, Our men were fighting so bravely that the enemy fled.

[2] With reflexive pronoun.

apud omnēs gentēs quae rēbus mīlitāribus (Dative) student. 4. Castra nostra cum tantā cūrā et labōre mūnīvimus ut hostēs nōs opprimere nōn possint. 5. Utinam illō in proeliō equitēs Rōmānī impetūs hostium nē pertimuissent!

B. 1. To alarm these treacherous enemies, let us at once besiege their town. 2. Never would I injure this old man, for he freed me from many difficulties. 3. Let not such a fear oppress your hearts; I myself will care for all this matter most diligently. 4. Would that my father were alive to-day! 5. In that year Pharaoh, king of Egypt, ordered Joseph to place as much grain as possible in the public buildings, that afterwards the people might not suffer from famine.

418. Derivation Exercise, Type II. — Find for the notebook five English words related to doceō.

The Roman Dress

(Optional)

419. The outer garment of the Roman men was the toga, a kind of cloak; beneath this they wore the closely fitting tunic. The toga was always rather formal (like our "evening dress"), so that at home the Romans usually wore the tunic without the toga.[1]

The dress of Roman women consisted of three garments. Over an inner tunic, an outer tunic (the stola) was worn reaching to the feet. One of the tunics usually had short sleeves. The outdoor cloak (the palla), frequently of bright color, was a large rectangular piece of woolen cloth, which was worn in different ways.

A Roman Woman and her Maid

[1] Cf. Johnston, The Private Life of the Romans, pp. 64–66, 95–98.

CHAPTER L (Review)

420. Vocabularies and Syntax. — (a) Review carefully Vocabularies XLI–XLIX. (b) Practice, for accuracy and speed, on agmen, aciēs, obsideō, dēpōnō, dēiciō. (c) Review the Rules of Syntax, XLI–XLIX, pages 340–342.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in XLI–XLIX

421. 1. Hanc parvam equitum Gallōrum manum ā reliquō exercitū interclūdāmus, nē adventum nostrum prīncipī suō nūntient.

2. Utinam tālis dux reī mīlitāris imperītissimus hās cohortēs Rōmā in Galliam numquam abdūxisset!

3. Agmen septendecim mīlia passuum illō diē iter fēcit ut hoc oppidum quam prīmum obsidēret.

4. Cūr huic magistrātuī ā tē invidētur? Ego quidem numquam cupiam eius labōrēs perīculaque suscipere.

5. Ille centuriō, vir magnō corpore, quī laudis erat avidissimus, dē vallō sē dēiēcit ut Gallōs perterrēret.

The Portland Vase
(The vase once held the ashes of a member of the Imperial family)

6. Imperātōrī audācter cōnfīdāmus: ille quidem brevī tempore nōs omnibus cūrīs līberābit.

7. Hī Gallī multīs ante annīs nōbīs resistere cōnstituērunt; pars enim hārum gentium populō Rōmānō multum invidēbat, atque cēterae lībertātis cupiditāte magnopere concitātae erant.

8. Fīlius mercātōris, vir magnae fideī, expōnet hīs barbarīs eās rēs quās cīvitās Rōmāna ab eīs sibi nunc quaerit.

9. Ubi Caesar quīnque diēs in castrīs permānsit, sextō diē mīlitēs ēdūxit atque aciem in lātā plānitiē īnstrūxit.

LATIN ABBREVIATIONS IN ENGLISH

(Optional)

422. One can scarcely pass an hour without hearing or reading familiar abbreviations from the Latin, and many use them without ever knowing for what Latin words they stand. By studying them now we shall be able to use them intelligently.

Some of the commoner abbreviations are :

A.M.	ante merīdiem :	before noon,[1] forenoon
M.	merīdiēs (media diēs) :	midday, noon
P.M.	post merīdiem :	afternoon
A.B.	Artium Baccalaureus :	Bachelor of Arts	University Degrees
A.M.	Artium Magister :	Master of Arts
B.S.	Baccalaureus Scientiae :	Bachelor of Science
D.D.	Dīvīnitātis Doctor : [2]	Doctor of Divinity
M.D.	Medicīnae Doctor :	Doctor of Medicine
A.D.	Annō Dominī :	in the year of (our) Lord
ad lib.	ad libitum :	at pleasure
cf.	cōnfer [3] :	compare
e.g.	exemplī grātiā :	for example
et al.	et aliī :	and others
etc.	et cētera :	and the rest, and so forth
ibid.	ibīdem :	in the same place
i.e.	id est :	that is
lb.	lībra :	pound
per cent.	per centum :	by the hundred
sc.	scīlicet (scīre licet) :	namely
v.	vidē (imperative of videō) :	see

423. Exercise. — Consult in an English dictionary the appendix containing "Abbreviations used in Writing and Printing" and find five additional abbreviations from Latin. Keep a list of Latin abbreviations in your notebook. Copy those above, and add others.

[1] English "noon" is from Latin nōna (hōra), the ninth hour, the Roman dinner hour (really 3 P.M.).

[2] doctor, lit. teacher. [3] Imperative of cōnferō, I bring together.

Disce, puer, virtūtem ex mē vērumque labōrem. (Vergil)
Learn, O boy, true worth and toil from me

CHAPTER LI

IMPERATIVE MOOD · RELATIVE CLAUSES OF PURPOSE

FIRST SECTION

424. Preliminary Review. — Review the Latin sentences of 421 for oral and written work.

425. The Imperative Mood in English. — The Imperative mood is used to express a command (or entreaty). In English it has but one tense (the Present) and but one person (the second). In the Active voice the Imperative is the verb in its simplest form (e.g. Close the door); in the Passive voice it is the Imperative be and the Past Participle (e.g. Be advised by your friends). The subject of an Imperative is seldom expressed unless it is emphatic; if expressed, it may precede the Imperative (e.g. You close the door). In older English the subject often followed the Imperative (e.g. "Praise ye the Lord"). This use is now confined to the solemn style and to poetry.

426. The Imperative Mood in Latin. — In Latin the Imperative has two tenses (the Present and the Future). In the Present tense it has only the second person (singular and plural). The Passive voice is indicated by the Passive personal endings.

The Present Imperatives of vócō, móneō, régō, cápiō, and aúdiō are as follows:

	Active		Passive
	Sing.	Plur.	Sing.	Plur.
I.	vócā, call (thou)	vocāte, call (ye)	vocāre, be (thou) called	vocāminī, be (ye) called
II.	mónē, advise (thou)	monēte, advise (ye)	monēre, be (thou) advised	monēminī, be (ye) advised
III.	régĕ, rule (thou)	régite, rule (ye)	régĕre, be (thou) ruled	regíminī, be (ye) ruled
	cápĕ, take (thou)	cápite, take (ye)	cápĕre, be (thou) taken	capíminī, be (ye) taken
IV.	aúdī, hear (thou)	audīte, hear (ye)	audīre, be (thou) heard	audīminī, be (ye) heard

Observe. — 1. The Present Active Imperative (2d pers. sing.) of a regular verb consists of the verb root and the "sign of the conjugation." Thus vocā, call (thou) is the verb root voc + ā (the "sign of the First Conjugation").

2. The Present Passive Imperative has in the singular the same form as the Present Active Infinitive, and in the plural the same form as the second person plural of the Present Passive Indicative.

427. Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. With the book closed, write, with the meanings, the Present Imperatives (Active and Passive) of laudō, videō, mittō, accipiō, mūniō.

428. Commands, Exhortations, and Prohibitions. — The Imperative expresses an abrupt command, thus: Dā mihi istum librum, Give me that book (of yours).

[1] Exceptions are dīcō, dūcō, faciō, (and ferō), whose Present Imperatives (singular) are the verb roots dīc, dūc, fac, and fer.

Since the Present Imperative has only the second person, a command in the third person requires the Subjunctive, thus: Let him remain in prison, Maneat in carcere.

If the speaker includes himself in the command (e.g. Let us praise the soldiers), the resulting exhortation (in the first person plural) requires the Present Subjunctive (Laudēmus mīlitēs).

The negative with the Imperative and with the Volitive Subjunctive is nē, but a prohibition, if addressed to an individual second person (or persons), is expressed as in footnote 2, p. 248.

429. VOCABULARY LI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
knowledge	sciéntia, -ae, f.	science, *scient*ific
ask	intérrogō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	interrogate
climb, mount	cōnscéndō, -ere, cōnscéndī, cōnscēnsus	Cf. ascendō, 280.
know	scíō, scīre, scīvī, scītus	CONSCIOUS
feel, realize	séntiō, -īre, sēnsī, sēnsus	sense, *sens*ible
take, assume	sūmō, -ere, sūmpsī, sūmptus	pre*sume*
devour, destroy	cōnsūmō, -ere, -psī, -ptus	consumption
resume	resūmō, -ere, -psī, -ptus	resumption
absent	ábsēns, Gen. abséntis	absent
present	praésēns, Gen. praeséntis	present
fresh, new	récēns, Gen. recéntis	recent
one at a time	síngulī, -ae, -a[1]	single
unusual	singulāris, m. and f., -e, n.	singular
unharmed, safe	incólumis, m. and f., -e, n.
safe	sálvus, -a, -um	*salv*age, *salv*ation
safe	tūtus, -a, -um	*tut*elage

[1] Often best rendered in English by an adverb: Gentēs singulās vīcit, He conquered the peoples one-at-a-time (singly).

SECOND SECTION

430. A Relative Clause of Purpose. — The purpose of an action, as we have seen (387), is expressed in Latin, if affirmative, by ut (that, in-order-that); if negative, by nē (that . . . not, in-order-that . . . not) with the Subjunctive. However, the English sentence, He sent a friend to ask me, in Latin is, preferably, expressed: Mīsit amīcum quī mē rogāret (lit., who should ask me). Similarly, Many came to ask me, may become in Latin: Multī vēnērunt, quī mē rogārent, Many came (lit., who should ask me, or who were to ask me) to ask me. See Sequence of Tenses, pages 343–344.

431. Rule. — The relative pronoun may introduce a Clause of Purpose, if the antecedent of the relative is expressed or implied in the principal clause. The negative is nōn.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

432. A. 1. Hoc quod tē interrogō, statim mihi respondē. 2. Omnēs mīlitēs nostrī, quī nunc illōs altōs montēs cōnscendunt, domum veniant salvī atque incolumēs! 3. Resūmite proelium, mīlitēs; castra iam sunt tūta, sed iterum[1] fortiter pugnēmus, nē hostēs inopiam nostram omnium rērum sentiant! 4. Amīcōs fīdōs ad tē mittam, quibus dīcās omnia quae hāc dē rē scīs. 5. Cōnsul fīlium mīsit, quī praesēns supplicium sūmeret dē[2] iūdice īnfīdō.

B. 1. Caesar sent these lieutenants to give a fresh horse to each soldier. 2. My brother, who is now absent, excels all his friends in his knowledge of military affairs. 3. Gather as many arms as possible with which to defend this town. 4. Let Fabius, a man of remarkable bravery, hasten to the camp, that the cohorts which are there may not lose hope. 5. General, take my legions, for your forces are no longer fresh and unimpaired.

---

[1] iterum : again. [2] supplicium sūmere dē : to inflict punishment upon.

LATIN SELECTION

433. Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued)

Jacob again sends his sons to Egypt.

Postquam cōnsūmpta sunt omnia quae sēcum portāverant, fīliōs suōs Iacōb mīsit iterum in Aegyptum, quī emerent cibum. "Nōn possumus," respondērunt fīliī patrī, "ad praefectum (governor) Aegyptī accēdere sine Beniamīn; ipse enim iussit illum ad sē addūcī (to be brought)."

"Cūr," inquit pater, "mentiōnem (mention) fēcistis dē frātre vestrō minimō?"

"Ipse," respondērunt, "nōs interrogāvit an (whether) pater noster vīveret; an alium frātrem habērēmus. Tum addidit, 'Addūcite hūc frātrem vestrum.' Id praescīre (know in advance) nōn potuimus."

They are kindly received by the governor of Egypt.

Tandem in Aegyptum revēnērunt fīliī Iacōb et cum eīs parvulus frāter nōmine Beniamīn. Id nūntiātum est Iosēph.

Iosēph eōs benignē salūtāvit interrogāvitque, "Salvusne est ille senex quem patrem habētis? Vīvitne?"

Quī respondērunt, "Pater noster et vīvit et salvus est."

Iosēph autem oculōs in Beniamīn coniēcit et dīxit, "Iste est frāter vester minimus, quī domī remānserat apud patrem?"

"Ita vērō," respondērunt frātrēs.

Egyptians Sowing

Audentēs fortūna iuvābit. (Vergil)
Fortune will help the brave

CHAPTER LII

PARTICIPLES · ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE

FIRST SECTION

434. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the Imperatives of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, with their meanings. 2. Review the Translation Exercises of 432 for oral and written work.

435. Participles in English. — A Participle[1] in English (and in Latin) is an adjective form of a verb (e.g. They came to the temple, singing). It participates, or shares, in the nature both of an adjective and of a verb. Thus in our example, singing is a participial adjective and modifies the subject they. Being a form of a verb, a Participle has voice and tense, and is transitive or intransitive. Thus: Watching the dark clouds, I turned the boat toward the shore. Here watching (Present participle) modifies the subject I, and has a direct object clouds.

In English the Present participle (active) ends in -ing, and expresses action as going on at the same time with some other action. The Past participle (passive) expresses completed action. Thus: The soldier fell, wounded by a spear. The Perfect participle (active) is formed by prefixing having to the Past participle. Thus: Having lost his money, he walked home.

[1] Cf. particeps (pars + capiō), one participating, a sharer, partaker.

436. Participles in Latin. — In Latin all Present Active participles end in -ns,[1] and are formed on the Present stem. Thus: I. vócāns, calling; II. mónēns, advising; III. régēns, ruling; cápiēns, taking; IV. aúdiēns, hearing.

All Future[2] Active participles end in -ūrus, and are formed on the stem of the Perfect Passive participle. Thus: I. vocātūrus, -a, -um, about-to-call; II. monitūrus, -a, -um, about-to-advise; III. rēctūrus, -a, -um, about-to-rule; captūrus, -a, -um, about-to-take; IV. audītūrus, -a, -um, about-to-hear.

The Perfect Passive participles of the model verbs are: I. vocātus, -a, -um, (having been) called; II. mónitus, -a, -um, (having been) advised; III. rēctus, -a, -um, (having been) ruled; cáptus, -a, -um, (having been) taken; IV. audītus, -a, -um, (having been) heard.

The Future Passive participle ends in -ndus, and is formed on the Present stem. Thus: I. vocándus, -a, -um, to-be-called; monéndus, -a, -um, to-be-advised; III. regéndus, -a, -um, to-be-ruled; capiéndus, -a, -um, to-be-taken; IV. audiéndus, -a, -um, to-be-heard.

The Participles of the model verbs are also given on pages 326, 328, 330, 332, 334.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Practice for accuracy and speed. 2. Write a synopsis of the Participles of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, with their meanings. 3. Give, with their meanings, all the Participles of laudō, videō, mittō, faciō, mūniō.

437. The Nominative Absolute in English. — In the sentence, The city having been captured (A), the enemy surrendered (B),

[1] The Present participles are declined like Third Declension adjectives in -ns: vócāns, m. f. n., Gen. vocántis, m. f. n.; mónēns, Gen. monéntis, etc.

[2] Futurity is expressed in English by about (prep.) or going with the Infinitive, I am about-to-leave or I am going-to-leave.

the participial phrase (A), consisting of the noun city in the Nominative and the participle, having been captured, is called a Nominative Absolute, because the phrase in the Nominative is freed from — not a part of — the clause (B) beside which it is placed.[1]

NOTE. — The Nominative Absolute is not common; in place of it we generally use a subordinate clause (Temporal, Causal, Conditional, etc.) to indicate the exact relation of that part of the thought to the rest of the sentence. Thus, in our example, we may say when (after) the city was captured, or because (since) the city was captured, or if the city was captured.

438. The Ablative Absolute in Latin. — In Latin a participial phrase, consisting of a noun (or pronoun) and a participle in the Ablative, corresponds to the English Nominative Absolute. This phrase is called an Ablative Absolute, because, like the Nominative Absolute in English, it is but loosely connected with the rest of the sentence. The Ablative Absolute is usually translated by a subordinate clause (Temporal, Causal, Conditional, etc.) according to the relation it bears to the rest of the sentence. Thus: Urbe captā, hostēs sē dēdidērunt (lit. the city having been captured), When (or After) the city was captured (or Because the city was captured, or If the city was captured), the enemy surrendered.

439. The Tenses of the Participles. — The Perfect Passive participle expresses the action as completed before the time indicated by the principal verb; the Present participle expresses action as in progress at the time indicated by the principal verb. Thus : Paucīs urbem dēfendentibus, eam facile cēpit (lit. few defending the city), Because (or Since) few defended the city, he easily took it.

[1] The English adjective "absolute" (from absolvō) means freed from, as an "absolute monarch" is freed from restrictions. The Nominative Absolute is so called because the noun in the Nominative case is freed from the constructions which usually attach a noun to other words in a sentence.

NOTE. — The Ablative Absolute often consists of a noun with another noun, or of a noun with an adjective, thus : Caesare duce, Caesar being leader, under the leadership of Caesar; Caesare cōnsule, Caesar being consul, in the consulship of Caesar; mē invītō, I being unwilling, against my wish; illō rēge vīvō, that king being alive, while that king lives.

CAUTION. — The Ablative Absolute is not used if the noun or pronoun of the participial phrase (or a pronoun referring to it) has a place elsewhere in the sentence. Thus : The soldiers being called together, he praised them (i.e. the soldiers) = Mīlitēs convocātōs laudāvit (lit. he praised the called-together soldiers), Having called together the soldiers, he praised them; or (preferably) He called together the soldiers and praised them.

440. Rule. — A noun or pronoun in the Ablative with a participle (or noun, or adjective) in agreement may be used, like the Nominative Absolute in English, in place of a subordinate clause. It is translated, according to its relation to the rest of the sentence, by a Temporal, Causal, or Conditional clause.

441. Exercise. — Express in Latin, using an Ablative Absolute for each subordinate clause: 1. When these things had been ascertained, the scouts hastened to Caesar. 2. After the enemy had been put to flight, the soldiers were praised by the leader. 3. When Cicero was consul, Catiline (Catilīna) plotted (cōnsilia cēpit) against the commonwealth. 4. Because Caesar was (their) leader, the soldiers fought bravely. 5. If the city is captured (shall have been captured), the enemy will burn many buildings.

From a Roman Lamp
(The Huntress Diana)

SECOND SECTION

442. VOCABULARY LII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
custom, habit	cōnsuētūdō, -tūdinis, f.	Cf. desuetude
race, kind	génus, géneris, n.	*gener*ally
justice, right	iūs, iūris,[1] n.	jury, *juris*diction
oath	iūs iūrándum, n.	*juris*prudence
rank, class	ōrdō, ōrdinis, m.	*ordin*al, *ordin*ary
cattle	pécus, pécŏris, n.[2]	*pec*uliar
theory, manner	rátiō, ratiōnis, f.	*ration*al, ratio, ration
outcome, departure	éxitus, -ūs, m.	exit
command	iússus, -ūs, m.
at my order	méō iússū
think, consider	exīstimō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	estimate, *estim*able carry	véhō, -ere, vēxī, vēctus	con*vey*, *veh*icle
common	commūnis, m. and f., -e, n.	*commun*icate
suppliant	súpplex, súpplicis, m. and f.	*supplic*ate
humbly	supplíciter (adv.)
whence	únde (adv.)
also	quŏque (postpositive)

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

443. A. 1. Hāc īnsulā captā, omnēs incolae meō iussū ad Italiam tribus nāvibus vehentur. 2. Cum hīs prīncipibus rēx fīlium quoque mīserat quī pācem ā Caesare suppliciter peteret. 3. Sī barbarī, iūre iūrandō nōbīs datō, dē exitū cōnsilia faciunt, dēbēmus dē eīs supplicium statim sūmere. 4. Īnsula unde vēnērunt hī nautae multās cōnsuētūdinēs habet singulārēs. 5. Cicerōne cōnsule, Catilīna, quem multī virī omnium ōrdinum cīvem inīquissimum exīstimābant, ex urbe excēdere coāctus est.

---

[1] Just as rēx, rēgis (one-who-rules, king) was formed from the root of rĕgō (rĕg), so iūdex, iūdicis, was formed from iūs + the root of dīcō (dīc and dĭc) and means one-who-speaks-the-law, judge.

[2] Cf. pecūnia (16), money.

B. 1. After the scouts had been sent out, Caesar drew up his battle line in a broad plain; then he began battle at once because his soldiers were eager to fight. 2. What kinds of cattle did those farmers send to the Roman camp to be divided[1] among the lieutenants? 3. If we question this

Before the Chariot Race (in the Circus Maximus)
(Suggested Reading: The Chariot Race in Ben Hur)

suppliant in Caesar's presence,[2] he will tell us the theory and practice[3] of war among the Gauls. 4. Although all arms had been given up (Abl. Abs.), yet by right of war Caesar carried the old men, women, and children to Rome. 5. Because he has nothing (in) common with me, he never comes to my house.

---

[1] Relative Clause of Purpose.

[2] apud Caesarem.

[3] ūsus, ūsūs, m.

LATIN SELECTION

444. Joseph, Son of Jacob (Continued)

The governor declares that he is Joseph.

Iosēph sē continēre vix poterat; quārē iussit Aegyptiōs quī adstābant (were standing near) recēdere. Tum multīs cum lacrimīs dīxit magnā vōce, "Ego sum Iosēph. Vīvitne pater meus?" Nōn poterant respondēre frātrēs eius magnō timōre perturbātī. Quibus ille amīcē (kindly) "Accēdite," inquit, "ad mē; ego sum Iosēph, frāter vester, quem vēndidistis mercātōribus quī discēdēbant in Aegyptum. Nōlīte timēre: Deī cōnsiliō id factum est." Haec ubi Iosēph dīxit, frātrem suum Beniamīn ad sē accēpit multīs cum lacrimīs. Deinde cēterīs quoque frātribus ōscula dedit (kissed) nec iam illī timōrem habēbant.

He sends them for their father.

Quibus Iosēph, "Discēdite," inquit, "properāte ad patrem meum eīque nūntiāte, 'Fīlius tuus vīvit et apud Pharaōnem plūrimum potest.' Atque redūcite illum in Aegyptum cum omnī familiā."

Dē adventū frātrum Iosēph rēgī nūntiātum est, quī dedit eīs dōna multa quae portārent ad patrem. Mīsit quoque currum (chariot) quō veherent eum.

A happy meeting.

Tum rēx dīxit Iosēph, "Aegyptus est in potestāte tuā; habitet pater tuus in optimō locō, et trāde frātribus tuīs cūram pecorum nostrōrum."

The Chariot Race

LATIN PREFIXES AND SUFFIXES

(For Reference)

445. The following prefixes and suffixes are assembled from previous chapters. Review 236, 238.

Suggestions for Study. — It is suggested that each section be taken up first in class, without previous study; and then assigned, with the Exercise, for review.

Three days might well be given to a thorough study of these prefixes and suffixes, and to their application in Latin and in related English words.

I. PREFIXES

INTER–: as in interpōnō, I place between (cf. "interpose").

PER–: as in perdūcō, I lead through.

PER– (intensive): as in persaepe, very often; permultī, very many; pervincō, I conquer thoroughly.

PRAE– (English pre-): as in praemittō, I send ahead; praecēdō, I go ahead (cf. "precede").

PRŌ–: as in prōcēdō, I go forward (cf. "proceed").

SUB– (also SUC–, SUF–, SUP–, SUS–)[1]: as in submittō, I send under (cf. "submit"); suppōnō, I place under (cf. "suppose").

446. Exercise (Optional). — 1. Make a list of twelve English words in which these Latin prefixes appear.

2. Examine the Latin words in the following list and recall their meanings:

1.	abdō	6.	cōnsūmō	11.	intercipiō	16.	perveniō
2.	addō	7.	exclūdō	12.	interclūdō	17.	praesidium
3.	adhibeō	8.	exitus	13.	perterreō	18.	prōcēdō
4.	adventus	9.	impediō	14.	pertimēscō	19.	prōvideō
5.	cōnsīdō	10.	impetus	15.	pertineō	20.	succēdō

[1] sub-, before c, p, and f, becomes respectively suc-, sup-, and suf-; before c or t, often sus-; before r, sometimes sur-: cf. succēdō, supportō, sufficiō, suscipiō, surripiō.

3. Answer three questions as to each of the compound verbs in the above list: (a) What is the simple verb? (b) What is the prefix? (c) What idea is contributed to the compound word by the prefix?

4. With the prefixes in 236 form compounds of cēdō, faciō, iaciō, pellō, veniō. Give the meaning of each compound.

5. With the prefixes given in 445 form compounds of dūcō and mittō. Give the meaning of each compound.

II. SUFFIXES

447. Associate each word with the word to which it is related, and note the effect of the suffix on the meaning of the derived word. These words are from previous Vocabularies.

A. Nouns Formed from Verbs

1. Nouns expressing action in process, or result of action:

a. –IŌ, –SIŌ, –TIŌ:

legiō (cf. legō, I choose): a legion (i.e. "a choosing," a picked body of troops).

dēfēnsiō (cf. dēfendō, I defend): ("a defending") defense.

ōrātiō (cf. ōrō, I speak, ask): ("a speaking") speech.

b. –TUS (–SUS):

adventus (cf. adveniō, I arrive): ("a-coming-to") arrival.

cōnspectus (cf. cōnspiciō, I look at): sight.

exercitus (cf. exerceō, I exercise): army.

iussus (cf. iubeō, I order): order.

cursus (cf. currō, I run): race, speed.

c. –IUM:

iūdicium (cf. iūdicō, I judge): ("a judging") judgment.

studium (cf. studeō, I am eager): zeal, eagerness.

beneficium (cf. bene-faciō, I do well): well-doing, kindness.

imperium (cf. imperō, I command): ("a commanding") command.

odium (cf. ōdī, I hate): ("a hating") hatred.

2. Nouns expressing means of action (or result of action):

-MEN, -MENTUM, -TRUM:

nōmen (cf. nōscō, I know): ("a means of knowing") name.

impedimentum (cf. impediō, I hinder): hindrance; pl. baggage.

arātrum (cf. arō, I plow): ("a means of plowing") a plow.

B. Nouns Formed from Other Nouns

-ĀTUS forms nouns denoting (1) office or (2) official body.

(1) magistrātus[1] (cf. magister, master): magistracy.

(2) senātus (cf. senex, an old man): (an official body composed of old men) senate.

C. Nouns Formed from Adjectives

-TŪDŌ forms nouns denoting quality or condition:

aegritūdō (cf. aeger, ill): ("the condition of being ill") illness.

altitūdō (cf. altus, high): ("the quality of being high") height.

multitūdō (cf. multus, many a): multitude.

magnitūdō (cf. magnus, large): size.

---

[1] Similarly from cōnsul, consul, was formed cōnsulātus, consulship, "consulate."

D. Adjectives Formed from Verbs

a. -ILIS (-BILIS) forms adjectives denoting capability (in a passive sense):

facilis (cf. faciō, I do); (capable of being done) easy.

Note. — Similarly difficilis (dis, a negative prefix as in "*dis*loyal," + facilis weakened to -ficilis). From doceō, I teach, we may form doc-ilis, teachable, docile; and from crēdō, I believe, crēdi-bilis, believable, credible. The English suffixes "-ile" (as in fac*ile*) and "-ble" (as in navig*able*, legi*ble*) have come from Latin -ilis and -bilis.

b. -IDUS forms adjectives denoting condition:

timidus (cf. timeō, I fear): (in a condition of fear) fearful.

cupidus (cf. cupiō, I wish, I am eager): eager, desirous (of).

avidus (cf. aveō, I desire): desirous (of).

Note. — Latin adjectives in -āx and -ŭlus, as audāx, daring, crēdulus, credulous, express tendency.

E. Adjectives Formed from Nouns and Other Adjectives

-ĀLIS, -ĀRIS, express the relation, belonging to, or pertaining to:

immortālis (cf. mors, death): (not belonging to death) immortal.

familiāris (cf. familia, household): (belonging to a household) intimate.

singulāris (cf. singuli, adj, individual): (belonging to an individual) exceptional.

Note. — Numerous adjective suffixes are used to express the relation "belonging to," "pertaining to": (urbs, city) urbānus, of-a-city, "urban"; (legiō, legion) legiōnārius, of-a-legion, "legionary"; (rēx, king) rēgālis, of-a-king, "regal"; (cīvis, citizen) cīvīlis, of-a-citizen, "civil"; (hostis, enemy) hostīlis, of-an-enemy, "hostile"; (populus, people) populāris, of-a-people, "popular"; (pater, father) patrius, of-a-father, cf. patria (terra), fatherland, etc.

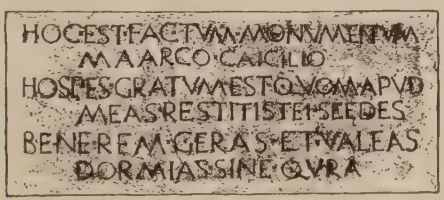
III. THE FORM OF LATIN SUFFIXES IN ENGLISH

448. The Latin suffixes given in 238 [-or; -tor; -tūs, -tās, -ia; tās, -ia, -tia] and those given in 447 [-iō, -siō, -tiō, -tūs, (-sus), -ium; -men, -mentum, -trum, -ātus, -tūdō; -ilis, -bilis, -idus, -ālis, -āris] appear unchanged, or slightly changed, in numerous English words that have come from Latin.

449. Exercise (Optional). — (1) Examine the following Latin words in English; (2) classify each English word (as verb, noun, adjective, or adverb); (3) associate with it its original form in Latin, and with the Latin original associate related Latin words, thus: timidity (noun) (Latin: timiditās, cf. timeō, timidus); (4) determine, with the help of an English dictionary, the exact meaning of each word.

I. clamor, spectator, tractor; liberty, utility, timidity, dignity; virtue; memory, injury, custody; prudence, justice.

II. diction, convention, inscription, procession; advent, exit; use; study; regimen, impediment, theater; consulate; altitude, fortitude; docile, laudable, visible, audible, credible; timid, rapid; familiar, singular; legal, filial, fraternal, colloquial.



A Roman Epitaph

"This memorial was made for Marcus Caecilius. Stranger, it is a joy to me that thou hast tarried by my dwelling place. Prosper in thine undertakings, and fare thou well. Free from care be thy sleep."

Along the public roads were many monuments to the dead. The epitaphs often request the passer-by to pause and read. Here the spirit of the deceased bestows his blessing upon the one who has thus lingered.

Multa petentibus dēsunt multa. (Horace)
Who seek much, lack much

CHAPTER LIII

INFINITIVES · INDIRECT DISCOURSE

FIRST SECTION

450. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the Participles of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, with their meanings. 2. Review the Nominative Absolute in English, and the Ablative Absolute in Latin (437–440); be prepared for oral and written work.

451. The Infinitives. — In Latin the Infinitive has three tenses, Present, Perfect, and Future. The Active Infinitives of vocō are: Present, vocā́re, to call; Perfect, vocāvísse, to have called; Future, vocātūrus esse, to be about to call. These tenses are formed thus: vocā́re = vocā (Present stem) + -re; vocāvísse = vocāv (Perfect stem) + -isse; vocātūrus ésse = vocātūrus (Future Participle) with esse. In the same way we may form the Active Infinitives of moneō: Present, monḗre, to advise; Perfect, monuísse, to have advised; Future, monitūrus esse, to be about to advise.

In the Passive voice the Present Infinitive ends in -rī (-ī in the Third Conjugation), thus: vocā́rī, to be called; monḗrī, to be advised; régī, to be ruled, cápī, to be taken; audī́rī, to be heard. The Perfect Passive Infinitive consists of the Perfect Passive Participle with esse, thus: vocātus ésse, to have been called; mónitus ésse, to have been advised, etc. The Infinitives of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, and sum are given on pages 326, 328, 330, 332, 334, 336.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Write the Infinitives (Active and Passive) of vocō, with their meanings. 2. In the same way write the Infinitives of moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, and sum. 3. Repeat from memory the Infinitives of each of these verbs, testing your speed.

SECOND SECTION

452. Indirect Discourse in English. — If the exact words of a statement are quoted after a verb of saying, thinking, knowing, believing, etc., they are indicated by quotation marks, thus: He says, "I am fighting for liberty." Such a verbatim (word for word) quotation is called Direct Discourse, because the form of the statement used in direct address remains unchanged. If, instead of the exact words of a simple statement, we have He says that he is fighting for liberty, the clause introduced by the conjunction that is called Indirect Discourse. In Indirect Discourse the thought, not the exact words, of the statement is contained in a clause grammatically dependent on the verb of saying. In English, after certain verbs (as know and believe), we may express Indirect Discourse either by (1) a clause introduced by that, or (2) an Infinitive with Subject in the Objective case. Thus the statement, He is a good man,

Caesar's Engineers Build a Bridge
(It crossed the Rhine, near Bonn)

becomes (1) I know that he is a good man; (2) I know him to be a good man. The Present Indicative of the statement is represented in (2) by the Present Infinitive.

453. Indirect Discourse in Latin. — In Latin, after verbs meaning to say, think, know, hear, believe, etc., a simple statement, when put in Indirect Discourse, never becomes a clause introduced by that, but is always expressed by an Infinitive with Subject in the Accusative. Thus: Sciō eum esse virum bonum, I know him to be a good man, or I know that he is a good man.

454. Tense of Indirect Discourse in English. — After a verb expressing present or future time the tense of the verb in the clause remains the same as the tense of the Indicative used in the statement; after a verb expressing past time the verb of the clause changes to express the action in relation to the time indicated by the main verb. Thus: 1. (Statement: I am defending liberty) He says (that) he is defending liberty; he said (that) he was defending liberty. 2. (Statement: I was defending) He says that he was defending liberty; he said that he was defending (or had defended) liberty. 3. (Statement: I shall defend) He says (that) he will defend liberty; he said that he would defend liberty.

455. Tense of Indirect Discourse in Latin. — The Present Infinitive expresses action as contemporary with that of the main verb; the Perfect Infinitive expresses action as prior; the Future Infinitive expresses action as subsequent to that of the main verb. Thus: 1. (Statement: Lībertātem dēfendō) Dīcit sē[1] lībertātem dēfendere, He says (that) he is defending liberty; Dīxit sē . . . dēfendere, He said (that) he was defending. 2. (Statement: Lībertātem dēfendēbam, or dēfendī) Dīcit sē lībertātem dēfendisse, He says that he defended liberty; Dīxit sē . . . dēfendisse, He said that he had defended. 3. (Statement: Lībertātem dēfendam) Dīcit sē lībertātem dēfēnsūrum esse, He says that he will defend liberty; Dīxit sē . . . dēfēnsūrum esse, He said that he would defend.

[1] The reflexive pronoun refers for its identity to the subject of the main verb dīcit.

NOTE. — The student is cautioned against translating too literally. The literal translation, however, is the necessary intermediate step between the Latin idiom and the English idiom.

456. Rule. — After all verbs meaning to say, think, know, hear, believe, etc., an Infinitive with Subject in the Accusative is used to express a statement in Indirect Discourse. The tenses of the Infinitive express time in relation to the time of the main verb; the tense used in the direct statement becomes the corresponding tense of the Infinitive.

457. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. I think that our soldiers are brave. 2. I know that our soldiers fought bravely. 3. He says that our soldiers will fight bravely. 4. He said that our soldiers would fight bravely. 5. He said that our soldiers were bravely fighting; had fought bravely. 6. I hear that he has gone to Rome. 7. I heard that he had gone to Rome. 8. We believe that we shall soon receive a letter. 9. We thought that we should soon receive a letter. 10. The same day it was reported that the city had been captured (capiō).

LATIN SELECTIONS

458. NOT AT HOME

A story about Ennius.

ENNIUS poēta amīcus fuit Africānī, quī Hannibalem Zamae (at Zama) vīcit [202 B.C.]. Africānī fīlius fuit Pūblius Cornēlius Scīpiō Nāsīca (Long-Nose). Dē Nāsīcā et Enniō haec fābula nārrāta est:

Scipio's son comes to visit Ennius. "Not at home."

"Nāsīca ad poētam Ennium vēnit, eīque ab ōstiō (entrance) quaerentī ancilla (the maid) dīxit Ennium domī nōn esse. Nāsīca autem sēnsit illam dominī iussū id dīxisse, et illum domī esse."

Nasica gets more than even.

"Paucīs post diēbus Ennius ad Nāsīcam vēnit et eum ā iānuā (front door) quaesīvit. Exclāmāvit Nāsīca sē domī nōn esse. Tum Ennius, 'Quid? ego nōn cognōscō vōcem tuam?' Deinde Nāsīca, 'Homō es impudēns, ancillae tuae crēdidī dīcentī tē domī nōn esse; tū mihi nōn crēdis ipsī?'"

459. Gāius Iūlius Caesar

(102–44 B.C.)

Caesar's account of his campaigns is praised by Cicero.

Gāius Iūlius Caesar annōs novem [58–50 B.C.] in Galliā bellum gessit. In Britanniam bis (twice) nāvigāvit. Galliam omnem subēgit, Britanniae partem explōrāvit. Dē bellō Gallicō ipse librōs septem scrīpsit. Octāvum librum lēgātus nōmine Hirtius addidit. Caesaris "Commentāriōs" (Commentaries) Cicerō, summus ōrātor, in librō suō "Dē Clārīs Ōrātōribus" laudāvit.

The German menace.

Gallia erat omnis dīvīsa in partēs trēs. Incolae Galliae erant Belgae, Aquitānī, Celtae. (Hī omnēs linguā Latīnā Gallī appellābantur.) Fortissimī erant Belgae. Trāns Rhēnum erant variae (various) gentēs barbarae. Potentissima erat gēns Suēbōrum. Eius gentis prīncipem, nōmine Ariovistum, Arvernī et Sēquanī in Galliam invītāvērant; bellum enim cum Aeduīs gerēbant. Ariovistus prīmum XV mīlia Suēbōrum in Galliam trādūxerat [71 B.C.], deinde multī barbarī in agrōs pulchrōs Gallōrum ēmigrāverant. Iam erant in Galliā CXX (centum et vīgintī) mīlia Suēbōrum, ubi Caesar eō per Alpēs contendit [58 B.C.].

Fēminīs lūgēre honestum est, virīs meminisse. (Tacitus)
It is seemly for women to mourn, for men to remember

CHAPTER LIV

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS · SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES

FIRST SECTION

460. Preliminary Review. — 1. Write the Infinitives of vocō, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō, with their meanings. 2. Review Indirect Discourse, and be prepared for oral and written work on 457.

461. Indefinite Pronouns. — In contrast to Demonstrative pronouns (and adjectives), which indicate clearly, or definitely, the person or thing referred to, Indefinite pronouns (and adjectives), e.g. some one, something (adj. some), any one, anything (adj. any), do not indicate definitely the person or thing referred to.

The most important Indefinite pronouns are aliquis and quīdam. See page 324.

NOTE. — As the Interrogative pronoun quis (m. and f.), quid (n.), has special forms when used as an adjective, namely: quī (m.), quae (f.), quod (n.), so the Indefinite pronoun aliquis (m. and f.), aliquid (n.), has special forms when used as an adjective, namely: aliquī (m.), aliqua (f.), aliquod (n.).

After sī (if), nisi (unless), nē (that . . . not for Negative Purpose), and num (whether), the form of the Indefinite is usually quis (quī), m.; qua or quae, f.; quid (quod), n. Thus: sī quis, if any one; sī quī hostēs, if any enemies; nē quis (that not any one), that no one; nē quī hostēs, that no enemies.

462. Substantive Quod-Clauses. — In the English sentence, (a) That (or the fact that) you yourself are eager to defend liberty will be (for) an example to others, the clause that you yourself are eager to defend liberty serves as the Subject of the main verb will be. This "Substantive clause," being felt by the speaker as a fact, has its verb in the Indicative mood. The example becomes in Latin: Quod tū ipse lībertātem dēfendere studēs aliīs exemplō erit. Here, as in English, the clause introduced by quod; that, the fact that, has its verb (studēs, you are eager) in the Indicative mood. A Quod-substantive clause may also serve as an Appositive, thus: (b) Id aliīs exemplō erit, quod tū ipse lībertātem dēfendere studēs, This will be (for) an example to others, (namely) that (or the fact that) you yourself are eager to defend liberty. Here the Quod-substantive clause explains id, the Subject of erit, hence the clause serves as an Appositive.

463. Rule. — A Substantive Quod-Clause of fact with the Indicative may itself be the Subject of a verb, or it may be used to explain some antecedent word.

464. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. That (or The fact that) I grieve over (because of) his death displeases many. 2. It[1] is (for) a great advantage (magnō ūsuī) to us that we can be in school. 3. That (or The fact that) Caesar drove back Ariovistus, freed Gaul from great danger.

465. Substantive Volitive Clauses. — In English with verbs meaning to urge, persuade, command, etc., we generally use an Infinitive, as: (a) My brother urges me to remain. We may, however, say: (b) My brother urges that I remain. Here the clause that I remain states the thing my brother urges, that is, wills. The clause is the Object of the main verb. Now we have found that the Volitive Subjunctive (401) is used in Latin to express something as willed, as: Maneāmus, Let us remain! (an exhortation); Nē maneant, Let them not remain! (a command). Accordingly we find with verbs meaning to urge, persuade, command, etc., a Substantive clause with the Subjunctive, as in (b), stating the action willed or urged, thus: 1. Frāter meus hortātur ut maneam, My brother urges me to remain (lit. that I remain). 2. Frāter meus hortātus est ut manērem, My brother urged me to remain. 3. Frāter meus hortātus est nē manērem, My brother urged me not to remain.

[1] "It often serves as grammatical subject merely to introduce the verb is, the real subject of the thought standing in the predicate." Kittredge and Farley, Advanced English Grammar, p. 58.

A Wall Painting from Herculaneum
(A Tragic Actor)

466. Rule. — In Latin, with verbs meaning to urge, persuade, command, etc., a Substantive clause with the Subjunctive is used to state the action willed. The clause is introduced by ut, if affirmative; by nē (sometimes by ut ... nē), if negative. The tense, as in English, is governed by the law of Sequence of Tenses (pp. 343–344).

467. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. He ordered (imperō) the soldiers to burn all the buildings of the town and to lead the boys away into slavery. 2. They could not persuade the leader to be kind to the captives. 3. The women begged the Germans not to burn their homes. 4. I wrote to my brother to buy me good books. 5. He will permit the soldiers to remain at home for a few days.

468. Substantive Result Clauses as Subject. — In the English sentence, It happened that he remained at home, the clause that he remained at home indicates the result. In the statement it happened the "expletive" it (cf. expleō, I fill) is used to "fill in" or supply temporarily the subject, but the real subject, according to the thought, is the clause that he remained at home, as if we said that-he-remained-at-home happened. This sentence becomes in Latin: Accidit ut domī manēret. The clause of result, therefore, really being used as the subject of a verb like a noun or substantive, is called a Substantive Clause of Result.

NOTE. — With mōs est, it is the custom, a Substantive Clause of Result may be used in apposition to explain mōs, thus: Mōs erat Germānōrum ut captīvōs interficerent, It was the custom of the Germans, (namely) that they killed captives, or to kill captives.

469. Substantive Result Clauses as Object. — In the English sentence, Caesar brought it about that Ariovistus fled across the Rhine, the clause that A. fled across the Rhine is the thing Caesar accomplished, that is, it expresses the result of his efforts. This becomes in Latin: Caesar effēcit ut Ariovistus trāns Rhēnum fugeret. The clause that A. fled, etc., while explaining the neuter pronoun it, is yet itself, in the thought, the real object of the main verb, as if we said Caesar brought about that A. fled (the flight of A.).

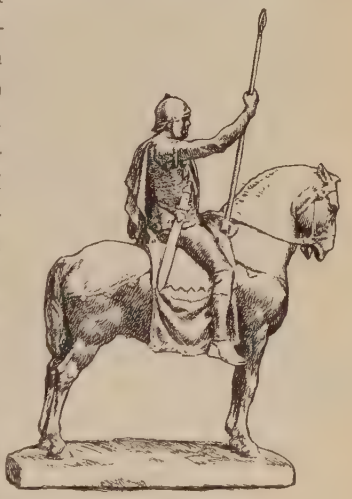
470. Rule. — Substantive Clauses of Result may be used as Subjects of certain impersonal verbs, such as accidit; they may stand as Appositives to nouns (e.g. mōs) and pronouns; they may be used as Objects of verbs of "making," such as faciō, efficiō, perficiō. (See pp. 343–344.)

471. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. It often happens that citizens fear war. 2. It never happened that I saw him in Rome. 3. Let us make bad citizens obey the laws. 4. It is the custom of good citizens to defend liberty. 5. He brought it about that the unfaithful citizens left the city (discēdō w. ē (ex) and Abl.).

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

472. A. 1. Sī quīdam ex nōbīs dē labōre querentur (shall complain), nihil efficiēmus; sīn cum cūrā dīligentiāque labōrābimus, brevī tempore summum collem occupābimus. 2. Vōs omnēs hortor nē quis iūdicet etiam servōs īnfrā sē esse apud (with) Deum. 3. Sī Caesar hās ad legiōnēs aliquid auxilī mīsit, possunt castra sua dēfendere; sī minus, Gallī eōs facile superābunt. 4. Mīlitēs postulant ut Caesar sibi permittat ut domum discēdant. 5. Mōs erat Gallīs ut cōgerent mercātōrēs dē regiōnibus suīs dīcere.



A Roman Horseman

B. 1. If any one goes (accēdō) to the end of (extrēmus, -a, -um) the bridge, he will see the enemy's camp. 2. Unless the soldiers halt (cōnsīdō) near the walls of the town, the inhabitants will give them no provisions (nihil commeātūs). 3. Certain disloyal centurions brought it about that some legions did not fight bravely. 4. If my father is now in Italy, he has received my letter. 5. The fact that (quod) many were praising Cicero pleased him.

LATIN SELECTION

473. Gāius Iūlius Caesar (Continued)

The Romans called southern Gaul Provincia.

Cūr constituit Caesar in Galliā bellum gerere? Necesse est prīmum pauca repetere. Galliae partem Rōmānī occupāverant postquam Poenōs vīcērunt et Hispāniam subēgērunt. Paulō post Massiliēnsēs (the men of Marseilles) auxilium

The Maison Carrée (the "Square House")

(A Roman temple at Nimes in Southern France, built probably during the reign of Hadrian (117–138 A.D.). It is the best-preserved Roman temple in existence)

Rōmānōrum contrā barbarās gentēs quae in Alpibus habitābant petiērunt et iter praeter ōram maritimam (coast) dedērunt. Rōmānī oppida multa posuērunt, in primīs Narbōnem, in eā parte Galliae quam etiam prōvinciam appellāvērunt (nunc eam Gallī "Provence" appellant).

Cum barbarīs gentibus commercium habēbant et penetrābant (penetrated) in mediam Galliam.

The coming of Ariovistus.

Arvernī et Sēquanī, ut (as) dīximus, Ariovistum in Galliam invitāverant, quem tamen post breve temporis spatium ē Galliā expellere studēbant, quod pulcherrimōs agrōs Sēquanōrum occupāverat (quam partem Galliae nunc "Alsace" Gallī appellant).

The Helvetii plan to emigrate.

Helvētiī inter montēs ad lacum Lemannum (hodiē "Lake Geneva") incolēbant. Eōrum fīnēs erant angustī (narrow). Continenter (continually) cum Germānīs pugnābant, quī in agrōs eōrum ēmigrābant. Et Helvētiī ēmigrāre cōnstituērunt et, quod ūnum iter ē suīs fīnibus habēbant per Iūram montem, in animō habēbant per prōvinciam Rōmānam ēmigrāre. Prōvincia in magnō perīculō erat; Helvētiī enim ad mīlia CCC (trecenta) numerō erant.

The Meeting of Caesar and Ariovistus

CHAPTER LV

474. Vocabularies and Syntax. — Review Vocabularies LI–LIV. See Rules of Syntax, LI–LIV, page 342.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters LI–LIV

475. 1. Oppidō expugnātō, ille lēgātus, quī erat vir crūdēlissimī animī, magnam incolārum partem dē mūrō in fossam dēicī iussit.

A Shepherd Boy Meets Caesar

2. Hunc annum rūrī maneāmus, nē laudis honōrumque videāmur (seem) cupidiōrēs.

3. Ubi hae legiōnēs sex mīlia passuum summā celeritāte iter fēcērunt, ad flūmen Rhēnum pervēnērunt; ibi, locō idōneō castrīs dēlectō, mīlitēs statim coepērunt fossam perdūcere atque vāllum novem pedēs altum exstruere.

4. Hodiē rēs pūblica nostra nōn lībera est timōre; utinam cōnsul illīs cīvibus īnfīdīs nē pepercisset!

5. Illō diē sōror mea, cuius fīliōs bene cognōvistī, gravī aegritūdine Rōmam venīre nōn poterat; itaque litterās mīsī quibus eam dē meīs cōnsiliīs certiōrem facerem.

6. Tū fortasse (perhaps) putēs duōbus annīs Caesarem omnem Galliam pācātūrum esse, sed ego quidem dīcam hoc bellum futūrum esse multō longius.

7. Hic barbarus, vir ēgregiā fāmā, cui sunt multī agrī atque servī, ōlim nōbīs dīxit sē amōre lībertātis omnēs Rōmānōs magnopere superāre.

8. Bene scīs frātrī tuō multum nocērī ab hōc mercātōre; num eī ignōscēs?

9. Exīstimātisne hoc iter nōbīs esse tūtius illā viā quae est prope flūmen?

10. Nōnne comes rēgis sagittā prīncipis barbarī graviter vulnerātus est? Servus tuus ad eum cum aquā celeriter contendat.

LATIN SELECTION

476. GĀIUS IŪLIUS CAESAR (Continued)

Caesar frees Gaul from Ariovistus.

Id ubi cognōvit Caesar, ad lacum Lemannum contendit. Paucīs mēnsibus Helvētiōs in eōrum fīnēs reppulit et Ariovistum superāvit. Barbarōs in fugam dedit. Quia Gallia perīculō lībērāta est, prīncipēs omnium gentium Gallicārum Caesarī grātiās ēgērunt.

Caesar determines to make Gaul a Roman province.

Sēquanōrum oppidum maximum fuit Vesontiō (hodiē "Besançon"). Postquam ibi Caesar mīlitēs suōs in hībernīs conlocāvit, statim in prōvinciam contendit. Nunc prīmum mīlitēs Rōmānī in Galliā hiemābant. Caesar enim in animō habēbat nōn modo Galliam dēfendere sed etiam in prōvinciam Rōmānam redigere.

Lēgistīne libellum (little book) illum, The Standard Bearer, quī nārrat dē puerō quī cum Caesare in Galliā mīles fuit et aquilifer (bearer of the eagle) tandem fuit?

Librum optimum dē Caesare bibliothēca (library) nostra habet, A Friend of Caesar. Hōs librōs, cum poterimus, legēmus.

Homō sum : hūmānī nihil ā mē aliēnum putō. (Terence)
Human am I, and every human interest is mine

CHAPTER LVI

ADJECTIVES WITH GENITIVE IN -ĪUS

FIRST SECTION

477. Adjectives with Genitive in -īus. — The following ten adjectives (including ūnus, 221) have in the Genitive singular -īus, in the Dative singular -ī; otherwise they are declined like bonus.

ūnus, -a, -um, one, alone (cf. "*uni*fy).

sōlus, -a, -um, alone, sole, only (cf. "*sol*itary").

ūllus, -a, -um, any.

álius, ália, áliud, other, another, pl. others (cf. "*ali*enate").

See page 320.

tōtus, -a, -um, all, whole (cf. "total").

nūllus, -a, -um (nē + ūllus), no, none (cf. "*null*ify").

álter, áltera, álterum, the one (of two), the other (of two) (cf. "alter").

úter, útra, útrum, which (of two)? interrogative.

neúter, neútra, neútrum, neither (of two) (cf. "neuter").

utérque, utráque, utrúmque, each (of two), both, Gen. utrĭúsque.

NOTE. — The Genitive of alter is usually altérīus, and the Genitive of uterque is always utrĭúsque. Poets often treat the i of the Genitive ending -īus as short (e.g. ūnĭus). In the Genitive and Ablative cases, nūllus is regularly used instead of nēmō, no one, none. Instead of the Genitive alīus, the Romans generally used altérīus; instead of the Genitive, if Possessive, they used aliēnus, -a, -um, of another, another's.

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Decline carefully the singular of each of these ten adjectives. 2. Decline together tōta urbs, aliud tempus, ego sōlus (pl. nōs sōlī, etc.).

478. Special Uses of Alius. — In certain expressions forms of alius are repeated, thus: Alius aliud laudat, One praises one thing, another (praises) another (lit. Another praises another thing). This illustrates the use in the singular.

So also we have Aliī alia laudant, Some praise some things, others (praise) other things (lit. Others praise other things). This illustrates the use in the plural.

In the same way alter is repeated, thus: Alter cōnsul Rōmae mānsit, alter in Hispāniam nāvigāvit, One consul remained at Rome, the other sailed to Spain (lit. The other consul remained, the other sailed).

In the above examples the English idiom is very different from the Latin.

479. Exercises. — Translate: 1. Aliī dīvitiās petunt, aliī nōn petunt. 2. Aliī vēnērunt ut culpārent, aliī ut laudārent. 3. Barbarī aliī aliās in partēs fūgērunt Rhēnumque petiērunt. 4. Alterum discipulum laudat magister, alterum culpat. 5. Multī nihil aliud ac (or quam) pecūniam petunt.

480. VOCABULARY LVI

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
fortune, wealth	fortūna, -ae, f.	un*fortun*ate
interrupt, discontinue	intermíttō, -míttere, -mīsī, -míssus	intermittent, *intermiss*ion
belonging to another	aliēnus, -a, -um	alien, *alien*ate
some	nōn nūllus, -a, -um
how many	quŏt[1] (indecl. adj., interrog. and rel.)
so many	tŏt[1] (indecl. adj.)
likewise	ítem (adv.)	item, *item*ize
for this reason	proptéreā (adv.)

[1] The indeclinable adjectives tot . . . quot, or quot . . . tot, are translated as many . . . as, thus: quot hominēs . . . tot sententiae, as many opinions as men.

SECOND SECTION

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

481. A. 1. Nōn crēdam iūrī iūrandō ūllīus virī, quia iam saepe multī ex amīcīs meīs mihi graviter nocuērunt. 2. Aliā ratiōne pācem vōbīscum facere nōn poterāmus, propterea quod exīstimābāmus vōs agrōrum nostrōrum esse tam avidōs ut iam novī bellī causam peterētis. 3. Hic mīles ūnus (or sōlus) scit

The Pantheon at Rome, "The Westminster Abbey of Italy"

(The inscription means: "Built by Marcus Agrippa, son of Lucius, when consul for the third time")

neutrum ex illīs frātribus iam vīvere, quoniam illō diē in aciē cum eīs pugnābat. 4. Nōn nūllī ita vīvunt ut nōn videantur putāre virtūtem plūs posse quam fortūnam. 5. Sī dē tōtā rē dubitās, cūr timēs aliēna cōnsilia audīre?

B. 1. Since Caesar has ordered the other camp to be fortified, let us march thither at once. 2. You will find as many (tot) languages in Gaul as (quot) there are races. 3. Our foot-soldiers fought so bravely that the enemy retreated; likewise our cavalry was so brave that the horsemen of the Gauls were compelled to discontinue the battle. 4. Each (of the two) generals was so eager for (avidus) praise and honor that the soldiers trusted neither. 5. No hope of victory now remained (reliqua erat), because we were surrounded by the enemy so that we were cut off from all supplies of grain.

Gods of Greece

From the Parthenon at Athens. The figures, from left to right, are Poseidon (Neptune), Apollo, and Artemis (Diana)

The Roman Religion[1]

(Optional)

482. The earlier religion of Rome was much modified by contact with the Greek religion, which in the main eventually took its place, and the gods of the Romans largely became identified with those of the Greeks. There were twelve greater divinities presiding over the sky, earth, sea, and the various concerns of human life: Jupiter (Greek Zeus), king of the gods and ruler of the universe; Juno (Greek Héra), wife of Jupiter and queen of the gods; Minerva (Greek Pállas Athéne), daughter of Jupiter, goddess of wisdom, poetry, and the arts; Neptune (Greek Poseídon), god of the sea; Mars (Greek Áres), god of war; Venus (Greek Aphrodíte), goddess of beauty and love; Apollo (Greek Apóllo), god of the sun, archery, medicine, music, and poetry; Diana (Greek Ártemis), sister of Apollo, goddess of the moon, and of hunting; Mercury (Greek Hérmes), god of eloquence and of trade, messenger of the gods; Ceres (Greek Deméter), goddess of agriculture; Vesta (Greek Hestía), goddess of the home, and of the fire upon the hearth; Vulcan (Greek Hephaéstus), god of fire and the forge. Numerous temples and shrines were erected at which these gods were worshiped.

[1] The following books may be consulted: Bulfinch, Age of Fable; Gayley, Classic Myths; Murray, Manual of Mythology; Harper's Dictionary of Classical Literature and Antiquities.

On the Capitoline hill was the magnificent Temple of Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva; it might be called "The Cathedral of Ancient Rome." (Cf. p. 81.)

Very important was the little Temple of Vesta (cf. p. 81) in the Forum, which was to the Roman State what the hearth was to the home; in it the holy fire burned perpetually, attended by the Vestal Virgins.

In the Forum was also the Temple of Saturn (the Roman treasury, or "Bank of Rome"). (Cf. p. 81.)

The Pantheon (cf. p. 292) in the Campus Martius was, as its name implies, the temple dedicated to all the gods.

The Head, or General Director, of the Roman Religion was called the Pontifex Maximus (a title to-day borne by the Pope). His residence was in the Forum beside the Temple of Vesta.

Ubi sōlitūdinem faciunt, pācem appellant. (Tacitus)
When they make a solitude, they call it "peace"

CHAPTER LVII

INDIRECT QUESTIONS

FIRST SECTION

483. Preliminary Review. — Review the Translation Exercises of 481 for oral and written work.

484. Indirect Questions. — A Direct question, as (1) Where is my book? Ubi est liber meus? may be quoted verbatim (word-for-word) and so indicated by quotation marks, thus: (2) I asked him, "Where is my book?" Eum rogāvī, "Ubi est liber meus?" or "Where," I asked him, "is my book?" "Ubi," eum rogāvī, "est liber meus?"

If, however, the Direct question (1) is quoted, but not verbatim, it becomes an "Indirect" (not-direct) question, thus: (3) I asked him where my book was, Eum rogāvī ubi liber meus esset.

Here, both in English and in Latin, the subordinate clause introduced by the interrogative word (where, ubi) is used as the Object of the main verb.[1]

---

[1] Such a clause may also be used as the Subject of a verb, or as an Appositive (to explain a noun or pronoun), thus: (a) Incertum est ubi liber meus sit, It is uncertain where my book is. (b) Id mihi dīxit, ubi ipse habitāret, He told me this, (namely) where he himself was living.

The particles used to introduce single Indirect questions are: -ne, whether, num (without its negative force), and an, whether. Examples are: 1. Rogat adsitne puer, He asks whether the boy is present. 2. Rogāvit num (or an) puer adesset, He asked whether the boy was present.

NOTE. — In Latin in an Indirect question the tenses are used exactly as in English. In English the Indirect question usually has the Indicative. In Latin the Subjunctive must be used, but it is translated in English by the Indicative.[1]

485. Rule. — In Latin an Indirect question must be in the Subjunctive Mood. The tenses follow the law of Sequence of Tenses. (See pp. 343–344.)

486. Exercise. — Express in Latin the following Direct and Indirect questions: 1. What are you (sing.) doing? 2. Where (whither) are you (pl.) going? 3. When (quandō) will he return to Rome? 4. How far (quam longē) is the city from the sea? 5. I shall ask whether his father is well. 6. He asked me whether I praised the boy. 7. I do not know whether he intends to remain.

487. Alternative Indirect Questions. — In a single Indirect question, whether is expressed by -ne or num, and an; in a Double (or "Alternative") Indirect question whether . . . or is expressed by utrum . . . an, or -ne . . . an, or . . . an. Thus: He asked whether I praised or blamed becomes: Rogāvit utrum laudārem an culpārem, or Rōgavit laudāremne an culpārem, or Rogāvit laudārem an culpārem. (See Sequence of Tenses, pp. 343–344.)

488. Exercise. — Express in Latin: 1. He asked me whether I had been in Rome. 2. He asks me whether I have been in

[1] A "potential verb phrase" is sometimes used in English also, as (a) It is uncertain where my book may (can) be; (b) It was uncertain where my book might (could) be.

Rome. 3. I asked him why (cūr) he hesitated to tell (dīcere) the truth (vēra). 4. I did not know who had written the letter. 5. He does not say whether his father or his mother has read the letter.

SECOND SECTION

489. VOCABULARY LVII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
custom, institution	īnstitūtum, -ī, n.	institute
put in place	īnstítuō, -ere, -uī, īnstitūtus	*institut*ion
forefathers, elders	maiōrēs (nātū)	major, *major*ity
district	régiō, -ōnis, f.	region
be ignorant of	ignōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus	ignore, ignorant
go before, precede	antecēdō, -ere, -céssī, -cessūrus	antecedent
become accustomed	cōnsuēscō, -ere, -suēvī, -suētus
look down on, despise	dēspíciō, -ere, -spéxī, -spéctus	*despic*able
small	exíguus, -a, -um
early	mātūrus, -a, -um	mature
how great	quántus, -a, -um	*quant*ity old	vétus,[1] m., f., n., véteris	*veter*an, in*veter*ate
old	vetústus,[1] -a, -um
on (from) all sides	úndique (adv.)

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

490. A. 1. Gallī ignōrābant utrum Caesar ad plānitiem mīlitēs dēductūrus esset an in colle aciem iam īnstrueret. 2. Hic explōrātor nūntiābit quantus sit hostium exercitus et quās nāvēs colligere potuerint. 3. Omnēs huius regiōnis barbarī in nōs mittentur. Quis tamen, Caesare duce, calamitātem timet? 4. Amīcī mē rogāvērunt utrum ignōrārem quid facerem an cōnsuēvissem lēgēs cīvitātis dēspicere. 5. Utrum māter tua Rōmae nunc est an rūs iam discessit?

[1] The Comparative of vetus is vetustior (from vetustus); the Superlative is veterrimus.

B. 1. The scout could not understand why the cavalry of the Gauls preceded our army. 2. The old man asked me whether I was accustomed to despise not only the customs of our forefathers, but also all things old. 3. Will Caesar place his battle-line near the river, or will he retreat to the woods? 4. We do not know whether my brother was killed in the battle, or was captured by the enemy. 5. Caesar asked whether Labienus had so placed his troops that the cavalry went before the infantry.

491. Derivation Exercise. Type I. — Select seven English words related to colō.

An Italian Lake

Et propter vītam vīvendī perdere causās. (Juvenal)
To lose for life's sake what makes life worth living

CHAPTER LVIII

GERUND · GERUNDIVE · PURPOSE PHRASES

FIRST SECTION

492. A Verbal Noun in English. — In the English sentence (1) Fighting for liberty is glorious, the subject fighting is a verbal noun.[1] A Verbal Noun is formed from a verb by adding -ing. If a verb is transitive, its Verbal Noun may have a direct object, thus: (2) Reading good books gives wisdom. In place of a Verbal Noun as subject of a verb we may use an Infinitive, thus: (1) To fight for liberty is glorious; (2) To read good books gives wisdom.

493. The Equivalents of an English Verbal Noun in Latin. — 1. The Gerund. Latin verbs have in the active voice a Verbal Noun called the Gerund. It has no Nominative, and is found only in the singular. Its gender is neuter. The Gerund of vocō is: Gen. vocándī, of calling; Dat. vocándō, for calling; Acc. vocándum, calling; Abl. vocándō, by calling. The Nominative is supplied by the Infinitive, thus: (1) Prō lībertāte pugnāre est clārum,[2] To fight (or fighting) for liberty is glorious.

---

[1] We should carefully distinguish between a verbal noun and a Present Participle, which is a verbal adjective (e.g. I found him reading).

[2] The Infinitive is used as a neuter noun, hence the predicate adjective is clārum (neuter).

494. THE GERUNDS OF THE MODEL VERBS

	I	II	III (in -ō)	III (in -iō)	IV
Nom.	(vocā́re)	(monḗre)	(régere)	(cápere)	(audíre)
Gen.	vocándī	monéndī	regéndī	capiéndī	audiéndī
Dat.	vocándō	monéndō	regéndō	capiéndō	audiéndō
Acc.	vocándum	monéndum	regéndum	capiéndum	audiéndum
Abl.	vocándō	monéndō	regéndō	capiéndō	audiéndō

Observe. — The Gerund (Genitive) is formed by adding -ndī to the Present stem (verbs in -iō add -endī to the Present stem).

Suggestions for Study. — 1. Pronounce all forms of each Gerund, and give their meanings. 2. With the book closed, decline each Gerund from memory, testing your speed.

495. Examples of the Gerund. —

1. (Gen.) Ars vīvendī, the art of living.

2. (Dat.) Idōneus monendō,[1] (lit. suitable for advising) suitable to advise.

3. (Acc.) Ad videndum vēnērunt, (lit. they came to, or for, seeing) they came to see, or for the purpose of seeing.

4. (Abl.) Agendō cognōscimus, we learn by doing.

496. Rule. — The Gerund is a Verbal Noun in the Active voice. Its Nominative is supplied by the Infinitive. The Dative of the Gerund is not common.

497. II. THE GERUNDIVE. If a Future Passive Participle is used as an attributive adjective with a noun in the Genitive, Dative, Accusative, or Ablative case, the adjective often expresses the leading idea in the phrase, and is then called a Gerundive, thus: Urbis videndae cupidī sumus (lit. we are desirous of the city to-be-seen), which really means We are desirous of seeing the city.

[1] Instead of the Dative of the Gerund, ad with the Accusative is generally used, thus: idōneus ad monendum, suitable to advise (lit. for advising).

498. Examples of the Gerundive Phrase. —

1. (Gen.) Spēs lībertātis dēfendendae, hope of defending liberty.

2. (Dat).[1] Vix hīs rēbus faciendīs tempus dābātur, Time was hardly given to do these things, or for the doing (of) these things.

3. (Acc.) Prīncipēs Gallōrum ad Caesarem rogandum vēnērunt, The chiefs of the Gauls came to ask Caesar.

4. (Abl.) Caesarem dē Galliā dēfendendā rogāvērunt, They asked Caesar concerning the defense of Gaul.

499. Rule. — The Gerund*ive* is an attribut*ive* adject*ive*, passive in meaning, used only with nouns in the Genitive, Dative, Accusative, or Ablative case. It is called a Gerundive because it carries the leading idea in the phrase; and is translated in English by a verbal noun with an object.

Thalia, the Muse of Comedy

(Thalia was one of the Nine Muses, the goddesses of music, poetry and learning. Beside her is such a mask as the comic actors wore, the large mouth serving as a megaphone)

NOTE. — 1. An English verbal noun with a direct object is usually expressed in Latin by a Gerundive phrase: the noun is put in its proper case, and the Gerundive adjective agrees with it. Thus, hope of seeing the city is expressed in Latin whose literal English is hope of the city to-be-seen, spēs urbis videndae.

2. Intransitive verbs governing the Dative (Chapter XLI) do not have a

[1] A Gerundive phrase in the Dative is not widely used; instead the Romans generally used ad with the Accusative of the noun and the Gerundive adjective in agreement with the noun.

Urania, the Muse of Astronomy

Gerundive, hence only the Gerund may be used, thus: lēgibus pārendī causā, for the sake of obeying the laws.

3. The Gerund of transitive verbs is often used with a direct object, if the object is a neuter plural noun (or pronoun or adjective), thus: castra dēfendendī causā, for the sake of defending the camp, or to defend the camp. The equivalent Gerundive phrase is: castrōrum dēfendendōrum causā.

500. The Gerund and Gerundive in Purpose Phrases. — Purpose may be expressed in Latin by causā, for the sake (of), (a) with the Genitive of the Gerund, or (b) with the Genitive of a Gerundive phrase, thus: (a) urbem videndī causā, for the sake of seeing the city; (b) urbis videndae causā, for the sake of seeing the city.

Purpose may also be expressed by ad with the Accusative (a) of the Gerund, or (b) with the Accusative of a Gerundive phrase, thus: (a) ad videndum urbem, to see the city; (b) ad urbem videndam, to see the city.

The Romans generally preferred a Gerundive phrase rather than a Gerund with an object.

SECOND SECTION

501. VOCABULARY LVIII

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
youth	adulēscēns, adulēscéntis, m.	adolescent
hill	cóllis, cóllis, m.
supplies	commeātus, -ūs, m.
wealth	[ops], ópis, f.	*op*ulent
use, experience	ūsus, -ūs, m.	*us*able, *us*age

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
bring up, furnish	suppórtō, -āre, etc.	support
carry across	trānspórtō, -āre, etc.	transport
increase	aúgeō, -ēre, aúxī, aúctus	auction
lie open, be obvious	páteō, patēre, pátuī, —	patent
narrow	angústus, -a, -um	anguish
open	apértus, -a, -um	aperture
short	brévis, m., f., -e, n.	brevity, brief
several, very many	complūrēs, m., f., complūria, n.
noble, famous	nōbilis, m., f., -e, n.	nobility, ignoble
equal	pār, m., f., n., Gen. pāris	par, parity
disgraceful	túrpis, m., f., -e, n.	turpitude
so great	tántus,[1] -a, -um	tantamount
for-the-sake(-of)	caúsā (after its Gen.)	cause, causal
rather, sooner	pótius (Sup. adv. potíssimum)

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

502. A. 1. Caesar complūrēs adulēscentēs ad illud oppidum commeātūs inde ad castra Rōmāna trānsportandī causā mīserat. 2. Quod cōnsul noster tālibus in rēbus magnum ūsum habuit, omnia cōnsilia hōrum cīvium turpium nōbīs nunc patent. 3. Hic Gallus nōbilis Rōmam vēnit ad opēs augendās, quod putābat cōnsulēs sibi amīcissimōs futūrōs esse. 4. Via erat tam angusta atque tantus numerus equitum Germānōrum iam adpropinquābat ut subitō cōnstituerimus nōs ad proximōs collēs recipere. 5. Fortiter pugnandō haec legiō, quae ad castra dēfendenda remānserat, magnam fāmam obtinuit.

From a Roman Lamp
(Ornamented with the figure of Apollo, god of music and poetry, and that of a griffin, a fabulous monster, partly lion and partly eagle)

B. 1. I should call that Gallic leader our friend rather than our enemy, for already he has sent several old men to beg for peace. 2. In an open place these Gallic horsemen are not equal to our cavalry, because they have been in arms a very short time. 3. These tribes, by bringing up supplies, helped (lit. gave help to) the Romans. 4. By sending all your cavalry to the bridge you will be able to capture both the island and the hill without great difficulty. 5. Many famous commanders have waged disgraceful wars for the sake of increasing their own fame.

[1] tantus . . . quantus: as great . . . as. Cf. tot . . . quot, as many . . . as.

503. Derivation Exercise, Type I. — Form from the verb root of portō, with different prefixes, five English verbs, and five nouns.

An Ancient German Home

LATIN SELECTION

504. The Suebi, the Largest Tribe of the Germans

Each canton furnishes 1000 warriors.

Suēbōrum gēns est longē maxima et bellicōsissima (most warlike) Germānōrum omnium.

Hī centum pāgōs (districts) habēre dīcuntur. Ex eīs pāgīs singula mīlia armātōrum bellandī causā ex fīnibus ēdūcunt.

There is no private ownership of land among the Suebi.

Reliquī, quī domī mānsērunt, sē atque illōs alunt (support); hī annō post in armīs sunt, illī domī remanent. Sīc neque agricultūra nec ratiō atque ūsus bellī intermittitur. Sed apud eōs nihil est prīvātī ac sēparātī (separate) agrī, neque longius annō remanēre ūnō in locō colendī causā licet.

Their food is mainly milk and meat.

Neque multum vīvunt frūmentō sed maximam partem (for the most part) lacte (on milk) atque pecore, et vēnandī (hunting) cupidī sunt; quae rēs et cibī genus et cotīdiāna exercitātiō (daily exercise) et lībertās vītae — nihil enim contrā voluntātem (wish) faciunt — immānem (enormous) corporum magnitūdinem efficiunt.

They wear the skins of animals.

Loca frīgidissima (very cold) incolunt; nūlla tamen vestīmenta habent praeter pellēs (skins); magna corporis pars est aperta. In flūminibus sē lavant (bathe).

They sell the spoils of war.

Suēbī continenter cum fīnitimīs gentibus bellum gerunt. Mercātōribus quae bellō cēpērunt vēnditant.

They do not import horses.

Gallī equīs dēlectantur et magnō pretiō equōs important. Suēbī vērō parvīs et dēfōrmibus (unshapely) equīs, quī apud eōs nātī sunt (are raised), ūtuntur (use). Hī equī parvī ex cotīdiānā exercitātiōne summī labōris[1] sunt.

[1] summī labōris, (capable) of very great endurance; predicate Genitive of quality or description.

Salūs populī suprēma lēx estō. (From the Twelve Tables, quoted by Cicero)
Let the safety of the people be the supreme law

CHAPTER LIX

DEPONENT VERBS · ABLATIVE WITH CERTAIN DEPONENT VERBS · CUM-TEMPORAL CLAUSES · CUM-CIRCUMSTANTIAL CLAUSES · CUM-CAUSAL CLAUSES

FIRST SECTION

505. Deponent Verbs. — Numerous verbs are Passive in form, but Active in meaning (e.g. hórtor, I urge). These verbs are called deponent, because they put aside their Active forms; thus the principal parts of hórtor are: hórtor, I urge, hortārī, to urge, hortātus sum, I urged, or I have urged.

Deponent verbs, however, have five Active forms; thus the Active forms of hórtor are Present Participle, hórtāns, urging; Future Participle, hortātūrus, -a, -um, about-to-urge; Future Infinitive, hortātūrus (-a, -um) esse, to-be about-to-urge; Gerund, hortándī, etc., of urging, etc.; also the supine (not used in this book), hortātum (Acc.), hortātū (Abl.), to urge.

The Perfect Participle is Passive in form, but usually Active in meaning, thus: hortātus, -a, -um, having-urged.

NOTE. — Since the Perfect Participle of a Deponent verb is usually Active in meaning, it is used in the same way as the Perfect Active Participle in English, thus: Hortātus mīlitēs Caesar signum dedit, Having-urged the soldiers, Caesar gave the signal.

Deponent verbs have only one form with Passive meaning, the Future Passive Participle, thus: hortándus, -a, -um, about-to-be-urged (e.g. Mīlitēs hortandī sunt, The soldiers are about-to-be-urged, or The soldiers must be urged).

506. Exercise. — Write the five forms with active meaning, and the one form with passive meaning, of each of the Deponent verbs in 507, with the meanings. (See pages 337–338.)

507. VOCABULARY LIX

English Meanings	Latin Words	Related English Words
seem	vídeor, -ḗrī, vísus sum	*vis*ible
follow	séquor, séquī, secūtus sum	*sequ*el
follow closely, overtake	cŏnsequor, -ī, cŏnsecūtus sum	*consequ*ence, *consecut*ive
pursue	ĭnsequor, -ī, ĭnsecūtus sum
pursue closely	pérsequor, -ī, persecūtus sum	persecute, pursue
follow forth, escort	prŏsequor, -ī, prŏsecūtus sum	prosecute
follow closely	súbsequor, -ī, subsecūtus sum	subsequent
talk, speak	lóquor, lóquī, locūtus sum	eloquent, *elocut*ion
talk with, converse	cólloquor, -ī, collocūtus sum	*colloqu*ial
be born	náscor, náscī, nātus sum	*nat*al
nation, tribe, race	nātiō, -ōnis, f.	*nation*al
arise, rise	órior, -īrī, órtus sum	orient, *orient*al
allow, suffer	pátior, pátī, pássus sum	patient, *pass*ive
get possession of	pótior, -īrī, potītus sum
start, set out	prŏficíscor, -ī, prŏféctus sum
use, make use of	ūtor, ūtī, ūsus sum	*ut*ilize, *us*able fear, respect	véreor, -ḗrī, véritus sum	re*vere*

SECOND SECTION

508. The Ablative with Certain Deponents. — Five Deponent verbs (and their compounds) are used with the Ablative: ūtor, frúor, fúngor, pótior, and vēscor. Thus: Lībertāte fruimur, We enjoy liberty.

NOTE. — Two of these, fúngor, I perform, and vēscor, I feed upon, are not used in this book; but the complete list should be learned now for future convenience.

509. Cum-Temporal Clauses. — A Temporal clause with cum, when, while, has the Indicative if the clause refers to present or future time. Thus: Cum eum vidēbō (vīderō), rem tōtam expōnam, When I (shall) see (or shall have seen) him, I shall explain the whole matter.

If the clause refers to past time, the Perfect Indicative is used to express the thought of the clause as a fact at a definite past time. Thus: Cum equitātum hostium vīdērunt, nostrī in eōs impetum fēcērunt, When they saw the cavalry of the enemy, our (men) made an attack upon them.

510. Cum-Circumstantial Clauses. — With the Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses the cum-clause, especially in narration, regularly has the Subjunctive, if the clause is felt merely as giving an idea of the circumstances (not a past fact at a definite past time). It is then called a Cum-circumstantial clause. The Subjunctive mood expresses the clause as subordinate in the thought. Thus: Cum Rōmae essem, Forum saepe vidēbam, When I was in Rome, I often saw the Forum. Here the Cum-circumstantial clause may be translated: when I was at Rome, or since I was at Rome, or being at Rome.

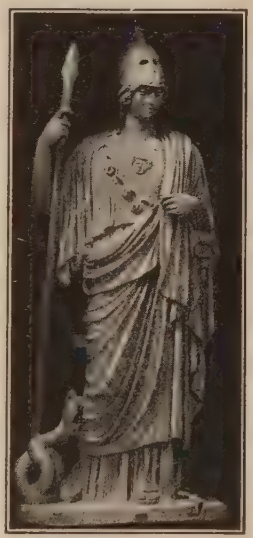
511. Cum-Causal Clauses. — Cum, meaning since, because, introducing a Causal clause, has only the Subjunctive. Thus: Cum in urbe sim, templum vidēre possum, Since (Because) I am in the city (or Being in the city), I can see the temple. A Cum-causal clause is often best translated by a participial phrase.

NOTE. — In classical Latin the Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses in a cum-clause are practically always in the Subjunctive, the clause being felt as circumstantial.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES

512. A. 1. Gallī cum iam auxiliō aliārum nātiōnum ūterentur, facile poterant complūribus oppidīs potīrī. 2. Ōrātor loquendō saepe maiōrem honōrem cōnsequī potest quam pugnandō imperātor. 3. Cum Caesar prīmā lūce ab hīs castrīs profectus esset, cōpiās Gallōrum trēs hōrās īnsecutūs est. 4. Postquam Labiēnus castrīs hostium est potītus, eōs ad flūmen Rhēnum fugientēs secūtus est. 5. Dux mīlitēs suōs hortābātur ad hostēs subsequendōs, ut quam prīmum vīrēs eōrum experīrētur.

B. 1. My brother will not allow me to use his sword. 2. Do you not respect the old man with whom I saw you conversing to-day? To me, indeed, he seems to be a most noble hero. 3. This sailor was born in those mountains, where the river Rhine rises. 4. Let us escort our father to the city gates, for the purpose of showing our affection. 5. The general, who in this battle was now using all the Roman forces, had sent Labienus to pursue the Gallic horsemen closely.



Pallas Athena, Protectress of Athens, Goddess of Wisdom and War

---

LATIN SELECTIONS

His Old Schoolmate

513. Vibius Curius in iūdiciō (in court) simulābat (pretended) dē annis aetātis suae; cui Cicerō respondit, "Tum, cum in scholā ūnā (together) erāmus, nōn erās nātus?"

514. The Sun Wins by Kindness

A traveler wraps his cloak about him.

Viātor iam iter factūrus paenulam (cloak) suam sūmpsit. Tempestātem verēbātur, nam autumnus incipiēbat, quō tempore tempestātēs subitō oriuntur.

"Hāc paenulā meā," inquit, "mē mūniam contrā tempestātēs, nubēs enim in caelō multās videō."

Both wind and sun strive to divest him of his cloak.

Eum ubi cōnspexit ventus, "Ille," inquit "paenulam suam sūmpsit et sē tūtum esse exīstimat. Nescit[1] mē ita vehementer (violently) flāre (blow) posse ut nēmō paenulam in corpore suō retinēre possit."

Tum sōl ventō dīxit, "Uter nostrum illīus paenulam celerius ēripere potest? Vīsne (Do you wish) experīrī? Tū incipe prior."

The wind tries force and fails.

Praemiō prōpositō, ventus, ut sibi praemium darētur, vehementissimē flāvit. Tumultum (disturbance) immānem fēcit et multa tēcta (dwellings) dēiēcit nāvēsque multās, quae in portū erant, perdidit.

Quam vehementissimē flāvit ventus; sed viātor paenulā suā, quam ad corpus pressam retinēbat, sē mūniēbat.

The sun tries kindness and wins.

Tum sōl rīsit et, nūbibus remōtīs, radiōs (rays) suōs in viātōrem iniēcit neque tōtam vim adhibēbat suam. Paulō post viātor sub paenulā sūdābat (was sweating) et eam dēposuit.

Moral.

Suāviter (kindly) agere plūs prōdest[2] quam fortiter (forcibly).

---

[1] nésciō : ne (negative prefix) + sciō, 429.

[2] prōsum, prōdésse, prōfuī, prōfutūrus : (prō + sum) be of advantage, help.

CHAPTER LX (Review)

Vocabularies and Syntax. — Review carefully Vocabularies LVI–LIX. See Rules of Syntax, LVI–LIX, pp. 342–343.

Sentences Illustrating Syntax in Chapters LVI–LIX

515. Be prepared for oral work.

1. Suēbī, quī bellandī et vēnandī cupidissimī erant, ūnō in locō colendī causā tam breve tempus remanēbant ut apud eōs nihil esset prīvātī ac sēparātī agrī.

2. Suēbī autem ūtēbantur parvīs equīs quī apud eōs sunt nātī; hōs cotīdiānā exercitātiōne efficiēbant ut essent summī labōris.

An Ancient Silver Dish
(Showing figure of Athena)

3. Rōmānī neutrī hōrum Gallōrum multum cōnfīdēbant, quod uterque vidēbātur verērī cum Caesare ipsō colloquī.

4. Tunc nūllō certō ōrdine complūrēs legiōnēs ad hostēs persequendōs sunt profectae; aliae ad collem prōcessērunt ut castrīs eōrum potīrentur, aliae fugientēs equitēs etiam ad flūmen persecūtae sunt.

5. Haec nātiō semper tam bonā fortūnā ūsa est ut numquam longissimī bellī labōrēs ac dolōrēs passa sit.

6. Eō diē Caesar, exercitū in plānitiem apertam ēductō, celeriter aciem īnstrūxit, quia studēbat vim virtūtemque hostium quam prīmum experīrī.

7. Cornēlium potius quam Labiēnum Caesar mīsit ad hortandōs mīlitēs propterea quod ille multō maiōrem in rē mīlitārī ūsum habēbat.

8. Hic adulēscēns, quī mihi dīxit sē in Galliā nātum esse, Rōmam pervēnit frātris suī videndī causā.

9. Cum hic Gallus sīc loquerētur ut nōbīs omnibus vidērētur esse amīcus reī pūblicae Rōmānae, dīximus nōs lībenter[1] ūsūrōs esse commeātū quem ad castra nostra supportāverat.[2]

10. Ventus vehementissimē flandō paenulam viātōris ēripere nōn poterat; sōl autem benignē radiīs iniciendīs effēcit ut[3] brevī tempore paenula dēpōnerētur.

516. Marcus Tullius Cicero
(106–43 B.C.)

"Rome's least mortal mind." Byron, Childe Harold.

Cicero

Marcus Tullius Cicero, Rome's greatest orator and man of letters, was born in 106 B.C. and died in 43 B.C. He studied literature, philosophy, and law, both at home in Rome and abroad in Athens, looking forward to a career as an orator and statesman. By great speeches he steadily increased his reputation, was appointed to more and more important offices, and in 63 B.C. became consul.

At that time Catiline, an unprincipled Roman, was plotting to overthrow the government and to plunder and burn the city. Cicero discovered his conspiracy and in the senate assailed Catiline with such eloquent and fiery speeches that he drove him from Rome.

[1] lībenter, gladly.

[2] The relative clause is stated independently, and is not a part of indirect discourse; hence the Indicative is used.

[3] Result clause, but also a "Substantive clause" (469).

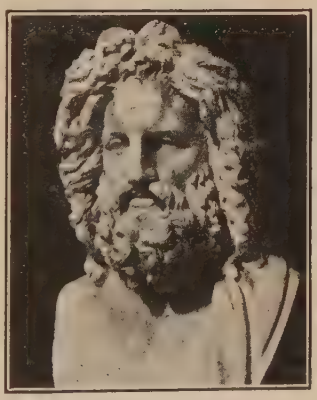
But Cicero had made enemies who at last drove him into exile. After his recall he employed the time to write important works upon eloquence and upon philosophy.

At all periods of his life his literary activity was very great, even outdoing the marvelous record of Sir Walter Scott; and few men have written so much of permanent value to the world.

In his last years he again took an active part in politics, first against Caesar in the great civil war, and then in defense of the liberties of Rome against Antony. The latter was roused to such anger that he sent soldiers to kill Cicero. The great orator died "looking steadily on his murderers." The words of the Emperor Augustus are his simple, but noble epitaph: "He was a good man, who dearly loved his country."

517. Cicero Thanks the Gods

Cicerō ipse in ōrātiōne prō Sullā habitā dīcit cōnsilium suum patriae servandae ā deīs sibi iniectum esse. Catilīna enim contrā rem pūblicam cōnsilia nefāria (wicked) cēperat. "Ō dī immortālēs," inquit Cicerō, "vōs ipsī incendistis tum animum meum cupiditāte cōnservandae patriae. Vōs āvocāstis[1] mē ā rēbus omnibus cēterīs et impulistis ad salūtem ūnam patriae meae. Vōs dedistis mentī meae clārissimum lūmen in tenebrīs[2] tantīs. Tribuam enim vōbīs ea quae sunt



Jupiter, "Father of Gods and Men"

[1] = āvocā(vi)stis.

[2] ténebrae, -ārum, f., darkness (cf. the church service called the Tenebrae).

vestra. Nec vērō dīcere possum mē in illā tempestāte reī pūblicae sine vestrō auxiliō Catilīnam eiusque cōnsilia oppressisse."

518. The Poet Catullus' Tribute to Cicero

Dísertíssime Rómulí nepótum,
Quót sunt quótque fuére, Márce Túllī,
Quótque póst aliís erúnt in ánnīs;
Grátiás tibi máximás Catúllus
Ágit, péssimus ómniúm poéta,
Tántō péssimus ómniúm poéta Quántō tū óptimus ómniúm patrónus.

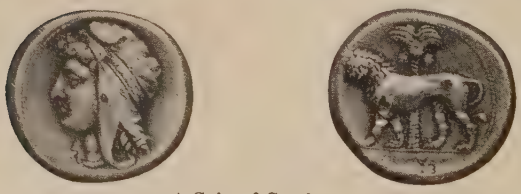
"Tullius, of all the sons of royal Rome
That are, or have been, or are yet to come,
Most skilled to plead, most learned in debate —
Catullus hails thee, small as thou art great.
Take thou from him his thanks, his fond regards,
The first of patrons from the least of bards."

(J. E. S.)



A Coin of Carthage

LATIN SELECTIONS

519. The Gallant Four Hundred

The Carthaginian general

In Siciliā bellō Carthāginiēnsī[1] prīmō imperātor Poenus,[2] quī cum Rōmānīs proelium

[1] Carthāginiēnsis, -e: Carthaginian.

[2] Poenus, -a, -um: Carthaginian, "Punic."

plans a surprise.

committere studēbat, locum proeliō idōneum occupāvit.

The Romans find all escape cut off.

Postquam ad locum paulō post exercitus Rōmānus accessit, hostēs aliī in agmen dēcurrere (to run down), aliī omnēs exitūs Rōmānīs intercludere parābant. Mīlitēs Rōmānī perpaucī erant et propter inīquitātem (disadvantage) locī summō in periculō erant, quod omnibus locīs superiōribus occupātīs et itineribus interclūsīs parva erat spēs salūtis reliqua.

There is but one chance of saving the army.

Ūnus ē tribūnīs, nōmine Q. Caedicius, ubi loca superiōra ab hostibus occupāta cōnspexit, ad cōnsulem accurrit. Ūnam esse spem salūtis ostendit. "Ad illum locum," inquit, "mīlitēs mittere necesse est" et minimum collem manū dēmōnstrāvit. "Ad illum collem occupandum sī quadringentōs mīlitēs contendere iubēbis, hostēs in eōs impetum facient. Interim, dum (while) nostrī impetum hostium sustinent, reliquum exercitum ex hōc locō ēdūcere poteris. Praeter hanc salūtis viam nūlla est. Illī quadringentī morte suā reliquum exercitum servābunt."

"Who will lead this forlorn hope?"

Cōnsul respondit cōnsilium sibi audācissimum vidērī; "Sed istōs," inquit, "mīlitēs quis in mediōs hostēs dūcere audēbit?" Tribūnus dīxit, sī nēmō alius audēret (should dare), sē ūtī licēre ad id perīculum: sē ipsum vītam suam prō cōnsule et rē pūblicā datūrum esse.

The escape.

Sīc servātus est exercitus Rōmānus.

520. Stories of Caesar

Caesar in the battle line.

1. Caesar, scūtō adreptō, quod ipse sine scūtō vēnerat, in prīmam aciem prōcessit mīlitēsque nōmināti*m* (by name) hortātus signa īnferre (to make an attack) iussit.

Caesar asks about the Britons.

2. Itaque vocātīs ad sē undique mercātōribus, neque quanta esset īnsulae magnitūdō, neque quae aut quantae nātiōnēs incolerent, neque quem ūsum bellī habērent aut quibus īnstitūtīs ūterentur, neque quī essent ad maiōrum nāvium multitūdinem idōneī portūs reperīre poterat.

Caesar's voyage to Britain.

3. Exiguā parte aestātis reliquā, Caesar, etsi (although) in hīs locīs, quod omnis Gallia ad septentriōnēs spectat, mātūrae sunt hiemēs, tamen in Britanniam proficīscī contendit.

On reaching Britain, the eagle-bearer leaps from the ship.

4. "Dēsilīte, mīlitēs, nisi vultis (are willing) aquilam hostibus trādere; ego certē meum reī pūblicae atque imperātōrī officium praestiterō (shall have performed)." Hoc cum aquilifer (the eagle-bearer) vōce magnā dīxisset, sē ex nāvī prōiēcit atque in hostēs aquilam ferre coepit.

(From Caesar's Dē Bellō Gallicō.)

The Conquering Roman Eagle

The Romans Come to Britain

APPENDIX

I. TABLES OF DECLENSIONS AND CONJUGATIONS

(The chapter in which the declension, or conjugation, is presented is indicated by a Roman numeral; the section, by Arabic numbers.)

NOUNS

	First Declension (I)	Second Declension (III)		Second Declension in -er (IX)
	SINGULAR	SINGULAR		SINGULAR
Nom.	terra, f.	hortus, m.	templum, n.	puer, m.	ager, m.
Gen.	terrae	hortī	templī	puerī	agrī
Dat.	terrae	hortō	templō	puerō	agrō
Acc.	terram	hortum	templum	puerum	agrum
Abl.	terrā	hortō	templō	puerō	agrō
	PLURAL	PLURAL		PLURAL
Nom.	terrae	hortī	templa	puerī	agrī
Gen.	terrārum	hortōrum	templōrum	puerōrum	agrōrum
Dat.	terrīs	hortīs	templīs	puerīs	agrīs
Acc.	terrās	hortōs	templa	puerōs	agrōs
Abl.	terrīs	hortīs	templīs	puerīs	agrīs

For the Genitive and Vocative singular of nouns in -ius, and for the Genitive singular of nouns in -ium, see 38.

Third Declension (Consonant Stems) (XII)

			SINGULAR
Nom.	dux, m. f.	rēx, m.	obses, m. f.	mīles, m.	aestās, f.
Gen.	ducis	rēgis	obsidis	mīlitis	aestātis
Dat.	ducī	rēgī	obsidī	mīlitī	aestātī
Acc.	ducem	rēgem	obsidem	mīlitem	aestātem
Abl.	duce	rēge	obside	mīlite	aestāte
			PLURAL
Nom.	ducēs	rēgēs	obsidēs	mīlitēs	aestātēs
Gen.	ducum	rēgum	obsidum	mīlitum	aestātum
Dat.	ducibus	rēgibus	obsidibus	mīlitibus	aestātibus
Acc.	ducēs	rēgēs	obsidēs	mīlitēs	aestātēs
Abl.	ducibus	rēgibus	obsidibus	mīlitibus	aestātibus

Third Declension (Consonant Stems) (XIV)

	SINGULAR
Nom.	cōnsul, m.	legiō, f.	pater, m.	flūmen, n	tempus, n.
Gen.	cōnsulis	legiōnis	patris	flūminis	temporis
Dat.	cōnsulī	legiōnī	patrī	flūminī	temporī
Acc.	cōnsulem	legiōnem	patrem	flūmen	tempus
Abl.	cōnsule	legiōne	patre	flūmine	tempore
	PLURAL
Nom.	cōnsulēs	legiōnēs	patrēs	flūmina	tempora
Gen.	cōnsulum	legiōnum	patrum	flūminum	temporum
Dat.	cōnsulibus	legiōnibus	patribus	flūminibus	temporibus
Acc.	cōnsulēs	legiōnēs	patrēs	flūmina	tempora
Abl.	cōnsulibus	legiōnibus	patribus	flūminibus	temporibus

Third Declension (i-Stems) (XXXIII)

	SINGULAR
Nom.	hostis, m. f.	nūbēs, f.	animal, n.	urbs, f.
Gen.	hostis	nūbis	animālis	urbis
Dat.	hostī	nūbī	animālī	urbī
Acc.	hostem	nūbem	animal	urbem
Abl.	hoste	nūbe	animālī	urbe
	PLURAL
Nom.	hostēs	nūbēs	animālia	urbēs
Gen.	hostium	nūbium	animālium	urbium
Dat.	hostibus	nūbibus	animālibus	urbibus
Acc.	hostēs (-īs)	nūbēs (-īs)	animālia	urbēs (-īs)
Abl.	hostibus	nūbibus	animālibus	urbibus

Fourth Declension (XXXIX)

	SINGULAR
Nom.	manus, f.	cornū, n.	domus, f.
Gen.	manūs	cornūs	domūs
Dat.	manuī (-ū)	cornū	domuī, domō
Acc.	manum	cornū	domum
Abl.	manū	cornū	domū, domō
	PLURAL
Nom.	manūs	cornua	domūs
Gen.	manuum	cornuum	domuum, domōrum
Dat.	manibus	cornibus	domibus
Acc.	manūs	cornua	domūs, domōs
Abl.	manibus	cornibus	domibus

Fifth Declension (XLII)

SINGULAR

Nom.	diēs, m. (f.)	rēs, f.	fidēs, f.	spēs, f.
Gen.	diēī	reī	fideī	speī
Dat.	diēī	reī	fideī	speī
Acc.	diem	rem	fidem	spem
Abl.	diē	rē	fidē	spē

PLURAL

Nom.	diēs	rēs	(lacking)	spēs
Gen.	diērum	rērum		——
Dat.	diēbus	rēbus		——
Acc.	diēs	rēs		spēs
Abl.	diēbus	rēbus		——

ADJECTIVES

First and Second Declensions (VI, IX)

	SINGULAR			SINGULAR
Nom.	bonus, m.	bona, f.	bonum, n.	līber, m.	lībera, f.	līberum, n.
Gen.	bonī	bonae	bonī	līberī	līberae	līberī
Dat.	bonō	bonae	bonō	līberō	līberae	līberō
Acc.	bonum	bonam	bonum	līberum	līberam	līberum
Abl.	bonō	bonā	bonō	līberō	līberā	līberō

	PLURAL			PLURAL
Nom.	bonī	bonae	bona	līberī	līberae	lībera
Gen.	bonōrum	bonārum	bonōrum	līberōrum	līberārum	līberōrum
Dat.	bonīs	bonīs	bonīs	līberīs	līberīs	līberīs
Acc.	bonōs	bonās	bona	līberōs	līberās	lībera
Abl.	bonīs	bonīs	bonīs	līberīs	līberīs	līberīs

	SINGULAR			PLURAL
Nom.	aeger, m.	aegra, f.	aegrum, n.	aegrī, m.	aegrae, f.	aegra, n.
Gen.	aegrī	aegrae	aegrī	aegrōrum	aegrārum	aegrōrum
Dat.	aegrō	aegrae	aegrō	aegrīs	aegrīs	aegrīs
Acc.	aegrum	aegram	aegrum	aegrōs	aegrās	aegra
Abl.	aegrō	aegrā	aegrō	aegrīs	aegrīs	aegrīs

Third Declension Adjectives (XXXIV)

(With Three Forms)

	SINGULAR
Nom.	ācer, m.	ācris, f.	ācre, n.
Gen.	ācris	ācris	ācris
Dat.	ācrī	ācrī	ācrī
Acc.	ācrem	ācrem	ācre
Abl.	ācrī	ācrī	ācrī
	PLURAL
Nom.	ācrēs	ācrēs	ācria
Gen.	ācrium	ācrium	ācrium
Dat.	ācribus	ācribus	ācribus
Acc.	ācrēs (-īs)	ācrēs (-īs)	ācria
Abl.	ācribus	ācribus	ācribus

(With Two Forms)

	SINGULAR
	m. f.	n.
Nom.	facilis	facile
Gen.	facilis
Dat.	facilī
Acc.	facilem	facile
Abl.	facilī
	PLURAL
Nom.	facilēs	facilia
Gen.	facilium
Dat.	facilibus
Acc.	facilēs (-īs)	facilia
Abl.	facilibus

(With One Form)

	SINGULAR		SINGULAR
	m. f.	n.	m. f.	n.
Nom.	audāx		prūdēns
Gen.	audācis		prūdentis
Dat.	audācī		prūdentī
Acc.	audācem	audāx	prūdentem	prūdēns
Abl.	audācī		prūdentī
	PLURAL		PLURAL
Nom.	audācēs	audācia	prūdentēs	prūdentia
Gen.	audācium		prūdentium
Dat.	audācibus		prūdentibus
Acc.	audācēs (-īs)	audācia	prūdentēs (-īs)	prūdentia
Abl.	audācibus		prūdentibus

Irregular Adjectives (LVI)

	SINGULAR			PLURAL
Nom.	alius, m.	alia, f.	aliud, n.	aliī, m.	aliae, f.	alia, n.
Gen.	[alīus	alīus	alīus]	aliōrum	aliārum	aliōrum
Dat.	aliī	aliī	aliī	aliīs	aliīs	aliīs
Acc.	alium	aliam	aliud	aliōs	aliās	alia
Abl.	aliō	aliā	aliō	aliīs	aliīs	aliīs

	IN SINGULAR			IN PLURAL ONLY
Nom.	ūnus, m.	ūna, f.	ūnum, n.	duo, m.	duae, f.	duo, n.
Gen.	ūnīus	ūnīus	ūnīus	duōrum	duārum	duōrum
Dat.	ūnī	ūnī	ūnī	duōbus	duābus	duōbus
Acc.	ūnum	ūnam	ūnum	duōs (duo)	duās	duo
Abl.	ūnō	ūnā	ūnō	duōbus	duābus	duōbus

Cardinal Adjectives (XXIV, XLIII)

	IN PLURAL ONLY		PLURAL
	m. f.	n.
Nom.	trēs	tria	mīlia [1]
Gen.	trium		mīlium
Dat.	tribus		mīlibus
Acc.	trēs (-īs)	tria	mīlia
Abl.	tribus		mīlibus

Comparison of Adjectives (Regular) (XXII, XXXIV)

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
lātus, -a, -um	lātior, -ius	lātissimus, -a, -um
līber, -a, -um	līberior, -ius	līberrimus, -a, -um
aeger, aegra, aegrum	aegrior, -ius	aegerrimus, -a, -um
fortis, -e	fortior, -ius	fortissimus, -a, -um
similis, -e	similior, -ius	simillimus, -a, -um
audāx	audācior, -ius	audācissimus, -a, -um
ācer, ācris, ācre	ācrior, -ius	ācerrimus, -a, -um

Comparison of Adjectives (Irregular) (XXXVI)

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
bonus, -a, -um	melior, -ius	optimus, -a, -um
malus, -a, -um	peior, -ius	pessimus, -a, -um
magnus, -a, -um	maior, -ius	maximus, -a, -um
parvus, -a, -um	minor, -us	minimus, -a, -um
multus, -a, -um	—, plūs	plūrimus, -a, -um

Comparison of Adverbs (Regular) (XXII, XXXVI)

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
lātē	lātius	lātissimē
līberē	līberius	līberrimē
aegrē	aegrius	aegerrimē
fortiter	fortius	fortissimē
similiter	similius	simillimē
ācriter	ācrius	ācerrimē

[1] mīlle, a thousand (indecl.); mīlia (millia), thousands (a noun)

Comparison of Adverbs (Irregular) (XXXVI)

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
bene	melius	optimē
male	peius	pessimē
magnopere	magis	maximē
parum	minus	minimē
multum	plūs	plūrimum

Declension of the Comparative (XXII)

	SINGULAR		PLURAL
	m. f.	n.	m. f.	n.
Nom.	altior	altius	altiōrēs	altiōra
Gen.	altiōris		altiōrum
Dat.	altiōrī		altiōribus
Acc.	altiōrem	altius	altiōrēs (-īs)	altiōra
Abl.	altiōre		altiōribus

NUMERALS

See Chapters XXIV (Cardinal numerals One to Twenty, Ordinal numerals First to Twentieth) and XLIII (Cardinal numerals above Twenty).

PRONOUNS

Personal (and Reflexive) (XXI)

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
Nom.	ego	nōs
Gen.	meī	nostrum (nostrī)
Dat.	mihi	nōbīs
Acc.	mē	nōs
Abl.	mē	nōbīs

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
Nom.	tū	vōs
Gen.	tuī	vestrum (vestrī)
Dat.	tibi	vōbīs
Acc.	tē	vōs
Abl.	tē	vōbīs

Reflexive (Third Person) (XXI)

SINGULAR AND PLURAL
Nom.	——
Gen.	suī
Dat.	sibi
Acc.	sē (sēsē)
Abl.	sē (sēsē)

Intensive (XXI)

SINGULAR

Nom.	ipse, m.	ipsa, f.	ipsum, n.
Gen.	ipsīus	ipsīus	ipsīus
Dat.	ipsī	ipsī	ipsī
Acc.	ipsum	ipsam	ipsum
Abl.	ipsō	ipsā	ipsō

Plural (like bonus, VI)

Demonstratives (XXIII)

	SINGULAR				SINGULAR
Nom.	is, m.	ea, f.	id, n.	īdem, m.	eădem, f.	ĭdem, n.
Gen.	eius	eius	eius	eiusdem	eiusdem	eiusdem
Dat.	eī	eī	eī	eīdem	eīdem	eīdem
Acc.	eum	eam	id	eundem	eandem	ĭdem
Abl.	eō	eā	eō	eōdem	eādem	eōdem

	PLURAL				PLURAL
Nom.	eī (iī)	eae	ea	eīdem / iīdem	eaedem	eădem
Gen.	eōrum	eārum	eōrum	eōrundem	eārundem	eōrundem
Dat.	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)	eis (iīs)	eīsdem / iīsdem	eīsdem / iīsdem	eīsdem / iīsdem
Acc.	eōs	eās	ea	eōsdem	eāsdem	eădem
Abl.	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)	eisdem / iīsdem	eīsdem / iīsdem	eīsdem / iīsdem

	SINGULAR				SINGULAR
Nom.	hic, m.	haec, f.	hoc, n.	ille, m.	illa, f.	illud, n.
Gen.	huius	huius	huius	illīus	illīus	illīus
Dat.	huic	huic	huic	illī	illī	illī
Acc.	hunc	hanc	hoc	illum	illam	illud
Abl.	hōc	hāc	hōc	illō	illā	illō

	PLURAL				PLURAL
Nom.	hī	hae	haec	illī	illae	illa
Gen.	hōrum	hārum	hōrum	illōrum	illārum	illōrum
Dat.	hīs	hīs	hīs	illīs	illīs	illīs
Acc.	hōs	hās	haec	illōs	illās	illa
Abl.	hīs	hīs	hīs	illīs	illīs	illīs

	Relative (XXVIII)			Interrogative (XXIII)
	singular			singular (adj. forms in parentheses)
Nom.	quī, m.	quae, f.	quod, n.	quis (quī), m.	(quae), f.	quid (quod), n
Gen.	cuius	cuius	cuius	cuius	(cuius)	cuius
Dat.	cui	cui	cui	cui	(cui)	cui
Acc.	quem	quam	quod	quem	(quam)	quid (quod)
Abl.	quō	quā	quō	quō	(quā)	quō

plural (Relative and Interrogative)

Nom.	quī	quae	quae
Gen.	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
Dat.	quibus	quibus	quibus
Acc.	quōs	quās	quae
Abl.	quibus	quibus	quibus

Indefinite (LIV)

singular

Nom.	aliquis (aliquī), m.	aliqua, f.	aliquid (aliquod), n.
Gen.	alicuius	alicuius	alicuius
Dat.	alicui	alicui	alicui
Acc.	aliquem	aliquam	aliquid (aliquod)
Abl.	aliquō	aliquā	aliquō

plural

Nom.	aliquī	aliquae	aliqua
Gen.	aliquōrum	aliquārum	aliquōrum
Dat.	aliquibus	aliquibus	aliquibus
Acc.	aliquōs	aliquās	aliqua
Abl.	aliquibus	aliquibus	aliquibus

singular

Nom.	quīdam, m.	quaedam, f.	quiddam (quoddam), n.
Gen.	cuiusdam	cuiusdam	cuiusdam
Dat.	cuidam	cuidam	cuidam
Acc.	quendam	quandam	quiddam (quoddam)
Abl.	quōdam	quādam	quōdam

plural

Nom.	quīdam	quaedam	quaedam
Gen.	quōrundam	quōrundam	quōrundam
Dat.	quibusdam	quibusdam	quibusdam
Acc.	quōsdam	quāsdam	quaedam
Abl.	quibusdam	quibusdam	quibusdam

REGULAR VERBS

FIRST CONJUGATION

PRINCIPAL PARTS: vocō, vocāre, vocāvī, vocātus

INDICATIVE

ACTIVE			PASSIVE
(II)		Present	(XVII)
Singular	Plural		Singular	Plural
vocō	vocāmus		vocor	vocāmur
vocās	vocātis		vocāris (-re)	vocāminī
vocat	vocant		vocātur	vocantur
(VII)		Imperfect	(XVII)
vocābam	vocābāmus		vocābar	vocābāmur
vocābās	vocābātis		vocābāris (-re)	vocābāminī
vocābat	vocābant		vocābātur	vocābantur
(VII)		Future	(XVII)
vocābō	vocābimus		vocābor	vocābimur
vocābis	vocābitis		vocāberis (-re)	vocābiminī
vocābit	vocābunt		vocābitur	vocābuntur
(IV)		Perfect	(XVIII)
vocāvī	vocāvimus	vocātus (-a, -um) + sum, es, est	vocātī (-ae, -a) + sumus, estis, sunt
vocāvistī	vocāvistis
vocāvit	vocāvērunt (-ēre)
(VIII)		Pluperfect	(XVIII)
vocāveram	vocāverāmus	vocātus (-a, -um) + eram, erās, erat	vocātī (-ae, -a) + erāmus, erātis, erant
vocāverās	vocāverātis
vocāverat	vocāverant
(VIII)		Future Perfect	(XVIII)
vocāverō	vocāverimus	vocātus (-a, -um) + erō, eris, erit	vocātī (-ae, -a) + erimus, eritis, erunt
vocāveris	vocāveritis
vocāverit	vocāverint

SUBJUNCTIVE (XLVII)

Active		Passive
		Present
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
vocem	vocēmus	vocer	vocēmur
vocēs	vocētis	vocēris (-re)	vocēminī
vocet	vocent	vocētur	vocentur
		Imperfect
vocārem	vocārēmus	vocārer	vocārēmur
vocārēs	vocārētis	vocārēris (-re)	vocārēminī
vocāret	vocārent	vocārētur	vocārentur
		Perfect
vocāverim	vocāverīmus	vocātus (-a, -um) sim / sīs / sit	vocātī (-ae, -a) sīmus / sītis / sint
vocāverīs	vocāverītis
vocāverit	vocāverint
		Pluperfect
vocāvissem	vocāvissēmus	vocātus (-a, -um) essem / essēs / esset	vocātī (-ae, -a) essēmus / essētis / essent
vocāvissēs	vocāvissētis
vocāvisset	vocāvissent

IMPERATIVE (LI)

Present
2. vocā	2. vocāte	2. vocāre	2. vocāminī

INFINITIVE (LIII)

vocāre	Present	vocārī
vocātūrus (-a, -um) esse	Future	[vocātum īrī]
vocāvisse	Perfect	vocātus (-a, -um) esse

PARTICIPLES (LII)

vocāns, -antis	Present	———
vocātūrus, -a, -um	Future	vocandus, -a, -um
———	Perfect	vocātus, -a, -um

GERUND (LVIII)

Gen.	vocandī
Dat.	vocandō
Acc.	vocandum
Abl.	vocandō

SECOND CONJUGATION

PRINCIPAL PARTS: moneō, monēre, monuī, monitus

INDICATIVE

ACTIVE (XI)		PASSIVE (XIX)
Present
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
moneō	monēmus	moneor	monēmur
monēs	monētis	monēris (-re)	monēminī
monet	monent	monētur	monentur
Imperfect
monēbam	monēbāmus	monēbar	monēbāmur
monēbās	monēbātis	monēbāris (-re)	monēbāminī
monēbat	monēbant	monēbātur	monēbantur
Future
monēbō	monēbimus	monēbor	monēbimur
monēbis	monēbitis	monēberis (-re)	monēbiminī
monēbit	monēbunt	monēbitur	monēbuntur
Perfect
monuī	monuimus	monitus (-a, -um) sum / es / est	monitī (-ae, -a) sumus / estis / sunt
monuistī	monuistis
monuit	monuērunt (-ēre)
Pluperfect
monueram	monuerāmus	monitus (-a, -um) eram / erās / erat	monitī (-ae, -a) erāmus / erātis / erant
monuerās	monuerātis
monuerat	monuerant
Future Perfect
monuerō	monuerimus	monitus (-a, -um) erō / eris / erit	monitī (-ae, -a) erimus / eritis / erunt
monueris	monueritis
monuerit	monuerint

SUBJUNCTIVE (XLVIII)

ACTIVE		PASSIVE
Present
moneam	moneāmus	monear	moneāmur
moneās	moneātis	moneāris (-re)	moneāminī
moneat	moneant	moneātur	moneantur

Imperfect

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
monērem	monērēmus	monērer	monērēmur
monērēs	monērētis	monērēris (-re)	monērēminī
monēret	monērent	monērētur	monērentur

Perfect

monuerim	monuerīmus	monitus (-a, -um)	sim / sīs / sit	monitī (-ae, -a)	sīmus / sītis / sint
monuerīs	monuerītis
monuerit	monuerint

Pluperfect

monuissem	monuissēmus	monitus (-a, -um)	essem / essēs / esset	monitī (-ae, -a)	essēmus / essētis / essent
monuissēs	monuissētis
monuisset	monuissent

IMPERATIVE (LI)

Present

2. monē	2. monēte	2. monēre	2. monēminī

INFINITIVE (LIII)

Active		Passive
monēre	Present	monērī
monitūrus (a, -um) esse	Future	[monitum īrī]
monuisse	Perfect	monitus (-a, -um) esse

PARTICIPLES (LII)

monēns, -entis	Present	———
monitūrus, -a, -um	Future	monendus, -a, -um
———	Perfect	monitus, -a, -um

GERUND (LVIII)

Gen. monendī
Dat. monendō
Acc. monendum
Abl. monendō

THIRD CONJUGATION

PRINCIPAL PARTS: regō, regere, rēxī, rēctus

INDICATIVE

ACTIVE (XVI)		PASSIVE (XXI)
		Present
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
regō	regimus	regor	regimur
regis	regitis	regeris (-re)	regiminī
regit	regunt	regitur	reguntur
		Imperfect
regēbam	regēbāmus	regēbar	regēbāmur
regēbās	regēbātis	regēbāris (-re)	regēbāminī
regēbat	regēbant	regēbātur	regēbantur
		Future
regam	regēmus	regar	regēmur
regēs	regētis	regēris (-re)	regēminī
reget	regent	regētur	regentur
		Perfect
rēxī	rēximus	rēctus (-a, -um) sum / es / est	rēctī (-ae, -a) sumus / estis / sunt
rēxistī	rēxistis
rēxit	rēxērunt (-ēre)
		Pluperfect
rēxeram	rēxerāmus	rēctus (-a, -um) eram / erās / erat	rēctī (-ae, -a) erāmus / erātis / erant
rēxerās	rēxerātis
rēxerat	rēxerant
		Future Perfect
rēxerō	rēxerimus	rēctus (-a, -um) erō / eris / erit	rēctī (-ae, -a) erimus / eritis / erunt
rēxeris	rēxeritis
rēxerit	rēxerint

SUBJUNCTIVE (XLIX)

		Present
regam	regāmus	regar	regāmur
regās	regātis	regāris (-re)	regāminī
regat	regant	regātur	regantur

Imperfect

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
regerem	regerēmus	regerer	regerēmur
regerēs	regerētis	regerēris (-re)	regerēminī
regeret	regerent	regerētur	regerentur

Perfect

rēxerim	rēxerīmus	rēctus (-a, -um)	sim	rēctī (-ae, -a)	sīmus
rēxerīs	rēxerītis		sīs		sītis
rēxerit	rēxerint		sit		sint

Pluperfect

rēxissem	rēxissēmus	rēctus (-a, -um)	essem	rēctī (-ae, -a)	essēmus
rēxissēs	rēxissētis		essēs		essētis
rēxisset	rēxissent		esset		essent

IMPERATIVE (LI)

Present

2 rege	2. regite	2. regere	2. regiminī

INFINITIVE (LIII)

regere	Present	regī
rēctūrus (-a, -um) esse	Future	[rēctum īrī]
rēxisse	Perfect	rēctus (-a, -um) esse

PARTICIPLES (LII)

regēns, -entis	Present	———
rēctūrus, -a, -um	Future	regendus, -a, -um
———	Perfect	rēctus, -a, -um

GERUND (LVIII)

Gen. regendī
Dat. regendō
Acc. regendum
Abl. regendō

THIRD CONJUGATION VERBS IN -iō

PRINCIPAL PARTS: capiō, capere, cēpī, captus

INDICATIVE (XXVI)

Present

ACTIVE		PASSIVE
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
capiō	capimus	capior	capimur
capis	capitis	caperis (-re)	capiminī
capit	capiunt	capitur	capiuntur

Imperfect

capiēbam	capiēbāmus	capiēbar	capiēbāmur
capiēbās	capiēbātis	capiēbāris (-re)	capiēbāminī
capiēbat	capiēbant	capiēbātur	capiēbantur

Future

capiam	capiēmus	capiar	capiēmur
capiēs	capiētis	capiēris (-re)	capiēminī
capiet	capient	capiētur	capientur

Perfect

cēpī	cēpimus	captus (-a, -um)	sum	captī (-ae, -a)	sumus
cēpistī	cēpistis		es		estis
cēpit	cēpērunt (-ēre)		est		sunt

Pluperfect

cēperam	cēperāmus	captus (-a, -um)	eram	captī (-ae, -a)	erāmus
cēperās	cēperātis		erās		erātis
cēperat	cēperant		erat		erant

Future Perfect

cēperō	cēperimus	captus (-a, -um)	erō	captī (-ae, -a)	erimus
cēperis	cēperitis		eris		eritis
cēperit	cēperint		erit		erunt

SUBJUNCTIVE (XLIX)

Present

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
capiam	capiāmus	capiar	capiāmur
capiās	capiātis	capiāris (-re)	capiāminī
capiāt	capiant	capiātur	capiantur

Imperfect

caperem	caperēmus	caperer	caperēmur
caperēs	caperētis	caperēris (-re)	caperēminī
caperet	caperent	caperētur	caperentur

Perfect

cēperim	cēperīmus	captus (-a, -um)	sim	captī (-ae, -a)	sīmus
cēperīs	cēperītis		sīs		sītis
cēperit	cēperint		sit		sint

Pluperfect

cēpissem	cēpissēmus	captus (-a, -um)	essem	captī (-ae, -a)	essēmus
cēpissēs	cēpissētis		essēs		essētis
cēpisset	cēpissent		esset		essent

IMPERATIVE (LI)

Present

2. cape	2. capite	2. capere	2. capiminī

INFINITIVE (LIII)

capere	Present	capī
captūrus (-a, -um) esse	Future	[captum īrī]
cēpisse	Perfect	captus (-a, -um) esse

PARTICIPLES (LII)

capiēns, -ientis	Present	———
captūrus, -a, -um	Future	capiendus, -a, -um
———	Perfect	captus, -a, -um

GERUND (LVIII)

Gen.	capiendī
Dat.	capiendō
Acc.	capiendum
Abl.	capiendō

FOURTH CONJUGATION

PRINCIPAL PARTS: audiō, audīre, audīvī, audītus

INDICATIVE

ACTIVE (XXXI) PASSIVE (XXXII)

Present

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
audiō	audīmus	audior	audīmur
audīs	audītis	audīris (-re)	audīminī
audit	audiunt	audītur	audiuntur

Imperfect

audiēbam	audiēbāmus	audiēbar	audiēbāmur
audiēbās	audiēbātis	audiēbāris (-re)	audiēbāminī
audiēbat	audiēbant	audiēbātur	audiēbantur

Future

audiam	audiēmus	audiar	audiēmur
audiēs	audiētis	audiēris (-re)	audiēminī
audiet	audient	audiētur	audientur

Perfect

audīvī	audīvimus	audītus (-a, -um)	sum	audītī (-ae, -a)	sumus
audīvistī	audīvistis		es		estis
audīvit	audīvērunt (-ēre)		est		sunt

Pluperfect

audīveram	audīverāmus	audītus (-a, -um)	eram	audītī (-ae, -a)	erāmus
audīverās	audīverātis		erās		erātis
audīverat	audīverant		erat		erant

Future Perfect

audīverō	audīverimus	audītus (-a, -um)	erō	audītī (-ae, -a)	erimus
audīveris	audīveritis		eris		eritis
audīverit	audīverint		erit		erunt

SUBJUNCTIVE (XLIX)

Present

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
audiam	audiāmus	audiar	audiāmur
audiās	audiātis	audiāris (-re)	audiāminī
audiat	audiant	audiātur	audiantur

Imperfect

audīrem	audīrēmus	audīrer	audīrēmur
audīrēs	audīrētis	audīrēris (-re)	audīrēminī
audīret	audīrent	audīrētur	audīrentur

Perfect

audīverim	audīverīmus	audītus (-a, -um)	sim	audītī (-ae, -a)	sīmus
audīverīs	audīverītis		sīs		sītis
audīverit	audīverint		sit		sint

Pluperfect

audīvissem	audīvissēmus	audītus (-a, -um)	essem	audītī (-ae, -a)	essēmus
audīvissēs	audīvissētis		essēs		essētis
audīvisset	audīvissent		esset		essent

IMPERATIVE (LI)

2. audī	2. audīte	2. audīre	2. audīminī

INFINITIVE (LIII)

audīre	Present	audīrī
audītūrus (-a, -um) esse	Future	[audītum īrī]
audīvisse	Perfect	audītus (-a, -um) esse

PARTICIPLES (LII)

audiēns, -ientis	Present	———
audītūrus, -a, -um	Future	audiendus, -a, -um
———	Perfect	audītus, -a, -um

GERUND (LVIII)

Gen.	audiendī	Acc.	audiendum
Dat.	audiendō	Abl.	audiendō

IRREGULAR VERBS

PRINCIPAL PARTS: sum, esse, fuī, futūrus

INDICATIVE		SUBJUNCTIVE (XLVII)
(II)	Present
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
sum	sumus	sim	sīmus
es	estis	sīs	sītis
est	sunt	sit	sint
(VII)	Imperfect
eram	erāmus	essem	essēmus
erās	erātis	essēs	essētis
erat	erant	esset	essent
(VII)	Future
erō	erimus
eris	eritis
erit	erunt
(IV)	Perfect
fuī	fuimus	fuerim	fuerīmus
fuistī	fuistis	fuerīs	fuerītis
fuit	fuērunt (-ēre)	fuerit	fuerint
(VIII)	Pluperfect
fueram	fuerāmus	fuissem	fuissēmus
fuerās	fuerātis	fuissēs	fuissētis
fuerat	fuerant	fuisset	fuissent
(VIII)	Future Perfect
fuerō	fuerimus
fueris	fueritis
fuerit	fuerint

IMPERATIVE (LI)

Present

[Singular: 2. es Plural: 2. este]

INFINITIVE (LIII)		PARTICIPLE (LII)
esse	Present	———
fuisse	Perfect	———
futūrus (-a, -um) esse	Future	futūrus, -a, -um

PRINCIPAL PARTS: possum, posse, potuī, ———

INDICATIVE (IX) SUBJUNCTIVE (XLVIII)

Present

Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
possum	possumus	possim	possīmus
potes	potestis	possīs	possītis
potest	possunt	possit	possint

Imperfect

poteram	poterāmus	possem	possēmus
poterās	poterātis	possēs	possētis
poterat	poterant	posset	possent

Future

poterō	poterimus
poteris	poteritis
poterit	poterunt

Perfect

potuī	potuimus	potuerim	potuerīmus
potuistī	potuistis	potuerīs	potuerītis
potuit	potuērunt (-ēre)	potuerit	potuerint

Pluperfect

potueram	potuerāmus	potuissem	potuissēmus
potuerās	potuerātis	potuissēs	potuissētis
potuerat	potuerant	potuisset	potuissent

Future Perfect

potuerō	potuerimus
potueris	potueritis
potuerit	potuerint

INFINITIVE (LIII)

Present posse Perfect potuisse

PARTICIPLE (LII)

Present potēns, -entis (used as adjective), powerful

DEPONENT VERBS (LIX)

PRINCIPAL PARTS:
	hortor,	hortārī,	hortātus sum	(1st Conj.)
	vereor,	verērī,	veritus sum	(2d Conj.)
	sequor,	sequī,	secūtus sum	(3d Conj.)
	patior,	patī,	passus sum	(3d Conj. -iō)
	experior,	experīrī,	expertus sum	(4th Conj.)

INDICATIVE

Pres.	hortor	vereor	sequor	patior	experior
	hortāris (-re)	verēris (-re)	sequeris (-re)	pateris (-re)	experīris (-re)
	hortātur	verētur	sequitur	patitur	experītur
	hortāmur	verēmur	sequimur	patimur	experīmur
	hortāminī	verēminī	sequiminī	patiminī	experīminī
	hortantur	verentur	sequuntur	patiuntur	experiuntur
Imp.	hortābar	verēbar	sequēbar	patiēbar	experiēbar
Fut.	hortābor	verēbor	sequar	patiar	experiar
Perf.	hortātus sum	veritus sum	secūtus sum	passus sum	expertus sum
Plup.	hortātus eram	veritus eram	secūtus eram	passus eram	expertus eram
Fut. Perf.	hortātus erō	veritus erō	secūtus erō	passus erō	expertus erō

SUBJUNCTIVE

Pres.	horter	verear	sequar	patiar	experiar
Imp.	hortārer	verērer	sequerer	paterer	experīrer
Perf.	hortātus sim	veritus sim	secūtus sim	passus sim	expertus sim
Plup.	hortātus essem	veritus essem	secūtus essem	passus essem	expertus essem

IMPERATIVE

Pres. 2.	hortāre	verēre	sequere	patere	experīre

INFINITIVE

Pres.	hortārī	verērī	sequī	patī	experīrī
Perf.	hortātus esse	veritus esse	secūtus esse	passus esse	expertus esse
Fut.	hortātūrus esse	veritūrus esse	secūtūrus esse	passūrus esse	expertūrus esse

PARTICIPLES

Pres.	hortāns	verēns	sequēns	patiēns	experiēns
Fut.	hortātūrus	veritūrus	secūtūrus	passūrus	expertūrus
Perf. Act.	hortātus	veritus	secūtus	passus	expertus
Fut. Pass.	hortandus	verendus	sequendus	patiendus	experiendus

GERUND

hortandī, etc.	verendī, etc.	sequendī, etc.	patiendī, etc.	experiendī, etc.

II. RULES OF SYNTAX

(These Rules are arranged in the order of their occurrence. The Roman numerals refer to the chapters; the sections are given in parentheses.)

I. 1. The Subject of a verb is in the Nominative case (18–19).

2. The Direct Object of a transitive verb is in the Accusative case (18–19).

3. A verb agrees with its Subject in person and number (18–19).

4. The Genitive is used with a noun to indicate the possessor and is then called a Possessive Genitive. It is equivalent to the English Possessive case (18–19).

II. The Indirect Object of a verb is in the Dative case (29).

III. In Latin, as in English, a noun in the predicate describing the subject, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with the subject in case, and is called a Predicate Noun (41–42).

IV. In Latin the Perfect Indicative, like the English Past tense, may express an action or state as in the past; like the English Present Perfect, it may express an action or state as completed at the present (the time of speaking) (46–47).

VI. An attributive adjective agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case. A predicate adjective agrees with the word to which it refers in gender, number, and case (59–60).

VII. 1. Like the English "Past Progressive," the Latin Imperfect Indicative expresses the action as going on at a past time (71).

2. In Latin, as in English, a noun used to describe another noun, in the same part of the sentence, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with that noun in case, and is called an Appositive (78–79).

3. Means or Instrument is expressed in Latin by the Ablative without a preposition (80–81).

IX. In Latin, as in English, an infinitive is used with verbs meaning to be able, wish, dare, begin, etc., to complete their meaning. Such an infinitive is called a Complementary Infinitive (102–103).

XI. Accompaniment or Association is expressed in Latin by a prepositional phrase, cum with the Ablative (114–115).

XII. 1. In Latin Time When or Within Which is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition (123–124).

2. In Latin the Duration of Time is expressed by the Accusative without a preposition. For emphasis on the duration of time as uninterrupted (English "throughout") per, through, throughout, with the Accusative is used (125–126).

XVII. Agency with a verb in the Passive voice is expressed in Latin by a prepositional phrase (ā or ab with the Ablative), just as in English by an equivalent phrase (158–159).

XXII. 1. In comparisons, if quam, than, is expressed, the things compared are in the same case (the same usage in Latin as in English) (204–205).

2. In comparisons, if quam, than, is omitted, the second thing compared is put in the Ablative case, which preferably comes before the Comparative (206–207).

XXVIII. In Latin a relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, person, and number, but its case is determined by its use in the Relative clause (241–242).

XXIX. 1. A Temporal clause introduced by postquam, after, or ubi, when, if it refers to past time, generally has the Perfect Indicative, which is often translated by the English "Past Perfect" (247–248).

2. A Temporal clause introduced by dum, while, if it refers to past time, regularly has the "vivid Present" Indicative, which is usually translated by the English "Past Progressive" (247–248).

3. A Causal clause introduced by quod or quia, because, has the Indicative to assert the reason as a fact (249–250).

XXXI. Cause is expressed in Latin by the Ablative alone; by ob or propter with the Accusative; by ē (ex) or dē with the Ablative (263–264).

XXXII. The Ablative without a preposition, used to specify in what respect the statement is made, is called the Ablative of Specification (272–273).

XXXIII. The manner of an action is expressed by the Ablative with cum; but cum may be omitted if an adjective (or limiting Genitive) is used with the noun expressing manner (281–282).

XXXIV. In Latin the Measure or Degree of Difference is expressed by the Ablative without a preposition (291–292).

XXXVII. The Dative of Reference is used with certain adjectives to indicate that to which the quality expressed by the adjective is directed or referred (312–313).

XXXVIII. Actual Separation or removal is regularly expressed in Latin by ā (ab), ē (ex), dē, with the Ablative; but if the separation is figurative (not actual), the Ablative is used without a preposition (319–320).

XXXIX. The Dative of the Possessor is used with the verb sum, the thing possessed being the subject (327–328).

XLI. Certain verbs which are transitive in English are intransitive in Latin, and the English object becomes in Latin a Dative of the Indirect Object. In the Passive these verbs are used only impersonally, and the English subject is expressed in Latin by the Dative (336–337).

XLIII. 1. Place-from-which is expressed by ā (ab), ē (ex), or dē with the Ablative, but with names of cities and towns, also with domus and rūs, no preposition is used (348–350).

2. Place-to-which is expressed by ad and in with the Accusative, but with names of cities and towns, also with domus and rūs no preposition is used (348–350).

3. Place-in-which is expressed by in with the Ablative, but with names of cities and towns, also domus and rūs, the Locative case is used (348–350).

XLIII. The Extent of Space is expressed by the Accusative (352–353).

XLIV. 1. In Latin a noun in the Genitive may be used to limit or define the meaning of another noun. The Genitive may be a Posses- sive Genitive, a Subjective Genitive, an Objective Genitive, or a Genitive of the Whole ("Partitive Genitive"), according to the relation it bears to the noun it limits. Also a noun in the Genitive may be used to limit or define certain adjectives expressing desire, knowledge, fullness, sharing, guilt, and their opposites (358–362).

2. In Latin a noun accompanied by an adjective may be used as an adjective phrase to describe a noun. The phrase may be in either the Genitive or the Ablative, but the Ablative is generally used to express physical characteristics, and the Genitive is used to express measure. If in the English sentence no adjective is used with the noun in the phrase, the phrase must be expressed in Latin by an adjective alone (363–364).

XLVII. Purpose is expressed in Latin by the Subjunctive introduced by ut (that, in order that) or nē (that . . . not, in order that . . . not). In Latin the Infinitive should not be used to express purpose (383–387).

XLVIII. 1. In Latin, as in English, the Subjunctive is used to express a wish, and is called the "Optative Subjunctive" (from optō, I wish). The negative is nē. There are three kinds of wishes. In these the same tenses are used as in English: "Future Possible Wish" (Present Subjunctive); "Present Unfulfilled Wish" (Imperfect Subjunctive); "Past Unfulfilled Wish" (Pluperfect Subjunctive) (397–398).

2. In Latin, as in English, the Subjunctive is used to indicate something as willed or urged, and is called the "Volitive Subjunctive" (from volō, I will). The Subjunctive is, therefore, used to express an exhortation (or request), or a command. The negative is nē (399–401).

3. In Latin the Conditional Subjunctive is used to express something merely as probable. It is then translated with the aid of the modal auxiliaries should and would. The negative is nōn (402–403).

XLIX. 1. A Clause of Result is expressed in Latin by ut, that, so that (if negative, by ut . . . nōn) with the Subjunctive. It is, however, usually translated by the English Indicative (411–413).

2. If the verb of the main clause refers to present (or future) time, the result, if not completed, is expressed by the Present Subjunctive; if completed, by the Perfect Subjunctive. If the verb of the main clause refers to past time, the result, if not completed, is expressed by the Imperfect Subjunctive; if completed, by the Perfect Subjunctive. Thus the tenses are used in Latin in the same way as in English (414–415).

LI. The relative pronoun may introduce a Clause of Purpose, if the antecedent of the relative is expressed or implied in the principal clause. The negative is nōn (430–431).

LII. A noun or pronoun in the Ablative with a participle (or noun, or adjective) in agreement may be used, like the Nominative Absolute in English, in place of a subordinate clause. It is translated, according to its relation to the rest of the sentence, by a Temporal, Causal, or Conditional clause (437–440).

LIII. After all verbs meaning to say, think, know, hear, believe, etc., an Infinitive with Subject in the Accusative is used to express a statement in Indirect Discourse. The tenses of the Infinitive express time in relation to the time of the main verb; the tense used in the direct statement becomes the corresponding tense of the Infinitive (452–456).

LIV. 1. A substantive Quod-Clause of fact with the Indicative may itself be the Subject of a verb, or it may be used to explain some antecedent word (462–463).

2. In Latin, with verbs meaning to urge, persuade, command, etc., a Substantive clause with the Subjunctive is used to state the action willed. The clause is introduced by ut, if affirmative; by nē (sometimes by ut . . . nē), if negative. The tense, as in English, is governed by the law of Sequence of Tenses (465-466).

3. Substantive Clauses of Result may be used as Subjects of certain impersonal verbs, such as accidit; they may stand as Appositives to nouns (e. g. mōs) and pronouns; they may be used as Objects of verbs of "making," such as faciō, efficiō, perficiō (468–470).

LVII 1. In Latin an Indirect question must be in the Subjunctive Mood. The tenses follow the law of Sequence of Tenses (484–485).

2. Double or "Alternative" Indirect questions are expressed by utrum . . . an, or -ne . . . an, or . . . an, with the Subjunctive (487).

LVIII. 1. The Gerund is a Verbal Noun in the Active voice. Its Nominative is supplied by the Infinitive. The Dative of the Gerund is not common (492–496).

2. The Gerund*ive* is an attribut*ive* adject*ive*, passive in meaning, used only with nouns in the Genitive, Dative, Accusative, or Ablative case. It is called a Gerundive because it carries the leading idea in the phrase; and is translated in English by a verbal noun with an object (497–499).

3. Purpose may be expressed in Latin by causā, for the sake of, (a) with the Genitive of the Gerund, or (b) with the Genitive of a Gerundive phrase. Purpose may also be expressed by ad with the Accusative (a) of the Gerund, or (b) with the Accusative of a Gerundive phrase. The Romans generally preferred a Gerundive phrase rather than a Gerund with an object (500).

LIX. 1. Five Deponent verbs (and their compounds) are used with the Ablative: ūtor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vēscor.

2. Cum-Temporal Clauses. A Cum-Temporal clause has the Indicative if the clause refers to present or future time. If the clause refers to past time, the Perfect Indicative is used to express the thought of the clause as a fact at a definite past time (509).

3. Cum-Circumstantial Clauses. With the Imperfect and Pluperfect tenses the Cum-clause, especially in narration, regularly has the Subjunctive, if the clause is felt merely as giving an idea of the circumstances (not a past fact at a definite past time). It is then called a Cum-circumstantial clause. The Subjunctive mood expresses the clause as subordinate in the thought (510).

4. Cum-Causal Clauses. Cum, meaning since, because, introducing a Causal clause, has only the Subjunctive (511).

The Law of Sequence of Tenses

Sequence of Tenses. In a subordinate clause requiring the Subjunctive the tense of the verb expresses action (or state) in relation to the general division of time (past, present, or future) indicated by the verb of the main (principal) clause with which the subordinate clause is associated in thought. The main verb, therefore, has a certain authority in the sentence and exercises a certain control over the verb of the subordinate clause. This principle, called "Sequence of Tenses" (because the tense of the subordinate verb follows, or is controlled by, the tense of the main verb), is shown by the following table:

Tense of Verb in Main Clause	Tense of Subjunctive in Subordinate Clause
Primary Tenses (Expressing present or future time)	Present ("Present Perfect" with have) Future Future Perfect	followed by	Present Subjunctive (incomplete action) or Perfect Subjunctive (completed action)
Secondary Tenses (Expressing past time)	Imperfect Perfect ("Historical Perfect" without have) Pluperfect	followed by	Imperfect Subjunctive (incomplete action) or Pluperfect Subjunctive (completed action)
Note. Tense-sequence requires not the same tense, but the same kind of tense (i. e. either all tenses primary, or all tenses secondary).

Rule. The law of Sequence of Tenses requires that a primary tense in the main clause be followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause, and that a secondary tense in the main clause be followed by a secondary tense in the dependent clause, or more briefly, "primary" tenses are followed by primary, "secondary" tenses by secondary. (See, however, 414–415.)

III. THE LATIN CLUB

Membership in the Latin Club should be voluntary. Any pupil studying Latin should be permitted to join. Those who have reached Cicero or Vergil may be classified as Senators, those reading Caesar as Equites (or Knights), and the beginners, for a year, would have to accept the rank of Plebeians. The chief officers may be named Consuls; the Executive Committee may be called Praetors; the Aediles may be Secretaries, since the Roman Aediles had charge of archives, or may act as a Program Committee, since their prototypes had charge of public games, or may fulfill the more humble functions of a Room Committee, which would be equivalent to caring for streets and temples; the Quaestors act as Treasurers. Teachers and other adult members of the community may be present as delegates from foreign lands, e.g. an English teacher could represent an Ambassador from Britain, or a French instructor a Chieftain from Gaul. It is advisable to permit the young Romans to govern themselves as far as possible.

How often the club shall meet depends upon the special conditions at each school. It is far better to have a few well-attended, successful meetings than frequent gatherings of a less stimulating character. Do not have a long session; an hour, or an hour and a half, is better than two hours. Begin and close the meeting promptly.

In preparing the programs[1] it is necessary to steer skillfully between the Scylla of seriousness and the Charybdis of frivolity. The entertainment must convey edifying information about ancient Roman life without becoming dull and dry; it must include lighter moments and plenty of fun without degenerating into a "party." A somewhat mechanical device by which this golden mean may be obtained is to divide the time (aside from a few minutes at the opening for necessary "business" details) into two parts, the first of which is occupied by a lecture, paper, reading, or debate on some classical topic, while the remainder of the period is given over to games, charades, or some other form of social amusement in which every one takes an active part. This does not mean that the lecture, or serious exercise, should not be shot through with gleams of humor, or that the subsequent diversion should be without its nucleus of classical fact or fancy, — quite the contrary.

The first part of the program may consist of a lecture or talk, illustrated by stereopticon, on some such topic as "Roman Dress," "Houses of Pompeii," "Ancient Writing Materials," "The Forum in Cicero's Time." Let the pictures play a more important part than the speaker's words, and let the words bring out skillfully the significant details of the pictures; most of us do not know how to observe. Instead of an illustrated lecture, there may be an informal talk about some ancient Roman or Greek of whom the pupil will hear little in the high school classroom. The speaker should not try to give an exhaustive treatment of his subject: he should remember that the more interesting the statement, the more likely it is to be retained. Sometimes a reading of a famous passage of Latin literature, with the necessary introduction and comment, will provide a profitable half hour. So, too, would a passage from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, or Bryant's translation of the Iliad or Odyssey, or Church's Stories from Herodotus, or Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome, or some passage from Last Days of Pompeii, Ben Hur, or A Friend of Caesar.

---

[1] An invaluable help in preparing these programs is the Handbook for Latin Clubs (Paxton), D. C. Heath & Co.

Even greater variety is possible in the second part of the program. Many of the common parlor games may be given a classical coloring with little difficulty. One which is effective in "breaking the ice" is "The Unknown Celebrity, or 'Know Thyself.'" On the back of each person is pinned a tag on which is written the name of some famous character of the ancient world who, during the game, the person is supposed to be; the wearer must discover his own identity by questioning his friends, who are not allowed to tell him outright, but give suggestive, though vague, replies; when he guesses correctly, the tag is pinned in front, and the game continues till all the characters are guessed. "Twenty Questions" becomes suitable for the Latin Club, if the objects chosen have to do with antiquity. A number of contests depending upon letters and the spelling of words are much more exciting when the words are Latin instead of English. As an example of these games take the following. The players being seated in a circle, the first begins the spelling of a Latin word (which he does not tell) by naming the first letter, which must not be itself a Latin word; the next player must add a letter which must contribute toward spelling some Latin word, but must not end one; the third player adds a letter, but under the same conditions. The person with whom a word ends, or who cannot think of a letter with which to continue the spelling of an actual Latin word, gives a forfeit and drops out of the circle.

Much may be made of Dramatics, and it is desirable to have a "property box," containing togas and other suitable equipment. Once in the year the club might give a classical play. But Dramatics of a less formal kind may also appear. "The Philosopher and the Ghost" (cf. p. 206), or the Ghost Scene of Plautus's Mostellaria, may be acted at Halloween, when also the Sibyl from her cavern may dispense fortunes selected from the verses of Vergil. A scene from the life of Caesar or of some other character of classical times may be acted out and the character guessed. The club may be divided into "sides" and each side present a charade, acting first the separate syllables and then the entire word. For example, the word "Haruspex" (treated as Hah-ruse-specks) was in one club made into an interesting little extempore play in Roman costume. The word must be guessed by the other side.

ABBREVIATIONS

Abl., Ablative
Acc., Accusative
adj., adjective
adv., adverb
cf., compare
comp., comparative conj., conjunction
Dat., Dative
def., defective
dem., demonstrative
encl., enclitic
f., feminine fr., from Gen., Genitive
impers., impersonal
indecl., indeclinable indef., indefinite
indir., indirect
inf., infinitive
interrog., interrogative intr., intransitive
m., masculine
n., neuter
neg., negative
Nom., Nominative
part., participle
pass., passive
perf., perfect
pers., personal pl., plural
poss., possessive
prep., preposition
pres., present
pron., pronoun
reflex., reflexive
rel., relative
sing., singular
Subj., Subjunctive
subst., substantive superl., superlative
tr., transitive
w., with

VOCABULARY

ENGLISH–LATIN

A

able: be able, possum.
about, dē, w. Abl.; ad, w. Acc.
above, uper, w. Acc.
absent, absēns; be absent, absum.
accept, accipiō; excipiō.
accomplish, gerō; perficiō.
account: on account of, Abl. of cause; ob or propter, w. Acc.
accustomed: be accustomed, cōnsuēscō.
across, trāns, w. Acc.
add, addō; adiciō.
advance, accēdō; prōcēdō.
advice, cōnsilium, -ī, n.
advise, moneō.
affair, rēs, reī, f.
affection, amor, -ōris, m.
afraid: be afraid, pertimēscō.
after, post, w. Acc.; also adv.; postquam (conj.).
afterwards, posteā.
against, contrā, in, w. Acc.
aid, auxilium, -ī, n.
alarm, perturbō; perterreō.
alive, vīvus, -a, -um; be alive, vīvō.
all, omnis, -e; ūniversus, -a, -um; tōtus, -a, -um.
allow, permittō; patior.
ally, socius, -ī, m.
alone, sōlus, -a, -um.
already, iam.
also, et; etiam; quoque (postpositive).
always, semper.
among, inter or apud, w. Acc.
ancestors, maiōrēs, -um, m.
and, et; -que; and also, atque (ac); and . . . not, neque (nec); and so, itaque.
animal, animal, -ālis, n.
announce, nūntiō.
another, the other (of two), alter, altera, alterum; to one another, inter sē; belonging to another, another's, aliēnus, -a, -um.
answer, respondeō.
any, ūllus, -a, -um; aliquī, aliqua, aliquod; any one, anything, aliquis, aliquid.
apply, adhibeō.
approach, appropinquō.
arm, armō.
arms, arma, -ōrum, n.
army, exercitus, -ūs, m.
around, circum, w. Acc.
arouse, permoveō; concitō.
arrive, perveniō.
arrow, sagitta, -ae, f.
as long as, while, dum; as quickly as possible, quam celerrimē; as soon as, cum prīmum; as soon as possible, quam prīmum.
ascend, ascendō.
ascertain, cognōscō.

ask, rogō; interrogō.
assign, tribuō.
at, near, ad, w. Acc.; at last, at length, tandem; at least, quidem (postpositive); at once, statim; at the foot of, sub, w. Abl.
attack (verb), oppugnō; (noun), impetus, -ūs, m.
attempt, cōnor; temptō.
authority, auctōritās, -tātis, f.
avaricious, avārus, -a, -um.
await, exspectō.
away: be away, absum.
away from, ā, ab, w. Abl.

B

bad, malus, -a, -um.
badly, malĕ.
baggage, impedīmenta, -ōrum, n.
barbarian, barbarus, -ī, m.
barbarous, barbarus, -a, -um.
battle, proelium, -ī, n.
battle line, aciēs, aciēī, f.
be, sum; be able, possum; be alive, vīvō; be away, absum; be eager, studeō; be present, adsum; be without hope, dēspērō.
beautiful, pulcher, pulchra, pulchrum.
because, quod; quia; quoniam; because of, ob or propter, w. Acc., ē, ex, w. Abl.
before, ante, w. Acc.; also adv.; antequam (conj.).
beg, implōrō; ōrō; beg for, petō.
begin, incipiō; īnstituō; began, coepī, def.; begin battle, proelium committō.
behalf: in behalf of, prō, w. Abl.
believe, crēdō, w. Dat.
besiege, obsideō.
best, optimus, -a, -um; adv., optimē.
better, melior, -ius; adv., melius.
between, inter, w. Acc.
bird, avis, avis, f.
blame (verb), culpō; (noun), culpa, -ae.
boat, nāvigium, -ī, n.
body, corpus, corporis, n.
bold, audāx.
boldly, audācter.
book, liber, librī, m.
born: be born, nāscor.
both . . . and, et . . . et.
boy, puer, puerī, m.
brave, fortis, -e.
bravely, fortiter.
bravery, fortitūdō, -tūdinis, f.; virtūs, -tūtis, f.
bridge, pōns, pontis, m.
bring about, efficiō; perficiō; bring together, condūcō; comportō; bring up, supportō.
Britain, Britannia, -ae.
broad, lātus, -a, -um.
brother, frāter, frātris, m.
build, aedificō.
building, aedificium, -ī, n.
burn, incendō.
business, negōtium, -ī, n.
but, sed; but if, sīn.
buy, emō.
by, ā, ab, w. Abl.

C

Caesar, Caesar, Caesaris, m.
call, vocō; call back, recall, revocō; call out, ēvocō; call together, convocō; (=name), appellō.

camp, castra, -ōrum, n.
can, possum.
captive, captīvus, -ī, m.
capture, capiō; capture by assault, expugnō.
care, cūra, -ae, f.; dīligentia, -ae, f.; care for, cūrō.
careful, dīligēns.
carefully, dīligenter.
carry, portō; vehō; carry across, trānsportō; carry back, reportō; carry on, gerō; carry together, comportō.
Carthaginian, Carthāginiēnsis, -e.
cast down, dēiciō; cast forward, prōiciō.
catch sight of, cōnspiciō.
cattle, pecus, pecoris, n.
cause, causa, -ae, f.
cavalry, equitēs, -um; equitātus, -ūs, m.; (adj.), equester, -tris, -tre.
cease, desist from, dēsistō.
centurion, centuriō, -ōnis, m.
certain, certus, -a, -um; a certain one, quīdam, quaedam, quiddam.
certainly, certē.
character, virtūs, -tūtis, f.
chief, prīnceps, prīncipis, m.
children, līberī, -ōrum, m., f.
choose, dēligō.
Cicero, Cicerō, Cicerōnis, m. citizen, cīvis, cīvis, m.
citizenship, cīvitās, -tātis, f.
city, urbs, urbis, f.
climb, ascendō.
cloud, nūbēs, nūbis, f.
cohort, cohors, cohortis, f.
collect, cōgō; colligō.
come, veniō; come back, reveniō; come forth, prōcēdō; come together, meet, conveniō; come to help, subveniō; come up, succēdō.
command (verb), imperō, w. Dat.; iubeō; (noun), imperium, -ī, n.; iussus, -ūs, m.
commander, imperātor, -tōris, m.
common, commūnis, -e.
commonwealth, rēs pūblica, reī pūblicae, f.
companion, comes, comitis, m., f.
compel, cōgō.
concerning, dē, w. Abl.
condition, condiciō, -ōnis, f.
conquer, vincō; superō.
consul, cōnsul, -is, m.
consult, cōnsulō.
contain, contineō.
contrary to, contrā, w. Acc.
converse, colloquor.
council, concilium, -ī, n.
country, patria, -ae, f.; rūs, rūris, n.; terra, -ae, f.
courage, virtūs, -tūtis, f.
covetous, avārus, -a, -um.
crush, opprimō.
cultivate, colō.
custom, mōs, mōris, m.; cōnsuētūdō, -tūdinis, f.; īnstitūtum, -ī, n.
cut off, intercipiō; interclūdō.

D

danger, perīculum, -ī, n.
dangerous, perīculōsus, -a, -um.
dare, audeō.
daughter, fīlia, -ae, f.
dawn: at dawn, prīmā lūce.
day, diēs, diēī, m., f.; on the next day, postrīdiē; on the day before, prīdiē.

daybreak: at daybreak, prīmā lūce.
death, mors, mortis, f.
decide, cōnstituō.
deed, factum, -ī, n.
deep, altus, -a, -um.
defend, dēfendō.
defense, dēfēnsiō, -ōnis, f.
delight, dēlectō.
demand, poscō; postulō.
depart, discēdō.
depth, altitūdō, -tūdinis, f.
descend, dēscendō.
desire (verb), cupiō; (noun), cupiditās, -tātis, f.
desirous (of), cupidus, -a, -um.
desist from, dēsistō.
despair, dēspērō.
despise, dēspiciō.
difficult difficilis, -e.
difficulty, difficultās, -tātis, f.; with difficulty, aegrē; difficulter.
dig: dig a ditch, fossam perdūcō.
dignity, dīgnitās, -tātis, f.
diligence, dīligentia, -ae, f.
diligent, dīligēns, -entis.
diligently, dīligenter.
dirty, sordidus, -a, -um.
disappointed, spē dēiectus, -a, -um.
discontinue, intermittō.
discuss, disputō.
disgraceful, turpis, -e.
disloyal, īnfīdus, -a, -um.
displease: it displeases, displicet, w. Dat.
distance, spatium, -ī, n.
distribute, tribuō; distribuō.
disturb, permoveō; perturbō.
ditch, fossa, -ae, f.; dig a ditch, fossam perdūcō.
divide, dīvidō.
do, agō; (=make), faciō.
doubt, dubitō.
doubtful, dubius, -a, -um.
down from, dē, w. Abl
drag, trahō.
draw up (a battle line), (aciem) īnstruō.
drive, agō; pellō; drive back, repellō; drive on, impellō; drive out, expellō.
duty, officium, -ī, n.
dwell (in), habitō; incolō.

E

each (of two), uterque, utraque, utrumque; singulī, -ae, -a eager (for), avidus, -a, -um; cupidus, -a, -um; appetēns, w. Gen.
eager: be eager, studeō.
eagle, aquila, -ae, f.
easily, facile.
easy, facilis, -e.
Egypt, Aegyptus, -ī, f.
eight, octō.
eighteen, duodēvīgintī.
eighth, octāvus, -a, -um.
either . . . or, aut . . . aut.
eleven, ūndecim.
eminent, ēgregius, -a, -um.
employ, adhibeō.
encamp, halt, cōnsīdō.
encourage, cōnfirmō; cohortor.
end, fīnis, fīnis, m.
enemy (of the state), hostis, -is, m.
energy, vīs, vim (Acc.), f.
engage in battle, proelium committō.
enmity, inimīcitia, -ae, f.
enough, satis (indecl.).
enroll, cōnscrībō.

envoy, lēgātus, -ī, m.
envy, invideō, w. Dat.
equal, pār, pāris, w. Dat.
erect, exstruō.
escort, prōsequor.
establish, conlocō.
Etruscan, Etrūscus, -a, -um.
even, et; etiam; ipse, -a, -um.
every, omnis, -e.
evil, malus, -a, -um.
example, exemplum, -ī, n.
excel, superō.
exchange, inter sē dare.
excite, commoveō; concitō; impellō.
expect, exspectō.
experience, ūsus, -ūs, m.
experienced, perītus, -a, -um.
explain, expōnō.
extend, perdūcō; pertineō, intr.

F

Fabius, Fabius, -ī, m.
fail, dēficiō.
faith, fidēs, fideī, f.
faithful, fīdus, -a, -um.
fall, cadō, -ere, cecidī, cāsūrus.
fame, fāma, -ae, f.
family, familia, -ae, f.
famine, famēs, -is, f. (Abl. famē).
famous, nōbilis, -e; clārus, -a, -um.
far, by far, longē.
farmer, agricola, -ae, m.
farmhouse, vīlla, -ae, f.
father, pater, patris, m.
fatherland, patria, -ae, f.
fault, culpa, -ae, f.
favor, beneficium, -ī, n.
fear (verb), timeō; fear greatly, pertimēscō; (noun), timor, -ōris, m.
feel, sentiō.
few, paucī, -ae, -a.
field, ager, agrī, m.
fiercely, ācriter.
fifteen, quīndecim.
fifth, quīntus, -a, -um.
fifty, quīnquāgintā.
fight, pugnō; dīmicō
fill, compleō.
find, inveniō; find out, comperiō.
fire, ignis, ignis, m.; (=conflagration), incendium, -ī, n.
first, prīmus, -a, -um; prīmum (adv.); at first, prīmō (adv.).
fitting: it is fitting, oportet.
five, quīnque.
flee, fugiō.
flight, fuga, -ae, f.; put to flight, in fugam dō.
flock, grex, gregis, m.
food, cibus, -ī, m.
foot, pēs, pedis, m.
foot-soldier, pedes, peditis, m.
for, sign of the Dat.; prō, w. Abl.; nam; enim (postpositive); for the purpose of, ad, w. Acc.; for the sake of, causā, w. Gen. preceding.
force, compellō.
forces, cōpiae, -ārum, f. pl.
forefathers, maiōrēs (nātū).
foresee, prōvideō.
forest, silva, -ae, f.
fortify, mūniō.
four, quattuor.
fourteen, quattuordecim.
fourth, quārtus, -a, -um.
France, Gallia, -ae, f.
free (adj.), līber, lībera, līberum; free (verb), līberō.
freely, līberē.

Frenchman, Gallus, -ī, m.
frequent, crēber, crēbra, crēbrum.
fresh, recēns, -entis.
friend, amīcus, -ī, m.
friendship, amīcitia, -ae, f.
frighten, terreō; perterreō; be frightened, pertimēscō.
from, out from, ē, ex; away from, ā, ab; down from, dē; from there, inde.
full, plēnus, -a, -um.

G

Gallic, Gallus, -a, -um.
garden, hortus, -ī, m.
garrison, praesidium, -ī, n.
gate, porta, -ae, f.
gather together, cōgō; colligō.
Gaul, Gallia, -ae, f.; (a) Gaul, Gallus, -ī, m.
general, imperātor, -ōris, m.
German, Germānus, -ī, m.
get ready, parō; comparō.
ghost, imāgō, imāginis, f.
gift, dōnum, -ī, n.
girl, puella, -ae, f.
give, dō; give back, reddō; give up, yield, concēdō; give up, surrender, dēdō.
go, cēdō; go away, discēdō; go back, recēdō; go before, praecēdō, antecēdō; go forward, prōcēdō; go out, excēdō; go to, accēdō.
god, deus, -ī, m.; God, Deus.
gold, aurum, -ī, n.
good, bonus, -a, -um.
grain, frūmentum, -ī, n.
great, magnus, -a, -um.
greatly, magnopere.
greedy, avidus, -a, -um.
greet, salūtō.
grief, dolor.
grieve, grieve over, doleō.
guard, custōs, custōdis, m.
guarding, custōdia, -ae, f.

H

halt, cōnsīdō.
hand, manus, -ūs, f.
hand over, trādō.
Hannibal, Hannibal, -is, m.
happens: it happens, accidit.
hasten, contendō.
hate, ōdī, ōdisse, def.
hatred, odium, -ī, n.
have, habeō.
he, is; hic; ille; iste; ipse.
head, caput, capitis, n.
hear, audiō.
heart, cor, cordis, n.
heavily, graviter.
heavy, gravis, -e.
height, altitūdō, -tūdinis, f.
help, auxilium, -ī, n.
her, hers, eius; suus, -a, -um.
here, hīc.
hero, vir, virī, m.
hesitate, dubitō.
hide, hide away, abdō.
high, altus, -a, -um.
hill, collis, collis, m.
himself, suī (Gen.).
his own, suus, -a, -um.
hither, hūc.
hold, habeō; teneō; obtineō; hold up, sustineō.
holy, sacer, sacra, sacrum.
home, domus, -ūs, f.; at the home of, apud, w. Acc.; at home, domī.
honor, honor -ōris, m.

hope (noun), spēs, speī, f.; (verb), spērō; be without hope, lose hope, dēspērō.
Horatius, Horātius, -ī, m.
horse, equus, -ī, m.
horseman, eques, equitis, m.
hostage, obses, obsidis, m., f.
hour, hōra, -ae, f.
house, vīlla, -ae, f.; aedificium, -ī, n.; domus, -ūs, f.
however, autem (postpositive).
hurl, iaciō; coniciō.
hurry, properō.
husband, vir, virī, m.

I

I, ego, meī.
if, sī; if not, unless, nisi, sī . . . minus.
illness, aegritūdō, -tūdinis, f.
immortal, immortālis, -e.
implore, implōrō.
importance, magnitūdō, -tūdinis, f.
impose, impōnō.
in, in; in behalf of, in front of, prō, w. Abl.; in order to, ut, w. Subj.
incite, incitō.
increase, augeō.
indeed, quidem (postpositive).
infantry, peditēs, -um, m. pl.; (adj.), pedester, -tris, -tre.
influence, grātia, -ae; auctōritās, -tātis, f.
inform, certiōrem faciō.
inhabit, colō; habitō; incolō.
inhabitant, incola, -ae, f.
injure, noceō, w. Dat.
institution, īnstitūtum, -ī, n.
intend, in animō habeō.
intercept, intercipiō.
interrupt, intermittō.
intimate, familiāris, -e.
into, in, w. Acc.
intrust, committō; mandō.
investigate, explōrō.
island, īnsula, -ae, f.
Italy, Italia, -ae, f.
its, eius; suus, -a, -um.

J

journey, iter, itineris, n.
judge, iūdex, iūdicis, m.
judgment, iūdicium, -ī, n.
just, iūstus, -a, -um; aequus, -a, -um.
justice, iūstitia, -ae, f.; iūs, iūris, n.

K

kill, occīdō; interficiō.
kind, kindly, benignus, -a, -um.
kind (=race), genus, generis, n.
kindness, beneficium, -ī, n.
king, rēx, rēgis, m.
kingdom, rēgnum, -ī, n.
know, sciō; not know, nesciō; ignōrō.
knowledge, scientia, -ae, f.
known, nōtus, -a, -um.

L

Labienus, Labiēnus, -ī, m.
labor, labor, -ōris, m.
lack, inopia, -ae, f.
land, terra, -ae, f.; (native) land, patria, -ae, f.
language, lingua, -ae, f.
large, magnus, -a, -um; amplus, -a, -um.
last: at last, dēnique.
late, tardus, -a, -um.
latter, hic, haec, hoc.
laugh, laugh at, rīdeō.
law, lēx, lēgis, f.

lawful: it is lawful, licet.
lead, dūcō; lead across, trādūcō; lead away, abdūcō; dēdūcō; lead back, redūcō; lead forward, prōdūcō; lead in, indūcō; lead out, ēdūcō; lead through, perdūcō; lead to, addūcō; lead together, condūcō.
leader, dux, ducis, m.; princeps, prīncipis, m.
learn, cognōscō; comperiō.
least: at least, certē.
leave, discēdō; leave behind, relinquō.
left (on the left), sinister, -tra, -trum.
legion, legiō, -ōnis, f.
letter (of alphabet), littera, -ae, f.; (epistle), epistula, -ae, f.
liberty, lībertās, -tātis, f.
lieutenant, lēgātus, -ī, m.
life, vīta, -ae, f.
light, lūx, lūcis, f.; (adj.), levis, -e.
like, amō.
like, similis, -e.
likewise, item.
line of battle, aciēs, aciēī, f.
lion, leō, leōnis, m.
little: by a little, paulō.
live, vīvō; live (in), incolō; habitō.
long, longus, -a, -um; no longer, nōn iam.
look at, spectō.
lose, āmittō; lose hope, dēspērō.
love (verb), amō; dīligō; (noun), amor, -ōris, m.
loyal, fīdus, -a, -um.

M

magistrate, magistrātus, -ūs, m.
make, faciō; efficiō.
man, vir, virī, m.; homō, -inis, m.
manner, modus, -ī, m.; ratiō, -ōnis, f.
many, multī, -ae, -a.
march, iter faciō.
master, dominus, -ī, m.
matter, rēs, reī, f.
meanwhile, interim.
memory, memoria, -ae, f.
mention, commemorō.
merchant, mercātor, -tōris, m.
messenger, nūntius, -ī, m.
Midas, Midās, -ae, m.
middle, middle (of), medius, -a, -um.
mile, mīlle passūs; pl., mīlia passuum.
military affairs, rēs mīlitāris, reī mīlitāris, f.; military service, war, mīlitia, -ae, f.
mind, mēns, mentis, f.
mine, my, meus, -a, -um.
money, pecūnia, -ae, f.
more, magis (adv.); plūs (noun); plūrēs, plūria.
moreover, autem (postpositive).
mother, māter, mātris, f.
mount, ascendō; cōnscendō.
mountain, mōns, montis, m.
move, moveō; move back, removeō.
much, multus, -a, -um; (adv.), multum.
multitude, multitūdō, -tūdinis, f.
my, mine, meus, -a, -um.

N

name (noun), nōmen, nōminis, n.; (verb), appellō.
nation, gēns, gentis, f.; nātiō, -ōnis, f.

nature, nātūra, -ae, f.
near, ad, prope, w. Acc.
nearly, ad, prope, circiter (adv.).
necessary, necesse (indecl.).
need, inopia, -ae, f.
neighbor, vīcīnus, -ī, m.
neighboring, propinquus, -a, -um.
neither, neuter, neutra, neutrum.
neither . . . nor, neque (nec) . . . neque (nec).
never, numquam.
nevertheless, tamen.
new, novus, -a, -um; recēns.
next, deinde.
night, nox, noctis, f.; at night, noctū (adv.); at midnight, mediā nocte; late at night, multā nocte; until late at night, ad multam noctem.
nine, novem.
nineteen, ūndēvīgintī.
ninth, nōnus, -a, -um.
no, nūllus, -a, -um; no longer, nōn iam; no one, nēmō, Dat. nēminī, m.; as answer, 31.
noble, nōbilis, -e.
nor, neque (nec); neither . . . nor, neque (nec) . . . neque (nec).
not, nōn; not even, nē . . . quidem; not only . . . but also, nōn modo . . . sed etiam.
nothing, nihil (indecl.).
now, nunc; iam.
number, numerus, -ī, m.; multitūdō, -tūdinis, f.

O

O that, utinam, w. Subj.
obey, pāreō.
obtain, obtineō.
occupy, occupō.
office, honor, -ōris, m.
often, saepe.
old, antīquus, -a, -um; vetus, Gen. veteris; vetustus, -a, -um; old age, senectūs, -tūtis, f.; old man, senex, senis, m.
older, maior nātū; oldest, maximus nātū.
on, in, w. Abl.; on account of; ob or propter, w. Acc., ē, ex, w. Abl.
once: at once, statim; once upon a time, ōlim.
one, ūnus, -a, -um; one at a time, singulī, -ae, -a.
only, sōlus, -a, -um; (adv.), modo; not only . . . but also, nōn modo . . . sed etiam.
open, apertus, -a, -um.
opinion, sententia, -ae, f.
oppose, obiciō; oppōnō.
oppress, premō.
or, aut; either . . . or, aut . . . aut.
orator, ōrātor, -ōris, m.
order (verb), iubeō; imperō; mandō; (noun), iussus, -ūs, m.; at my order, meō iussū; in order to, ut, w. Subj.
other, another, alius, -a, -ud; other, the other, the rest, cēterī, -ae, -a; reliquī, -ae, -a.
ought, dēbeō.
our, noster, nostra, nostrum.
out from, ē, ex, w. Abl.
over, super, w. Acc. and Abl.
overcome, superō.
owe, dēbeō.
own: his own, their own, suus, -a, -um.

P

pace, passus, -ūs, m.
pacify, pācō.

pain, dolor, -ōris, m.
palisade, vāllum, -ī, n.
pardon, ignōscō, w. Dat.
part, pars, partis, f.
patriotism, amor patriae.
pay the penalty, poenam dō.
peace, pāx, pācis, f.
penalty, poena, -ae, f.
people, populus, -ī, m.; gēns, gentis, f.
permit, permittō.
permitted: it is permitted, licet.
persuade, persuādeō, w. Dat.
Pharaoh, Pharaō, -ōnis, m.
picture, pictūra, -ae, f.
pierce, trāiciō.
pile up, exstruō.
pitch camp, castra pōnō.
place (verb), locō; pōnō; put in place, īnstituō; (noun), locus, -ī, m.
plain, plānitiēs, plānitiēī, f.
plan, cōnsilium, -ī, n.
please, dēlectō; it pleases, placet, w. Dat.
plow (noun), arātrum, -ī, n.; (verb), arō.
point out, dēmōnstrō.
Porsena, Porsena, -ae, m.
possession: take possession of, occupō.
possible: as quickly as possible, quam celerrimē; as soon as possible, quam prīmum.
powerful, potēns, -entis.
praise (verb), laudō; (noun), laus, laudis, f.
precede, antecēdō.
present, praesēns.
preserve, cōnservō.
prevent, prohibeō.
private, prīvātus, -a, -um.
proceed, prōcēdō.
promise, promittō.
propose, prōpōnō.
protect, servō.
provide, comparō.
province, prōvincia, -ae, f.
prudence, prūdentia, -ae, f.
prudent, prūdēns.
prudently, prūdenter.
public, pūblicus, -a, -um.
pull out, extrahō.
punish, pūniō; to be punished, poenam dăre.
punishment, supplicium, -ī, n.
pupil, discipulus, -ī, m.
purpose: for the purpose of, ad, w. Acc.; causā, w. Gen.
pursue closely, cōnsequor.
put, locō; pōnō; put against, oppōnō; put aside, put down, dēpōnō; put before, prōpōnō; put an end to, fīnem faciō; put on, impōnō; put to flight, in fugam dō.

Q

queen, rēgīna, -ae, f.
question, rogō.
quickly, celeriter; as quickly as possible, quam celerrimē.

R

race, nātiō, -ōnis, f.
rampart, vāllum, -ī, n.
rather, comp. of adj.; potius (adv.).
read, legō.
realize, sentiō.
rear guard, novissimum agmen.
receive, accipiō; recipiō.
recent, recēns, -entis.

relative, propinquus, -ī, m.; propinqua, -ae, f.
remain, maneō; permaneō; remaneō.
remarkable, singulāris, -e.
remind, admoneō.
remove, removeō.
Remus, Remus, -ī, m.
report, nūntiō.
repulse, repellō.
reputation, fāma, -ae, f.
resist, resistō.
resources, opēs, -um, f. pl.
respect, vereor.
rest, the rest of, reliquus, -a, -um; the rest, reliquī, -ae, -a; cēterī, -ae, -a.
resume, resūmō.
retain, retineō.
retreat, mē recipiō, etc.
return, recēdō.
revolt (verb), dēficiō.
reward, praemium, -ī, n.
Rhine, Rhēnus, -ī, m.
right: on the right, dexter, -tra, -trum.
right, iūs, iūris, n.
rise, orior.
river, flūmen, flūminis, n.
road, via, -ae, f.; iter, itineris, n.
Roman, Rōmānus, -a, -um.
Rome, Rōma, -ae, f.
Romulus, Rōmulus, -ī, m.
rose, rosa, -ae, f.
rule, regō.
run, currō.

S

Sabine, Sabīnus, -a, -um.
sacred, sacer, sacra, sacrum.
safe, incolumis, -e; tūtus, -a, -um; salvus, -a, -um.
safety, salūs, -ūtis, f.
sail, nāvigō.
sailor, nauta, -ae, m.
sake: for the sake of, causā, w. Gen. preceding.
same, īdem, eadem, idem.
satisfy, satis faciō.
save, servō; cōnservō.
say, dīcō; inquam, inquis, inquit (postpositive).
scarcely, vix.
school, schola, -ae, f.
scout, explōrātor, -tōris, m.
sea, mare, maris, n.
search for, conquīrō.
second, secundus, -a, -um.
see, videō; cōnspiciō; see through, perspiciō.
seek, petō; quaerō.
seem, videor.
seize, occupō; rapiō.
select, dēligō.
self, see suī, 186.
senate, senātus, -ūs, m.
senator, senātor, -ōris, m.
send, mittō; send across, trānsmittō; send ahead, praemittō; send away, āmittō; send back, remittō; send forward, prōmittō; send out, dīmittō; send to assistance of, submittō.
serious, gravis, -e.
seriously, graviter.
servant, servus, -ī, m.
serve, serviō.
set forth, expōnō; set free, līberō; set on fire, incendō.
settle, incolō; settle (in), sedeō.
seven, septem.
seventeen, septemdecim.
seventh, septimus, -a, -um.

several, complūrēs, -ia.
Sextius, Sextius, -ī, m.
sharp, ācer, ācris, ācre.
sharply, ācriter.
she, ea; haec; ista; illa; ipsa.
shepherd, pāstor, -ōris, m.
shield, scūtum, -ī, n.
ship, nāvis, nāvis, f.
shoe, calceus, -ī, m.; solea, -ae, f.
short, brevis, -e.
shout (verb), clāmō; (noun), clāmor, -ōris, m.
show, dēmōnstrō; ostendō.
shut, shut up, claudō.
Sicily, Sicilia, -ae, f.
sick, aeger, aegra, aegrum.
sight, cōnspectus, -ūs, m.
similar, similis, -e.
since, quoniam; cum.
sister, soror, sorōris, f.
sit, sedeō.
six, sex.
six hundred, sescentī, -ae, -a.
sixteen, sēdecim.
sixth, sextus, -a, -um.
size, magnitūdō, -tūdinis, f.
skilled, perītus, -a, -um, w. Gen.
slave, servus, -ī, m.; slaves (=household), familia, -ae, f.
slavery, servitūs, -tūtis, f.
sleep, dormiō.
small, parvus, -a, -um; exiguus, -a, -um.
snatch, rapiō; snatch away, ēripiō.
so, ita; tam; sīc; and so, itaque; so great, tantus, -a, -um; so many, tot.
soldier, mīles, mīlitis, m.
some, nōn nūllus, -a, -um (usually pl.); some one, aliquis; quīdam.
something, aliquid; quiddam.
son, fīlius, -ī, m.
soon, mox; as soon as possible, quam prīmum.
soul, anima, -ae, f.
space, spatium, -ī, n.
spare, parcō, w. Dat.
speak, dīcō.
speaker, ōrātor, -tōris, m.
speech, ōrātiō, -ōnis, f.
speed, celeritās, -tātis, f.
stand, stō.
standard, signum, -ī, n.
star, stella, -ae, f.
state, cīvitās, -tātis, f.; rēs pūblica, reī pūblicae, f.
statue, statua, -ae, f.
stir, excitō.
story, fābula, -ae, f.
strength, vīrēs, -ium, f. pl.
strengthen, firmō; cōnfirmō.
strong, firmus, -a, -um.
strongly, firmē.
successful, secundus, -a, -um.
such, tālis, -e.
suddenly, subitō.
suffer, labōrō.
suitable, idōneus, -a, -um.
summer, aestās, -tātis, f.
sun, sōl, sōlis, m.
suppliant, supplex, supplicis, m., f.
supplies, commeātus, -ūs, m.; supplies of grain, rēs frūmentāriae.
supply, cōpia, -ae, f.
surpass, superō.
surrender, dēdō; trādō.
surround (=put around), circumdō; (=come around), circumveniō.
sustain, sustineō.
swift, celer, celeris, celere.
swiftly, celeriter.

swiftness, celeritās, -tātis, f.
sword, gladius, -ī, m.

T

take, capiō; (=accept), excipiō; (=assume), sūmō; take back, recipiō; take care (of), cūrō; take one's place, cōnsistō; take possession of, occupō; (= capture by assault), expugnō.
teach, doceō.
teacher, magister, -trī, m.
tell, nārrō; dīcō.
temple, templum, -ī, n.
ten, decem.
tenth, decimus, -a, -um.
terms, condiciō, -ōnis, f.
terrify, terreō.
territory, fīnēs, -ium, m. pl.
than, quam.
thanks: give thanks, grātiās agō.
that, that (there), the former, ille, illa, illud; that (rel.), quī.
that, this, is, ea, id.
that (of yours), iste, ista, istud.
that, in order that, so that, ut; that . . . not, nē (purpose); ut . . . nōn (result).
their own, suus, -a, -um.
then, tum; (=next), deinde.
theory, ratiō, -ōnis, f.
there, ibi; from there, inde.
therefore, igitur; quārē; itaque.
they, eī, eae, ea; illī, illae, illa.
thing, rēs, reī, f.
think, putō; exīstimō.
third, tertius, -a, -um.
thirteen, trēdecim.
thirty, trīgintā.
this, is, ea, id.
this, this (here), hic, haec, hoc.
thither, eō.
thorn, stirps, stirpis, m.
thousand, mīlle; pl., thousands, mīlia or mīllia, -ium, n.
threaten, minor, w. Dat.
three, trēs, tria.
three hundred, trecentī, -ae, -a.
through, per, w. Acc.
throw, iaciō; throw across, trāiciō; throw against, obiciō, w. Dat.; throw away, abiciō; throw back, reiciō; throw down, dēiciō; throw forward, prōiciō; throw into, iniciō; throw out, ēiciō; throw to, adiciō.
thus, ita; sīc.
Tiber, Tiberis, -is, m.
time, tempus, temporis, n.; spatium, -ī, n.
to, ad, w. Acc.; also sign of Dat.
to-day, hodiē.
top of, summus, -a, -um.
touch, tangō.
tower, turris, turris, m.
town, oppidum, -ī, n.
traveler, viātor, -tōris, m.
treacherous, īnfīdus, -a, -um.
tree, arbor, arboris, f.
trial, iūdicium, -ī, n.
tribe, gēns, gentis, f.
troops, cōpiae, -ārum, f. pl.
true, vērus, -a, -um.
trust, crēdō; cōnfīdō, w. Dat.
truth, vēritās, -tātis, f.
twelfth, duodecimus, -a, -um.
twelve, duodecim.
twenty, vīgintī.
two, duo, duae, duo.
two hundred, ducentī, -ae, -a.

U

under, sub, w. Acc. and Abl.
understand, intellegō; perspiciō.
undertake, incipiō; suscipiō.
unexpectedly, imprōvīsō.
unfaithful, īnfīdus, -a, -um.
unfriendly, inimīcus, -a, -um.
unharmed, incolumis, -e; salvus, -a, -um.
unimpaired, integer, integra, integrum.
unjust, iniūstus, -a, -um; inīquus, -a, -um.
unjustly, iniūstē.
unless, nisi.
unlike, dissimilis, -e.
unskilled, imperītus, -a, -um, w. Gen.
unusual, ēgregius, -a, -um; singulāris, -e.
unwilling: be unwilling (Imperative) nōlī, nōlīte.
uphold, sustineō.
upon, super, w. Acc. and Abl.; upon, against, in, w. Acc.; upon, on, in, w. Abl.
use, ūtor.

V

Veneti, Venetī, -ōrum, m. pl.
victory, victōria, -ae, f.
virtue, virtūs, -tūtis, f
voice, vōx, vōcis, f.

W

wage (war), (bellum) gerō.
wait for, exspectō.
walk, ambulō.
wall, mūrus, -ī, m.
war, bellum, -ī, n.; mīlitia, -ae, f.
warn, moneō.
water, aqua, -ae, f.
way, via, -ae, f.; modus, -ī, m.
we, nōs, nostrum (nostrī).
wealth, fortūna, -ae, f.; (ops), opis, f.
weapon, tēlum, -ī, n.
welfare, salūs, salūtis, f.
well, bene (adv.).
well-known, nōtus, -a, -um.
what, quis, quae, quid (interrog.); quī, quae, quod (rel. pron.).
when, ubi; cum.
whence, unde (interrog. and rel. adv.).
where, ubi (interrog. and rel. adv.); quā.
whether, utrum; num; an; whether . . . or, utrum . . . an.
which, quī, quae, quod (rel. pron.); which (of two)? uter, utra, utrum.
while, dum; cum.
whither, quō (interrog. and rel. adv.).
who, quī (rel. pron.); who? quis (interrog. pron.).
whole, whole of, tōtus, -a, -um.
why? cūr.
wicked, malus, -a, -um.
wide, lātus, -a, -um.
wind, ventus, -ī, m.
wine, vīnum, -ī, n.
wing (of an army), cornū, -ūs, n.
winter, hiems, hiemis, f.
winter camp, hīberna, -ōrum, n.
wise, prūdēns.
wisely, prūdenter.
with, cum, w. Abl.; with, among, at the house of, apud, w. Acc.
withdraw, mē recipiō, etc.; recēdō.
within, Abl. of Time Within Which.
without, sine, w. Abl.

woman, fēmina, -ae, f.
wood (=forest), silva, -ae, f.
word, verbum, -ī, n.
work (verb), labōrō; (noun), labor, -ōris, m.
worse, peior, peius; (adv.), peius.
worst, pessimus, -a, -um.
worth, dīgnitās, -tātis, f.
worthy, dīgnus, -a, -um.
would that, utinam, or Subj.
wound (verb), vulnerō; (noun), vulnus, vulneris.
write, scrībō.
wrong, iniūria, -ae, f.

Y

year, annus, -ī, m.; a few years ago, paucīs ante annīs.
yes, sīc; ita; sānē; certē.
yet, tamen.
yield, cēdō; concēdō; submittō.
you, tū; pl., vōs.
younger, minor nātū.
your, tuus, -a, -um; pl., vester, vestra, vestrum.

Z

zeal, studium, -ī, n.

VOCABULARY

LATIN–ENGLISH

(Italic type is used in the definitions to indicate English words or parts of words related to or derived from the Latin; when inclosed in square brackets, the word is not properly a definition of the Latin word, but merely a related English word.)

A

ā, ab, prep. w. Abl., from, away from, on; agency, w. pass., by [*ab*sent].

abdō, -dere, -didī, -ditus (ab + dō), tr., put away, hide.

abdūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (ab + dūcō), tr., lead away [abduct].

abiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (ab + iaciō), tr., throw away, fling [abject].

absēns, -sentis (pres. part. of absum), absent.

absum, -esse, āfui, āfutūrus (ab + sum), intr., be away.

ac, see atque.

accēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessūrus (ad + cēdō), intr., go to, advance; come; w. ad and Acc. [accede].

accidit, -cidere, accidit, —— (ad + cadō, fall), impers., it happens [accident].

accipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (ad + capiō), tr., receive, accept.

accurrō, -currere, -currī, -cursum, (ad + currō), intr., run up to.

accūsō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., accuse, bring a charge against.

ācer, ācris, ācre, sharp, keen [*acr*imonious].

aciēs, aciēī, f., line of battle.

ācriter (adv. fr. ācer), sharply, fiercely.

ad, prep. w. Acc., to, at, near.

addō, -dere, -didī, -ditus (ad + dō), tr., add [addition].

addūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (ad + dūcō), tr., lead to, bring, influence.

adhibeō, -hibēre, -hibuī, -hibitus (ad + habeō), tr., apply, employ.

adiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (ad + iaciō), tr., throw to, add [adjective].

aditus, -ūs, m. (cf. ad + eō, go), a going to, approach.

admoneō, -monēre, -monuī, -monitus (ad + moneō), tr., remind [*admon*ish].

adpropinquō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum (cf. prope, propinquus), intr., draw near to, approach, w. Dat.

adripiō, -ripere, -ripuī, -reptus (ad + rapiō), tr., snatch, seize.

adsum, -esse, -fuī, -futūrus (ad + sum), intr., be near, be present.

adulēscēns, adulēscentis, m., youth [adolescent].

adventus, -ūs, m. (cf. ad + veniō), a coming to, arrival [advent].

aedificium, aedificī, n. (cf. aedificō), building [edifice].

aedificō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., build [edify].

Aeduī, -ōrum, m. pl., a tribe of central Gaul, allies of Rome.

aeger, aegra, aegrum, sick.

aegrē (adv. fr. aeger), ill, feebly, with difficulty.

aegritūdō, -inis, f. (cf. aeger), illness.

Aegyptius, -a, -um, Egyptian; as subst., Aegyptius, -ī, m.

Aegyptus, -ī, f., Egypt.

Aemiliānus, -ī, m., a name of the younger Scipio.

Aenēās, -ae, m., Trojan hero.

aequus, aequa, aequum, level, even, just, fair [*equ*al].

aestās, aestātis, f., summer.

aetās, aetātis, f., age.

Āfrica, -ae, f., the region about Carthage.

Āfricānus, -ī, m., a name given to the Scipios.

ager, agrī, m., field, farm, land [*agr*iculture].

agger, aggeris, n., earth wall, embankment, the agger.

agmen, agminis, n. (cf. agō), marching column (of an army); novissimum agmen, rear guard.

agō, agere, ēgī, āctus, tr., drive, do, act [*agent, act*ive].

agricola, -ae, m. (cf. ager + colō), farmer.

agricultūra, -ae, f. (cf. agricola), agriculture.

Alba Longa, -ae, f., a town near Rome.

Albānus, -ī, m., an Alban.

albus, -a, -um, white.

aliēnus, -a, -um (cf. alius), belonging to another [alien].

aliquis, aliquid, indef. pron., some one, something; aliquī (aliquis), aliqua, aliquod, indef. adj., some.

alius, alia, aliud, another, other.

Alpēs, -ium, f. pl., the Alps.

alter, altera, alterum, another, the other (of two), one [*alter*nate].

altitūdō, -inis, f. (cf. altus), height, depth [altitude].

altus, -a, -um, high, deep [ex*alt*].

amāns, amantis (pres. part. of amō), fond of, loving; amāns patriae, patriotic.

Ambiorīx, -rīgis, m., king of a Gallic tribe.

ambulō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, intr., walk [amble].

America, -ae, f., America.

Americānus, -a, -um, American.

amīcitia, -ae, f. (cf. amīcus), friendship.

amīcus, -a, -um (cf. amō), friendly; as subst., amīcus, -ī, m., friend [*amic*able].

āmittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (ā + mittō), tr., send away, lose [amiss].

amō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., love, like [*am*iable].

amor, amōris, m. (cf. amō), love.

amplus, -a, -um, large, distinguished [ample].

Amūlius, -ī, m., an early Alban king.

an, conj., or, introducing the second part of a double question; whether, introducing a single question.

ancilla, -ae, f., maidservant, slave.

Androclus, -ī, m., a slave.

Anglicus, -a, -um, English.

angustus, -a, -um, narrow.

animal, -ālis, n., animal.

animus, -ī, m., spirit, life, soul, mind, courage [*anim*ate]; in animō habēre, to intend.

annus, -ī, m., year [*annu*al].

ante, prep. w. Acc., before; also adv. [*ante*date].

anteā, adv., before.

antecēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, ——, tr. and intr., go before, precede [antecedent].

apertus, -a, -um (perf. part. of aperiō, open), opened, open, uncovered [*apert*ure].

appellō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., name, call [*appellat*ion].

appetēns, appetentis (cf. ad + petō), desirous (of), eager for, w. Gen. [*appet*ite].

apud, prep. w. Acc., among, near, at, with, at the home of.

aqua, -ae, f., water [*aquat*ic].

aquila, -ae, f., eagle, the eagle (standard of a Roman legion).

Aquītānī, -ōrum, m. pl., a tribe in southwestern Gaul.

arātrum, -ī, n. (cf. arō), plow.

arbor, arboris, f., tree [Arbor Day].

Ariovistus, -ī, m., a chief of the Suebi.

arma, armōrum, n. pl., arms [*arm*or].

armō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., arm, equip [dis*arm*].

arō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., plow [*ara*ble].

Arvernī, -ōrum, m. pl., a tribe of central Gaul.

Ascanius, -ī, m., son of Aeneas.

ascendō, -scendere, -scendī, -scēnsus (ad + scandō, climb), tr., climb, ascend; w. in and Acc.

asper, aspera, asperum, rugged, rough; harsh [ex*asper*ate].

aspiciō, -spicere, aspexī, aspectus (ad + speciō, look at), tr., see, behold [aspect].

Athēnae, -ārum, f. pl., Athens.

Athēnodōrus, -ī, m., a Greek philosopher.

atque, ac, conj., and also.

ātrium, -ī, n., hall, atrium.

attingō, -tingere, attigī, attāctus (ad + tangō, touch), tr., touch, reach [attain].

attribuō, -tribuere, attribuī, attribūtus (ad + tribuō), tr., assign [attribute].

auctōritās, auctōritātis, f., influence, authority.

audācter (adv. fr. audāx), boldly.

audāx, audācis (cf. audeō), bold, daring [*audac*ious].

audeō, -ēre, ausus sum, semi-deponent, tr., dare, venture.

audiō, -īre, audīvī, audītus, tr., hear, listen to [*aud*ible].

augeō, -ēre, auxī, auctus, tr., increase [*aug*ment].

aureus, -a, -um (cf. aurum, gold), of gold, golden.

aut, conj., or; aut . . . aut, either . . . or.

autem, conj. (postpositive), moreover, on the other hand, however.

autumnus, -ī, m., autumn.

auxilium, auxīlī, n., aid, help [auxiliary].

avārus, -a, -um, miserly, greedy, w. Gen. [*avar*ice].

avārus, -ī, m., miser [*avar*icious].

āvertō, -vertere, -vertī, -versus (ā + vertō, turn), tr., turn away [avert].

avidus, -a, -um, eager (for), covetous, greedy, w. Gen. [avidity].

avis, avis, f., bird [aviary, aviation].

āvocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ā + vocō), tr., call away [avocation].

B

Bacchus, -ī, m., Bacchus.

barba, -ae, f., beard.

barbarus, -a, -um, foreign, barbarous; as subst., barbarus, -ī, m., barbarian.

beātus, -a, -um, happy, blessed.

Belgae, -ārum, m. pl., a people of northeastern Gaul [Belgium].

bellō, -āre, -āvī, -atum (cf. bellum), intr., wage war [rebel].

bellum, -ī, n., war [belligerent]; bellum gerere, to wage war.

bene (adv. fr. bonus), well [benefactor].

bene faciō, -ere, fēcī, factum, intr., benefit.

beneficium, beneficī, n. (cf. bene + faciō), kindness [beneficial].

benignē (adv. fr. benignus), kindly.

benignus, -a, -um, kind [benign].

bonus, -a, -um, good [bonus].

brevis, -e, short, brief [brevity].

Britannia, -ae, f., Britain.

C

caecitās, caecitātis, f. (cf. caecus, blind), blindness.

caelum, -ī, n., sky [celestial].

Caesar, Caesaris, m., Caesar, a Roman family name; Gaius Iulius Caesar (102–44 B.C.), a famous general, statesman, and author.

calamitās, calamitātis, f., defeat, misfortune [calamity].

calceus, -ī, m., shoe.

capiō, -ere, cēpī, captus, tr., take [capture].

caput, capitis, n., head [capital, capitol].

careō, -ēre, caruī, caritūrus, intr., w. Abl., lack, be without [caret].

Carthāginiēnsis, -e (cf. Carthāgō), Carthaginian.

Carthāgō, Carthāginis, f., Carthage, a large city on the northern coast of Africa.

castra, -ōrum, n. pl., camp [Chester, Dorchester, sites of Roman camps]; castra pōnere, to pitch camp.

Catilīna, -ae, m., enemy of Cicero and a conspirator.

causa, -ae, f., cause; causā, used after a limiting Genitive, for the sake of, for the purpose of.

cēdō, -ere, cessī, cessūrus, intr., go; yield [cede, concede].

celer, celeris, celere, swift [accelerate].

celeritās, celeritātis, f. (cf. celer), speed, swiftness [celerity].

celeriter (adv. fr. celer), swiftly, quickly.

Celtae, -ārum, m. pl., the people of central Gaul.

cēnsor, cēnsōris, m., the title of a Roman magistrate [censor].

centum (Sign = C), indecl. adj., a hundred [per cent].

centuriō, -ōnis, m. (cf. centum),

centurion, commander of a hundred men (a *cent*ury).

certē (adv. fr. certus), *cert*ainly, surely, at least.

certus, -a, -um, fixed, *cert*ain, sure.

cēterī, -ae, -a, other, the other, the rest [etc.].

cibus, cibī, m., food.

Cicerō, Cicerōnis, m., Cicero, a Roman family name; Marcus Tullius Cicero (106–43 B.C.), Rome's most distinguished orator and man of letters.

Cīneās, Cīneae, m., envoy of Pyrrhus.

circiter (cf. circum), adv. and prep. w. Acc., nearly, about.

circum, prep. w. Acc., around, about; also adv. [*circum*ference].

circumdō, -dăre, -dedī, -dătus (circum + dō), tr., put around, surround.

circumveniō, -venīre, -vēnī, -ventus (circum + veniō), tr., come around, surround [circumvent].

Circus Maximus, Circī Maximī, m., a great circus or race course in Rome.

cīvis, cīvis, m. or f., citizen [civil, civic].

cīvitās, cīvitātis, f. (cf. cīvis), citizenship, state [city].

clāmō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., shout [ac*claim*].

clāmor, clāmōris, m. (cf. clāmō), shout [clamor].

clārus, -a, -um, clear, brilliant; famous [*clar*ion].

claudō, -ere, clausī, clausus, tr., close, confine [cloister].

coepī, coepisse, coeptus, def., began.

cognōscō, -ere, cognōvī, cognitus (con + [g]nōscō, know), tr., learn, ascertain, re*cogn*ize.

cōgō, -ere, coēgī, coāctus (con + agō), tr., drive together, collect, compel [cogent].

cohors, cohortis, f., cohort.

cohortor, -ārī, -ātus sum (con + hortor), tr., encourage earnestly [ex*hort*].

colligō, -ligere, collēgī, collēctus (con + legō, gather), tr., gather (together), collect.

collis, collis, m., hill.

colloquium, colloquī, n. (cf. colloquor), a talking together, conference [colloquy].

colloquor, -loquī, collocūtus sum (con + loquor), intr., talk with, converse; w. cum and Abl. [*colloqu*ial].

colō, -ere, coluī, cultus, tr., cultivate, inhabit, dwell in; cherish, tend, worship [*cult*ure].

comes, comitis, m., comrade, companion [cf. count].

commeātus, -ūs, m., supplies.

commemorō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + memorō, mention), tr., mention [commemorate].

commendō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + mandō), tr., intrust [commend].

commercium, -ī, n. (con + merx, goods), trade, commerce.

committō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (con + mittō), tr., commit, intrust; proelium committere, to begin battle.

commodus, -a, -um, fitting, agreeable [*commod*ity].

commoveō, -movēre, -mōvī, -mōtus (con + moveō), tr., alarm, excite; move, affect [commotion].

commūnis, -e, common [community].

comparō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + parō) tr., get together, provide, get [compare].

compellō, -pellere, -pulī, -pulsus (con + pellō), tr., drive together, force, drive [compel].

comperiō, -īre, comperī, compertus (cf. reperiō), tr., find out, learn.

compleō, -plēre, -plēvī, -plētus, (con + pleō, fill), tr., fill [complete].

complūrēs, complūra or complūria (con + plūrēs), pl., several, many.

comportō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + portō), tr., carry or bring together [comport].

con-, see cum.

concēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessus (con + cēdō), tr., yield, give up [concede, concession].

concilium, concĭlī, n., meeting, council.

concitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + citō, arouse), tr., arouse, excite.

conclāmō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + clāmō), tr. and intr., shout.

concurrō, -currere, -cucurrī or -currī, -cursum (con + currō), intr., run together, rush [concurrent].

condĭciō, condĭciōnis, f. (cf. con + dīcō), condition, terms.

condūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (con + dūcō), tr., lead together, bring together [conduct].

cōnficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (con + faciō), tr., finish, exhaust [confectionery].

cōnfidō, -fīdere, -fīsus sum (con + fīdō, trust), semi-deponent, intr., trust, w. Dat. [confide].

cōnfirmō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + firmō, strengthen), tr., strengthen, encourage, affirm, establish [confirm].

coniciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (con + iaciō), tr., hurl, turn [conjecture].

conlocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + locō), tr., place together, establish [collocation].

cōnor, -ārī, -ātus sum, tr., attempt, try, usually w. inf. [conative].

cōnscendō, -scendere, -scendī, -scēnsus (con + scandō, climb), tr., mount, ascend.

cōnscrībō, -scrībere, -scrīpsī, -scrīptus (con + scrībō), tr., enroll [conscription].

cōnsequor, -sequī, -secūtus sum (con + sequor), tr., follow closely, overtake, reach, attain [consequence].

cōnservō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + servō), tr., save fully, preserve [conservation].

cōnsīdō, -sīdere, -sēdī, -sessum (con + sīdō, seat), intr., halt, encamp.

cōnsilium, consĭlī, n., advice, plan, purpose, design [counsel, counselor].

cōnsistō, -sistere, cōnstitī, —— (con + sistō, place), intr., take one's place, stop [consistent].

cōnsōlātiō, cōnsōlātiōnis, f. (cf. cōnsōlor, comfort), condolence [consolation].

cōnspectus, -ūs, m. (cf. cōnspiciō), sight, view.

cōnspiciō, -spicere, -spexī, -spectus (con + speciō, look at), tr., catch sight of, see [conspicuous].

cōnstituō, -stituere, -stituī, -stitūtus (con + statuō, place), tr., set up, station, decide [constitution].

cōnsuēscō, -suēscere, -suēvī, -suētus (con + suēscō, be accustomed), tr., accustom; intr., become accustomed, w. inf.

cōnsuētūdō, cōnsuētūdinis, f. (cf. cōnsuēscō), custom, habit.

cōnsul, cōnsulis, m., consul. The two chief magistrates at Rome were called consuls.

cōnsulō, -ere, cōnsuluī, cōnsultus, tr., consult.

cōnsūmō, -sūmere, -sūmpsī, -sūmptus (con + sūmō), tr., use up, devour, destroy; passive, spend [consume].

contendō, -tendere, -tendī, -tentum (con + tendō, stretch), intr., struggle; hasten [contend, contention].

continenter (continēō), adv., constantly, continually.

contineō, -tinēre, -tinuī, -tentus (con + teneō), tr., hold together, contain, confine [continent].

contrā, prep. w. Acc., against; also adv., on the contrary.

conveniō, -venīre, -vēnī, -ventum (con + veniō), intr., come together, meet, convene.

conventus, -ūs, m. (cf. conveniō), a coming together, meeting [convent].

convocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (con + vocō), tr., call together, summon [convoke].

cōpia, -ae, f., supply; pl., forces [copious].

cor, cordis, n., heart [cordial].

Cornēlia, -ae, f., a proper name.

cornū, -ūs, n., horn; wing (of an army) [cornucopia].

corpus, corpŏris, n., body [corporal, corpse].

crēber, crēbra, crēbrum, frequent, thick.

crēdō, -ere, crēdidī, crēditus, tr., loan, intrust; intr., believe, trust, w. Dat. [credible, credit].

creō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., make [create].

crūdēlis, -e (crūdus, raw), cruel.

culpa, -ae, f., blame, fault [culprit].

culpō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. culpa), tr., blame [culpable].

cum, prep. w. Abl., with; in composition, com-, con-, co-.

cum, conj., when, since, although. See Ch. LIX.

cupiditās, cupiditātis, f. (cf. cupidus), desire, greed [cupidity].

cupidus, -a, -um (cf. cupiō), desirous, eager, w. Gen.

cupiō, -ere, cupīvī, cupītus, tr., desire.

cūr, interrog. adv., why?

cūra, -ae, f., care, attention [sine*cure*].

cūrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., take care, care for [*curat*or].

currō, -ere, cucurrī, cursum, intr., run [current].

custōdia, -ae, f. (cf. custos), guard, guarding [custody].

custōs, custōdis, m., guard, guardsman, watchman [*custod*ian].

D

dē, prep. w. Abl., down from; of, concerning [*de*scend].

dea, -ae, f. (cf. deus), goddess.

dēbeō, -ēre, dēbuī, dēbitus (dē + habeō), tr., owe, ought [debt].

decem, indecl., ten [*Decem*ber].

decimus, -a, -um (cf. decem), tenth [*decim*al].

dēcurrō, -currere, -cucurrī or -currī, -cursum (dē + currō), intr., run down, move, maneuver.

dēdicō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (dē + dicō, dedicate), tr., dedicate.

dēdō, -ere, dēdidī, dēditus (dē + dō), tr., give up, surrender.

dēdūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (dē + dūcō), tr., bring down, lead down [deduce].

dēfendō, -fendere, -fendī, -fēnsus, tr., defend [defense].

dēficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (dē + faciō), tr., fail; revolt, rebel [deficient].

dēformis, -e (dē + forma, form), ugly, stunted [*deform*ed].

dēiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (dē + iaciō), tr., throw down, deprive [*deject*ed].

deinde (dē + inde), adv., then, next.

dēlectō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., delight, please [*delect*able].

dēleō, -ēre, dēlēvī, dēlētus, tr., destroy [delete].

dēligō, -ligere, -lēgi, -lēctus (dē + legō, choose), tr., select, choose.

dēmōnstrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (dē + mōnstrō, show), tr., point out, show [*demonstrat*ion].

dēnsus, -a, -um, thick, dense.

dēpōnō, -pōnere, -posuī, -positus (dē + pōnō), tr., put down, put aside [depose].

dēscendō, -scendere, -scendī, -scēnsum (dē + scandō, climb), intr., climb down, go down, descend.

dēsiliō, -silīre, -siluī, -sultum (dē + saliō, leap), intr., leap down.

dēsistō, -sistere, -stitī, -stitūrus (dē + sistō, place), intr., desist (from), cease (from).

dēspērō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (dē + spērō), tr. and intr., lose hope, despair (of).

dēspiciō, -spicere, -spexī, -spectus (dē + speciō, look at), tr., look down on, despise [*despic*able].

dēsum, -esse, dēfuī, dēfutūrus (dē + sum), intr., be lacking.

dēterreō, -terrēre, -terruī, -territus (dē + terreō), tr., frighten off, hinder [deter].

deus, deī, m., a god, God [*de*ify].

dexter, dextra, dextrum, right (on the right) [*dexter*ous].

dī, Nom. pl. of deus.

dīcō, -ere, dīxī, dictus, tr., say, speak, tell [pre*dict*].

diēs, diēī, m. (rarely f. in sing.), day [*di*ary].

difficilis, -e (dis + facilis), difficult.

difficultās, difficultātis, f. (cf. difficilis), difficulty.

dignitās, dignitātis, f. (cf. dignus), worth, position, dignity.

dignus, -a, -um, worthy [*dign*ify].

diligēns, diligentis (pres. part. of dīligō), painstaking, careful [diligent].

dīligenter (adv. fr. dīligēns), with care [*diligent*ly].

dīligentia, -ae, f., painstaking, care, diligence.

dīligō, -ligere, -lēxī, -lēctus (dis + legō, choose), tr., love, esteem [pre*dilect*ion].

dīmicō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, intr., fight.

dīmittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (dis + mittō), tr., send away, dismiss.

dis-, inseparable prefix, apart, not [*dis*please].

discēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessūrus (dis + cēdō), intr., go away, depart.

discipulus, -ī, m., pupil [disciple].

displicet, displicēre, displicuit (dis + placeō), impers., it displeases, w. Dat.

disputō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (dis + putō), tr., or with dē and Abl., argue, discuss, dispute.

dissimilis, -e (dis + similis), unlike [*dissimil*ar].

distribuō, -tribuere, -tribuī, -tribūtus (dis + tribuō), tr., distribute.

dīves, dīvitis, rich.

dīvidō, -ere, dīvīsī, dīvīsus, tr., divide [*divis*ion].

dīvitiae, -ārum, f. pl. (cf. dīves), wealth.

dō, dăre, dedī, dătus, tr., give, render [data].

doceō, -ēre, docuī, doctus, tr., teach, show [*doc*ile].

doleō, -ēre, doluī, dolitūrus, intr., feel pain, be sorrowful; tr., grieve over [con*dole*, *dole*ful].

dolor, dolōris, m. (cf. doleō), pain, grief [*dolor*ous].

domicilium, -ī, n. (cf. domus), home [domicile].

domina, -ae, f. (cf. dominus), mistress, lady.

dominus, -ī, m. (cf. domus), master, head of a house, Lord [*domin*ate].

domus, -ūs, f., home, house [dome].

dōnum, -ī, n., gift [*don*ation].

dormiō, -īre, dormīvī, dormītum, intr., sleep [*dormit*ory].

dubitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum (cf. dubius), intr., doubt, hesitate.

dubius, -a, -um, doubtful [dubious].

dūcō, -ere, dūxī, ductus, tr., lead [con*duct*].

dum, conj., while, as long as; until.

duo, duae, duo, two [*du*et].

duodecim, indecl., twelve.

duodecimus, -a, -um, twelfth.
duodēvīcēnsimus, -a, -um, eighteenth.
duodēvīgintī, indecl., eighteen.
dux, ducis, m. (cf. dūcō), leader, general.

E

ē, ex, prep. w. Abl., out from [*ex*tract].
ēdūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (ē + dūcō), tr., lead out [educe].
efficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (ex + faciō), tr., bring about, accomplish [efficient].
ego, meī, pers. pron., I [*ego*tistical].
ēgregius, -a, -um (cf. ē + grex), excellent, eminent, unusual [*egregi*ous].
ēiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (ē + iaciō), tr., throw out [eject].
elephantus, -ī, m., elephant.
Elisabētha, -ae, f., Elizabeth.
ēmigrō, -āre, -āvī, ——, intr., move, emigrate.
emō, emere, ēmī, emptus, tr., take, buy [preëmpt].
enim, conj. (postpositive), for.
Ennius, -ī, m., an early Roman poet.
ēnūntiō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, (ē + nūntiō) tr., announce [enunciate].
eō, adv., thither, there.
Ēpīrus, -ī, m., a region in western Greece.
epistula, -ae, f., letter [epistle].
eques, equitis, m. (cf. equus), horseman; pl., cavalry.
equester, equestris, equestre (cf. eques), of cavalry [equestrian].
equitātus, -ūs (cf. eques), m., cavalry.
equus, equī, m., horse.
ēripiō, -ripere, -ripuī, -reptus (ē + rapiō), tr., snatch away.
errō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, intr., wander about, stray [errant].
et, conj., and, also, even (etc.); et . . . et, both . . . and.
etiam, conj., even, also, indeed.
ēvocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ē + vocō), tr., call out [evoke].
ex, see ē.
excēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessūrus (ex + cēdō), tr., go out, depart [exceed, excessive]; ē vītā excēdere, to die.
excipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (ex + capiō), tr., take, accept [except].
excitō, -āre, -āvī, -tātus (ex + citō, arouse), tr., stir, stir up [excite].
exclāmō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ex + clāmō), tr., cry aloud, exclaim.
exclūdō, -clūdere, -clūsī, -clūsus (ex + claudō, shut), tr., shut out, cut off [exclude, exclusive].
exemplum, -ī, n., example, precedent [exemplary].
exercitus, -ūs, m., army.
exiguus, -a, -um, small.
exīstimō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ex + aestimō, consider), tr., think, consider [estimate].
exitus, -ūs, m. (cf. exeō, go out), a going forth, outcome, departure; way out, outlet [exit].
expellō, -pellere, -pulī, -pulsus, (ex + pellō), tr., drive out, expel [expulsion].

experior, experīrī, expertus, tr., try out, test [expert].
explōrātor, -ōris, m. (cf. explōrō), scout.
explōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., investigate, explore.
expōnō, -pōnere, -posuī, -positus (ex + pōnō), tr., set forth, explain [expose].
expugnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ex + pugnō), tr., capture by assault.
exspectō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ex + spectō), tr., await, wait, expect.
exstruō, -struere, -strūxī, -strūctus (ex + struō, pile up), tr., pile up, erect [cf. con*struct*].

F

Fabius, Fabī, m., Fabius, a Roman family name.
fābula, -ae, f., story [fable, fabulous].
facile (adv. fr. facilis), easily.
facilis, facile (cf. faciō), easy [facile].
faciō, -ere, fēcī, factus, tr., do, make [factory]; certiōrem facere, to inform.
factum, -ī, n. (perf. part. of faciō), deed, act, thing done [fact].
falsus, -a, -um (cf. fallō, deceive), false.
fāma, -ae, f., reputation, report [famous].
familia, -ae, f., household, slaves [family].
familiāris, -e (cf. familia), of the household, intimate [familiar].
fēmina, -ae, f., woman [feminine].
fera, -ae, f., wild beast.
fidēs, fideī, f. (cf. fīdō, trust), good faith, protection [bona fide].
fīdus, -a, -um, faithful, loyal [fidelity].
fīlia, -ae, f., daughter [filial].
fīlius, fīlī, m., son [filial].
fīnis, fīnis, m., end; pl., boundaries, territory [final].
fīnitimus, -a, -um (cf. fīnis), neighboring.
firmē, adv., firmly.
firmus, -a, -um, strong [firm].
flō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, intr., blow [in*flate*].
fluctus, -ūs, m., wave, billow [fluctuate].
flūmen, flūminis, n., river [flume].
focus, -ī, m., fireplace, hearth.
fortis, -e, brave [fort].
fortiter (adv. fr. fortis), bravely.
fortitūdō, -inis, f. (cf. fortis), bravery, courage [fortitude].
fortūna, -ae, f., fortune, wealth.
forum, -ī, n., market place, forum.
fossa, -ae, f. (cf. fodiō, dig), ditch [fosse]; fossam perdūcere, to dig a ditch.
frāter, frātris, m., brother [fraternal].
frūmentum, -ī, n. (cf. fruor), grain.
fruor, fruī, frūctus sum, intr., enjoy, w. Abl. [fruit].
frūstrā, adv., in vain [frustrate].
fuga, -ae, f., flight [re*fuge*]; in fugam dare, to put to flight.
fugiō, -ere, fūgī, fugitūrus, intr., flee [fugitive].

G

Gāius, -ī, m., a Roman name.

Gallia, -ae, f., Gaul, comprising modern France, Belgium, Holland, and the western parts of Switzerland.

Gallicus, -a, -um, Gallic.

Gallus, -a, -um, of Gaul, Gallic.

Gallus, -ī, m., a Gaul (inhabitant of Gallia).

gēns, gentis, f., tribe, people, nation [*gent*le].

genus, generis, n., race, kind [genus].

geōgraphicus, -a, -um, geographical.

Germānia, -ae, f., Germany.

Germānus, -ī, m., a German.

gerō, -ere, gessī, gestus, tr., carry, wear, accomplish [*belli*gerent]; bellum gerere, to wage war.

gladius, gladī, m., sword [*gladia*tor].

Graecia, -ae, f., Greece.

Graecus, -a, -um, Greek; as subst., Graecus, -ī, m., a Greek.

grātia, -ae, f., influence, favor; pl., thanks [*grace, grati*tude]; grātiās agere, to give thanks.

gravis, -e, heavy, serious [grave].

graviter (adv. fr. gravis), heavily, weightily, seriously, deeply.

grex, gregis, m., flock, herd [*congrega*te].

H

habeō, -ēre, habuī, habitus, tr., hold, have, keep [ex*hibit*].

habitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., in*habit; tr. and intr.*, live (in), dwell (in) [in*habitant*].

haedus, -ī, m., kid, goat.

Hannibal, Hannĭbalis, m., Hannibal, a famous general of the Carthaginians, who waged war against the Romans from 218–202 B.C.

Helvētiī, -ōrum, m. pl., a Gallic tribe in the Roman Province.

hīberna, -ōrum, n. pl., winter quarters [*hibern*ate].

hic, haec, hoc, dem. pron., this, this . . . here, the latter; he, she, it.

hīc (adv. fr. hic), here.

hiemō, -āre, -āvī, -ātūrus (cf. hiems), intr., pass the winter.

hiems, hiemis, f., winter.

Hispānia, -ae, f., Spain.

hŏdiē, adv. (hōc diē), to-day.

homō, hominis, m., f., human being, man [*homi*cide].

honor, -ōris, m., office [honor].

hōra, -ae, f., hour.

hortor, -ārī, -ātus sum, tr., urge, ex*hort.*

hortus, -ī, m., garden [*horti*culture].

hostis, -is, m., enemy (of the state) [*host*ile].

hūc (adv. fr. hic), hither.

I

iaceō, -ēre, iacuī, ——, intr., lie, lie down, lie dead [ad*jacent*].

iaciō, -ere, iēcī, iactus, tr., throw, hurl [*eja*culate].

iam, adv., by this time, already; nōn iam, no longer.

Iāniculum, -ī, n., the Janiculum, a hill across the Tiber from Rome.

ibi (adv. fr. is), there.

īdem, eadem, idem, dem. pron., the same [*iden*tify].

idōneus, -a, -um, suitable, fit.

igitur, adv., therefore.

ignis, ignis, m., fire [*ign*ite].

ignōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., not to know, be ignorant of [ignore].

ignōscō, -ere, ignōvī, ignōtus (in (neg.) + [g]nōscō, know), intr., pardon, w. Dat. [*igno*ble].

ille, illa, illud, dem. pron., that, that . . . there, the former; he, she, it.

imāgō, imāginis, f., image, likeness, ghost [imagine].

immānis, -e, great, huge, large.

immortālis, -e (in (neg.) + mortālis, mortal), without death, immortal [immortality].

impedīmentum, -ī, n. (cf. impediō), hindrance; pl., baggage [impediment].

impediō, -īre, impedīvī, impedītus, tr., hinder, impede.

impellō, -pellere, -pulī, -pulsus (in + pellō), tr., drive on, incite [impel].

imperātor, -tōris, m. (cf. imperō), commander, general [emperor].

imperītus, -a, -um (in (neg.) + perītus), unskilled, inexperienced, w. Gen.

imperium, impérī, n. (cf. imperō), command, power [empire, imperial].

imperō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, (in + parō), tr. and intr., command, order, w. Dat. of person [imperative].

impetrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., get (by request), secure permission, gain.

impetus, -ūs, m. (cf. in + petō), attack [impetuous].

implōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (in + plōrō, cry out), tr., beg earnestly, implore.

impōnō, -pōnere, -posuī, -positus (in + pōnō), tr., put on, impose.

importō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (in + portō), tr., bring in, import.

improvīsō, adv. (cf. in (neg.) + prōvīsus, foreseen), unexpectedly [improvident].

impudēns, impudentis, impudent.

impudīcus, -a, -um, shameless.

in, prep. w. Acc. and Abl.; w. Acc., into, against, upon; w. Abl., in, on, upon.

incendium, incendī, n. (cf. incendō), burning, fire, conflagration [incendiary].

incendō, -cendere, -cendī, -cēnsus (in + candeō, glow), tr., set on fire, light [incense].

incipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (in + capiō), tr., begin, undertake [incipient].

incitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (in + citō, rouse), tr., incite.

incola, -ae, m. and f. (cf. incolō), inhabitant [colony].

incolō, -ere, incoluī, ——, tr., inhabit; live in; intr., dwell, live.

incolumis, -e, unharmed, safe.

inde, adv., from there, thence.

indīcō, -dīcere, -dīxī, -dictus (in + dīcō), tr., declare [indite].

indīgnus, -a, -um (in (neg.) + dīgnus), unworthy.

indūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (in + dūcō), tr., lead in [induce].

īnfīdus, -a, -um (in + fīdus), disloyal, unfaithful, false.

īnfrā, prep. w. Acc., beneath, inferior to.

ingēns, ingentis, great, enormous.

iniciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (in + iaciō), tr., throw into, inspire, cast on [inject].

inimīcitia, -ae, f. (cf. inimīcus), enmity.

inimīcus, -a, -um (in (neg.) + amīcus), unfriendly, hostile; as subst., enemy [inimical].

inīquitās, -tātis, f. (cf. inīquus), unevenness, difficulty [iniquity].

inīquus, -a, -um (in (neg.) + aequus), uneven, unfavorable, unfair.

iniūria, -ae, f. (cf. in (neg.) + iūs), wrong [injury].

iniūstus, -a, -um (in (neg.) + iūstus), un*just*.

inopia, -ae, f., need, lack.

inquam, inquis, inquit, def., say, says, said (postpositive).

īnscrīptiō, īnscrīptiōnis, f. (cf. inscrībō, write upon), inscription.

īnsequor, -sequī, -secūtus sum (in + sequor), tr., pursue.

īnstituō, -stituere, -stituī, -stitūtus (in + statuō, place), tr., establish, undertake, begin, put in place [institute].

īnstitūtum, -ī, n. (perf. pass. part. of īnstituō), custom, institution.

īnstruō, -struere, -strūxī, -strūctus (in + struō, pile up), tr., arrange [instruct]; aciem īnstruere, to draw up a line of battle.

īnsula, -ae, f., island [pen*insula*].

integer, integra, integrum, whole, unimpaired [integer].

intellegō, -legere, intellēxī, intellēctus (inter + legō), tr., understand [intelligent, intellect].

inter, prep. w. Acc., between, among [*inter*rupt].

intercipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (inter + capiō), tr., intercept, cut off.

interclūdō, -clūdere, -clūsī, -clūsus (inter + claudō), tr., shut off, cut off, stop.

interficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (inter + faciō), tr., kill.

interim, adv., meanwhile.

intermittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (inter + mittō), tr., interrupt, discontinue, neglect [intermittent].

interrogō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (inter + rogō), tr., ask, question [interrogate].

intrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., enter.

inveniō, -venīre, -vēnī, -ventus, (in + veniō), tr., come upon, find [invent].

invideō, -vidēre, -vīdī, -vīsus (in + videō), intr., w. Dat., envy [*invid*ious].

invītō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., invite.

iocōsus, -a, -um, full of jesting, droll, jocose.

ipse, ipsa, ipsum, intensive and dem. pron., self, the very.

īra, -ae, f., wrath, anger [ire].

is, ea, id, dem. pron., this, that; he, she, it.

iste, ista, istud, dem. pron., that of yours.
ita (adv. fr. is), so.
Italia, -ae, f., Italy.
itaque, conj., and so, therefore.
item, adv., likewise [item].
iter, itineris, n., journey, route [itinerary].
iubeō, -ēre, iussī, iussus, tr., order.
iūdex, iūdicis, m. (cf. iūs + dīcō), judge, juror [judicial].
iūdicium, iūdicī, n. (cf. iūs + dīcō), trial, judgment, court [judiciary].
iūdicō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. iūdex) tr., judge, consider.
Iūra, -ae, m., the Jura mountains, in eastern Gaul.
iūs, iūris, n., law, right, justice.
iūs iūrandum, iūris iūrandī, n., oath [*juris*prudence].
iussus, -ūs, m. (cf. iubeō), order, command; meō iussū, at my order.
iūstitia, -ae, f. (cf. iūstus), justice.
iūstus, -a, -um, just.

L

Labiēnus, -ī, m., one of Caesar's lieutenants.
labor, -ōris, m., work, trouble [*labor*ious].
labōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum (cf. labor), intr., labor, work, suffer [*elaborate, laborat*ory].
lac, lactis, m., milk [*lact*eal].
lacrima, -ae, f., tear.
laetus, -a, -um, pleased, happy.
Latīnus, -a, -um, Latin.
lātus, -a, -um, wide [*lat*itude].
laudō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. laus), tr., praise [*laud*able].
laus, laudis, f., praise.
lavō, -āre, lāvī, lautus, tr., wash, bathe.
lēgātus, -ī, m., envoy; of the army, lieutenant [legate].
legiō, -ōnis, f. (cf. legō), legion, regiment.
legō, -ere, lēgī, lēctus, tr., pick, gather, read [legible].
lēniō, -īre, lēnīvī, lēnītus (cf. lēnis, mild), tr., assuage, soothe [lenient].
leō, leōnis, m., lion.
levis, -e, light (in weight) [levity].
lēx, lēgis, f., law [legal].
līber, -a, -um, free [*liber*al].
liber, librī, m., book [library].
līberē (adv. fr. līber), freely.
līberī, līberōrum, m. pl. (cf. līber), children.
līberō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. līber), tr., set free [liberate].
lībertās, lībertātis, f. (cf. līber), freedom, liberty.
licet, licēre, licuit, licitum est, impers., it is lawful, it is permitted [illicit].
lingua, -ae, f., tongue, language [linguist].
littera, -ae, f., a letter (of alphabet); pl., writing, a letter; literature.
lītus, lītoris, n., shore.
locō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. locus), tr., place, put, set [locate].
locus, -ī, m.; pl., loca, locōrum, n., place [local].
longē (adv. fr. longus), far, by far.
longus, -a, -um, long [elongate].

loquor, loquī, locūtus sum, tr., talk, speak [*loqu*acious].

lūmen, lūminis, n. (cf. lūx), light, lamp [*lumin*ous].

lūx, lūcis, f., light [*luc*id]; prīmā lūce, at daybreak.

M

maculō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., stain, spoil [im*maculate*].

magis (comp. adv. of magnus), more.

magister, magistrī, m., teacher.

magistrātus, -ūs, m. (cf. magister), magistracy [magistrate].

magnitūdō, -inis, f. (cf. magnus), greatness, size, importance [magnitude].

magnōpere (magnō + opere, abl. of opus, work), adv., greatly.

magnus, -a, -um, large, great [*magn*ify].

maior, maius (comp. adj. of magnus), greater [major, majority].

maiōrēs, -um, m. pl., ancestors, forefathers; elders.

male (adv. fr. malus), badly, ill [*male*factor].

malum, -ī, n. (malus), evil.

malus, -a, -um, bad [*mal*formation].

mandō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., put into the hands of, intrust, order, w. Dat. of person [com*mand*].

maneō, -ēre, mānsī, mānsūrus, intr., re*main* [per*manent*].

Mānlius, Mānlī, m., Manlius, a Roman family name.

manus, -ūs, f., hand, group, force [manual].

Mārcus, -ī, m., Marcus, a Roman praenomen [Mark].

mare, -is, n., sea [marine].

maritimus, -a, -um (cf. mare), naval [maritime].

marītus, -ī, m., husband.

māter, mātris, f., mother [*mater*nal].

mātrōna, -ae, f. (cf. māter), married woman, matron; woman of rank.

mātūrus, -a, -um, ripe, early [mature].

maximē, adv., most, especially.

maximus, -a, -um (superl. adj. of magnus), greatest, very great [maximum].

medius, -a, -um, middle, middle of [medium].

melior, -ius (comp. adj. of bonus), better [ameliorate].

melius (comp. adv. of bene), better.

memoria, -ae, f., memory.

mēns, mentis, f., mind [mental].

mēnsa, -ae, f., table.

mēnsis, mēnsis, m., month.

mentiō, -ōnis, f. (cf. mēns), mention.

mercātor, -ōris, m., merchant, trader.

merīdiēs, -ēī, f. (media diēs), midday.

meus, mea, meum, my, mine.

Midās, -ae, m., king of Phrygia.

mīles, mīlitis, m., soldier [military].

mīlitia, -ae, f., military service, war [militia].

mīlle, indecl. adj., one thousand; pl., mīlia or mīllia, usually as a noun, thousands (of) [mile].

minimus, -a, -um (superl. adj. of parvus), smallest, youngest [minimize].

minor, -ārī, -ātus sum, intr., threaten, w. Dat. [im*minent*].

minor, minus (comp. adj. of parvus), smaller, younger; minor nātū, younger [*minor*ity].

minus, comp. adv., less; sī minus, if not; minimē, superl. adv., least, not at all.

mīrāculum, -ī, n. (cf. mīror, wonder), marvel, miracle.

miser, misera, miserum, poor, wretched [miser].

mittō, -ere, mīsī, missus, tr., send [sub*mit*, pro*mise*].

modo, adv., only; nōn modo . . . sed etiam, not only . . . but also.

modus, -ī, m., manner [mode].

moneō, -ēre, monuī, monitus, tr., advise, warn [ad*moni*sh].

mōns, montis, m., *moun*tain.

monumentum, -ī, n., monument.

mors, mortis, f., death [*mort*al].

mortuus, -a, -um (cf. mors), dead [*mortu*ary].

mōs, mōris, m., custom, habit [*mor*al].

moveō, -ēre, mōvī, mōtus, tr., move [re*mote*].

mox, adv., soon.

multitūdō, -inis, f. (cf. multus), great number, multitude.

multum (adv. fr. multus), much.

multus, -a, -um, much, many [*multi*ply].

mūniō, -īre, mūnīvī, mūnītus, tr., fortify, protect [am*munition*].

mūrus, mūrī, m., wall [*mur*al].

N

nam, conj., for.

Narbō, -ōnis, f., Narbo, a city in southeastern Gaul.

nārrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., tell, relate [narrate].

nāscor, nāscī, nātus sum, intr., be born [*nat*al].

nātiō, -ōnis, f. (cf. nāscor), tribe, race [nation].

nātūra, -ae, f. (cf. nāscor), nature [*natur*al].

(nātus, -ūs, m.), in Abl. sing. only (cf. nāscor), birth [*nat*ive, *nativ*ity]; maior nātū, older; minor nātū, younger.

nauta, -ae, m. (cf. nāvis), sailor [*naut*ical].

nāvigium, nāvigī, n. (cf. nāvigō), vessel, boat.

nāvigō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. nāvis + agō), tr., sail over, navigate; intr., sail, set sail.

nāvis, nāvis, f., ship [navy, naval].

-ne, encl., sign of a simple direct question; w. indir. question, whether.

nē, adv. and conj.: adv., not; nē . . . quidem (inclosing the words modified), not even; conj., that not, lest.

nec. See neque.

necesse, indecl. adj. (Nom. and Acc.), *necess*ary.

negōtium, negōtī, n., business, trouble [negotiate].

nēmō, Dat. nēminī, m. and f., no one. The Gen. and Abl. sing. and the pl. are replaced by nūllus.

neque or nec, conj., and not, nor; neque (nec) . . . neque (nec), neither . . . nor.

Nerviī, -ōrum, m. pl., a people of northern Gaul.

nesciō, -īre, nescīvī, —— (ne (neg.) + sciō), tr., not know.

neuter, neutra, neutrum, neither (of two) [neutral].

nihil, n., indecl., nothing [annihilate].

Nīlus, -ī, m., the Nile, the river of Egypt.

nisi, conj., if not, unless, except.

nōbilis, -e, famous, noble.

noceō, -ēre, nocuī, nocitūrus, intr., harm, injure, w. Dat. [innocent].

noctū, adv. (cf. nox), at night.

nocturnus, -a, -um (cf. nox), at night, nocturnal.

[nōlō, nōlle, nōluī, —— (nē (neg.) + volō, be willing), tr. and intr., be unwilling, not to wish] nōlī, nōlīte, w. inf., do not.

nōmen, -inis, n., name [nominal].

nōminō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. nōmen), tr., name [nominate].

nōn, adv., not [non-productive]; nōn modo . . . sed etiam, not only . . . but also.

nōnne, adv. (nōn + interrog. -ne), sign of a question expecting the answer "Yes."

nōn nūllus, -a, -um (nōn + nūllus), some one, some; usually in pl.

nōnus, -a, -um (cf. novem), adj., ninth [the Nones].

nōs, nostrum or nostrī, we, pl. of ego.

noster, nostra, nostrum, our, ours [nostrum].

nōtus, -a, -um, known, well-known [noted].

novem, indecl. adj., nine.

novus, -a, -um, new [novel, Nova Scotia].

nox, noctis, f., night [nocturnal].

nūbēs, nūbis, f., cloud.

nūllus, -a, -um, no, none; in Gen. and Abl., no one.

num, interrog. adv., sign of a direct question expecting the answer "No". In indir. question, whether.

numerus, -ī, m., number [numerous].

Numitor, -tōris, m., an Alban king, grandfather of Romulus.

numquam, adv., never.

nunc, adv., now.

nūntiō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., announce, report, declare [pronunciation].

O

ob, prep. w. Acc., on account of [obstruct].

obiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (ob + iaciō), tr., throw against, oppose [object].

obses, obsidis, m. or f., hostage.

obsideō, -sidēre, -sēdī, -sessus (ob + sedeō), tr., besiege [obsession].

obtineō, -tinēre, -tinuī, -tentus (ob + teneō), tr., obtain, gain, hold, have.

occīdō, -cīdere, -cīdī, -cīsus (ob + caedō, cut), tr., cut down, kill.

occupō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ob + capiō), tr., take, seize, occupy.

octāvus, -a, -um, eighth [octave].

octō, indecl. adj., eight [octoroon].

oculus, -ī, m., eye [oculist].

ōdī, ōdisse, ōsūrus, tr., hate [odious].

odium, odī, n., hatred [odium].
officium, offĭcī, n., duty, service, courtesy [office].
ōlim, adv. (cf. ollus, old form of ille), long ago, once upon a time, once.
omnis, -e, every, all [*omnibus, omni*potent].
oportet, oportēre, oportuit, impers., it is fitting.
oppidum, -ī, n., town.
oppōnō, -pōnere, -posuī, -positus (ob + pōnō), tr., put against, oppose [opponent].
opprimō, -primere, -pressī, -pressus (ob + premō, press), tr., overwhelm, crush [oppress].
oppugnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (ob + pugnō), tr., attack.
[ops], opis, f., aid, assistance; wealth; pl., resources [opulent].
optimē (superl. adv. of bene), best, very well.
optimus, -a, -um (superl. adj. of bonus), best, very good [optimist].
ōrātiō, -ōnis, f. (cf. ōrō), speaking, speech [oration]; ōrātiōnem habēre, to make a speech.
ōrātor, ōrātōris, m. (cf. ōrō), speaker, pleader, orator.
ōrdō, -inis, m., rank, class, order [ordinary].
orīgō, orīginis, f. (cf. orior), descent, origin.
orior, -īrī, ortus sum, intr., arise, rise [orient].
ōrnāmentum, -ī, n. (cf. ōrnō, adorn), jewel [ornament].
ōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., speak, beg, ask [ad*ore*].
ōs, ōris, n., mouth [oral].
ostendō, -tendere, -tendī, -tentus (ob[s] + tendō, stretch), tr., show [*ostent*ation].

P

pācō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. pāx), tr., pacify, subdue.
pāgus, -ī, m., district [pagan].
pār, pāris, equal, w. Dat. [par].
parcō, -ere, pepercī and parsī, parsum, intr., spare, w. Dat. [*pars*imony].
pāreō, -ēre, pāruī, pārītūrus, intr., obey, w. Dat.
parō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., get ready, pre*pare* for.
pars, partis, f., part [partial].
parum, adv., little, too little.
parvulus, -a, -um (cf. parvus), very small, tiny.
parvus, -a, -um, small, short.
passus, passūs, m., pace (about five feet); mīlle passūs, thousand paces.
pateō, -ēre, patuī, ——, intr., lie open, be obvious, extend [patent].
pater, patris, m., father [*pater*nal, *patri*mony].
patior, patī, passus sum, tr., allow, suffer [patient].
patria, -ae, f., native land, fatherland, country [patriot].
paucī, -ae, -a, pl., few [*pauc*ity].
paulō, adv. (w. comp.), a little; paulō post, a little later.
pauper, pauperis, poor.
pāx, pācis, f., peace [the Pacific].
pecūnia, -ae, f. (cf. pecus), money [pecuniary].

pecus, -oris, n., cattle [*pec*uliar].

pedes, peditis, m. (cf. pēs), foot-soldier; pl., infantry.

pedester, pedestris, pedestre (cf. pedes), infantry [*pedestr*ian].

peior, peius (comp. adj. of malus), worse.

peius (comp. adv. of male), worse.

pellō, -ere, pepulī, pulsus, tr., drive, defeat [re*pel*, re*pulse*].

per, prep. w. Acc., through, across, during, by [im*per*vious].

perdō, -dere, -didī, -ditus (per + dō), tr., ruin, destroy [*perdi*tion].

perdūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (per + dūcō), tr., lead through, extend.

perficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (per + faciō), tr., accomplish [perfect].

perīculōsus, -a, -um (cf. perīculum), dangerous.

perīculum, -ī, n., danger, trial [peril].

perītus, -a, -um, skilled, experienced, w. Gen. [ex*pert*].

permaneō, -manēre, -mānsī, -mānsūrus (per + maneō), intr., remain, hold out [permanent].

permittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (per + mittō), tr., permit, grant, intrust [*permiss*ion].

permoveō, -movēre, -mōvī, -mōtus (per + moveō), tr., arouse, disturb.

perpaucī, -ae, -a, pl. (per + paucī), very few.

perpetuus, -a, -um, everlasting [*perpetu*al].

persequor, -sequī, -secūtus sum (per + sequor), tr., pursue closely [*persecut*ion].

perspiciō, -spicere, -spexī, -spectus (per + speciō, look at), tr., see through, understand [*perspic*uous].

persuādeō, -suādēre, -suāsī, -suāsum (per + suādeō, persuade), intr., persuade, w. Dat.

perterreō, -terrēre, -terruī, -territus (per + terreō), tr., alarm, frighten.

pertimēscō, -timēscere, -timuī, —— (cf. per + timeō), tr. and intr., be afraid, become very much frightened, fear greatly.

pertineō, -tinēre, -tinuī, —— (per + teneō), intr., reach, extend, pertain [pertinent].

perturbō, -turbāre, -turbāvī, -turbātus (per + turbō, confuse), tr., dis*turb*, alarm [perturbation].

perveniō, -venīre, -vēnī, -ventum (per + veniō), intr., come through, arrive, come.

pēs, pedis, m., foot [*ped*al].

pessimē (superl. adv. of male), worst, very badly.

pessimus, -a, -um (superl. adj. of malus), worst, very bad [*pessim*ist].

petō, -ere, petīvī, petītus, tr., beg, seek [re*peat*, petition].

Pharaō, -ōnis, m., Pharaoh, ruler of Egypt.

philosophus, -ī, m., philosopher.

Phrygia, -ae, f., a country of Asia Minor.

pictūra, -ae, f. (cf. pingō, paint), picture.

placeō, -ēre, placuī, ——, intr., please; impers., placet, it pleases, w. Dat. [placate].

plānitiēs, plānitiēī, f., plain.

plēbs, plēbis, f., common people.

plēnus, -a, -um, full [plenty].

plūrimum (superl. adv. of multum), most, very much.

plūrimus, -a, -um (superl. adj. of multus), very many, very much; pl., very many, most.

plūs, n. (comp. adj. of multus), more; pl., plūrēs, -a, more; comp. adv., more [plural].

Plūtarchus, -ī, m., Plutarch, a Greek biographer.

pōculum, -ī, n., cup.

poena, -ae, f., penalty; poenam dare, to be punished, pay the penalty.

Poenus, -a, -um, Carthaginian; as subst., Poenī, -ōrum, m. pl., Carthaginians [Punic].

poēta, -ae, m., poet.

Pompeius, -ī (Gnaeus Pompeius Magnus), Pompey, a Roman general.

pōmum, -ī, n., apple.

pōnō, -ere, posuī, positus, tr., put, place, establish [position]; castra pōnere, to pitch camp.

pōns, pontis, m., bridge [pontoon].

populus, -ī, m., people [popular].

Porsena, -ae, m., Etruscan king.

porta, -ae, f., gate [portal].

portō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., carry, bring [porter].

portus, -ūs, m., harbor, port.

poscō, -ere, poposcī, ——, tr., demand.

possum, posse, potuī, —— (potis, able + sum), be able, can [posse, potent, possible].

post, prep. w. Acc., after, behind; adv., afterwards [*post*pone].

posteā, adv., afterwards.

postquam, conj. (post + quam, than), after.

postrīdiē, adv. (posterus, next + diēs), on the next day.

postulō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., demand [expostulate].

potēns, potentis (pres. part. of possum), powerful [potential].

potestās, potestātis, f. (cf. potis, able), power, authority, chance.

potior, potīrī, potītus sum, intr., get possession of, w. Abl.

potissimum, superl. adv., rather, sooner, preferably.

potius, comp. adv., rather, sooner, preferably.

praecēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessum (prae + cēdō), intr., go before, lead the way [precede].

praecipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (prae, before + capiō), tr., order, instruct, advise, w. Dat. [precept].

praemittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (prae, before + mittō), tr., send ahead [premise].

praemium, praemī, n., reward [premium].

praesciō, -scīre, -scīvī (prae + sciō), tr., know beforehand.

praesēns, praesentis (pres. part. of praesum, be before), in person, present.

praesidium, praesidī, n. (cf. prae + sedeō), garrison, guard.

praeter, prep. w. Acc., along, except.

premō, -ere, pressī, pressus, tr., press, op*press*; sup*press*, hide.

pretiōsus, -a, -um (cf. pretium), costly, precious.

pretium, pretī, n., price.

prīdiē, adv. (prior + diēs), on the day before.

prīmō (adv. fr. prīmus), first, at first.

prīmum (adv. fr. prīmus), first.

prīmus, -a, -um, first [prime, *prime*r].

prīnceps, prīncipis, m. (cf. prīmus + capiō), leader, chief man [*princip*al].

prior, comp. adj., earlier, first [prior, *prior*ity].

prīvātus, -a, -um, private.

prō, prep. w. Abl., in front of, on behalf of, for.

prōcēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessum (prō + cēdō), intr., go forward, advance [proceed, process].

prōdūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (prō + dūcō), tr., lead forward [produce, product].

proelium, proelī, n., battle; proelium committere, to begin battle.

proficīscor, -ī, profectus sum (cf. prōficiō, advance), intr., start, set out, march.

prohibeō, -hibēre, -hibuī, -hibitus (prō + habeō), tr., prevent, prohibit.

prōiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (prō + iaciō), tr., throw forward [project, *project*ile].

prōnūntiō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (prō + nūntiō), tr., proclaim [pronounce].

prope, prep. w. Acc., near; adv., near, nearly, almost.

properō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, intr., hurry.

propinquus, -a, -um, near; as subst., m. and f., a relative [*propinqu*ity].

propior, -ius (comp. adj. fr. adv. prope), nearer.

prōpōnō, -pōnere, -posuī, -positus (prō + pōnō), tr., put before, propose.

propter, prep. w. Acc., on account of.

proptereā, adv., for this reason; proptereā quod, because.

prōsequor, -sequī, -secūtus sum (prō + sequor), tr., follow forth, escort [prosecute].

prōvideō, -vidēre, -vīdī, -vīsus (prō + videō), tr., foresee [provide, *provis*ion].

prōvincia, -ae, f., province.

proximus, -a, -um (superl. adj. from adv. prope), nearest, next [ap*proxim*ate].

prūdēns, prūdentis (for prōvidēns, pres. part.), foreseeing, wise, discreet, prudent.

prūdenter (adv. fr. prūdēns), wisely, discreetly, *prudent*ly.

prūdentia, -ae, f. (cf. prūdēns), wisdom, discretion, prudence.

pūblicus, -a, -um, belonging to the state, official, public.

puella, -ae, f., girl.

puer, puerī, m., boy, [*puer*ile].

pugnō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum, intr., fight, w. cum and Abl. [*pugnac*ious].

pulcher, pulchra, pulchrum, beautiful.

Pūnicus, -a, -um, Punic, Carthaginian.
pūniō, -īre, -īvī, -ītus (cf. poena), tr., punish [punitive].
putō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., think [dispute, reputation].
putridus, -a, -um, decayed, rotten [putrid].
Pyrrhus, -ī, m., king of Epirus.

Q

quadringentī, -ae, -a, four hundred.
quaerō, -ere, quaesīvī, quaesītus, tr., seek, ask, inquire [question].
quam, conj. and adv., than (conj.), how? (adv. of degree).
quantus, -a, -um, interrog. and rel. adj., how great, how much, as great; quantus . . . tantus, as great . . . as [quantity].
quārē, adv. (quae + rēs), and for that reason, wherefore.
quārtus, -a, -um (cf. quattuor), fourth [quart, quarter].
quattuor, indecl., four.
quattuordecim (quattuor + decem), indecl., fourteen.
-que, encl. conj., and.
quī, quae, quod, rel. pron., who, which, that, what.
quia, conj., because.
quīdam, quaedam, quiddam (quoddam), indef. pron., a certain (one), some one, something; indef. adj., a certain, some.
quidem, adv. (postpositive), indeed, certainly, at least; emphasizes the word immediately preceding.
quīndecim (quīnque + decem), indecl., fifteen.
quīnque, indecl., five.
quīntus, -a, -um (cf. quīnque), fifth.
quīntus decimus, -a, -um, fifteenth.
quis, quid, interrog. pron., who? what?
quis, quid, indef. pron., any one, anybody.
quō, interrog. and rel. adv., whither.
quod, conj., because; that, the fact that.
quoniam, conj., since, because.
quoque, adv., also.
quot, indecl., rel. adj., as many (as); interrog. adj., how many?

R

rapiō, -ere, rapuī, raptus, tr., snatch, seize [rapine].
ratiō, -ōnis, f., account; theory; manner [ratio, rational].
recēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessum, (re, back + cēdō), intr., go back, retire, withdraw [recede].
recēns, recentis, fresh, new, recent.
recipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (re, back + capiō), tr., take back, receive; sē recipere, to retreat [reception].
recumbō, -ere, recubuī, ——, intr., lie down.
reddō, -dere, -didī, -ditus (re[d], back + dō), tr., give back.
redigō, -igere, redēgī, redāctus (re[d], back + agō), tr., drive back, reduce, render.

redūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (re, back + dūcō), tr., lead back, bring back [reduce, reduction].

reficiō, -ficere, -fēcī, -fectus (re, back + faciō), tr., repair [refectory].

rēgīna, -ae, f. (cf. rēx), queen.

regiō, regiōnis, f. (cf. regō), district [region].

rēgnum, -ī, n. (cf. rēx), kingdom [reign].

regō, -ere, rēxī, rēctus, tr., rule [direct, correct].

reiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (re, back + iaciō), tr., throw back [reject].

relinquō, -linquere, -līquī, -lictus (re, back + linquō, leave), tr., leave behind, abandon [relinquish].

reliquus, -a, -um (cf. relinquō), the rest of, remaining, remainder of [relic]; reliquum est, it remains.

remaneō, -manēre, -mānsī, —— (re, back + maneō), intr., stay behind, remain.

remittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (re, back + mittō), tr., send back [remit, remission].

removeō, -movēre, -mōvī, -mōtus (re, back + moveō), tr., move back, take away, remove [remote].

Remus, -ī, m., the brother of Romulus.

repellō, -pellere, reppulī, repulsus (re, back + pellō), tr., drive back, repulse [repel].

reperiō, -perīre, repperī, repertus (re, back + pariō, produce), tr., find, discover.

repetō, -petere, -petīvī, -petītus (re, back + petō), tr., seek again, recall [repeat, repetition].

reportō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (re, back + portō), tr., carry or bring back [report].

rēs, reī, f., thing; rēs frūmentāria, grain supplies; rēs mīlitāris, military affairs, art of war; rēs pūblica, commonwealth, government, state; republic.

resistō, -sistere, restitī, —— (re, back + sistō, place), intr., resist, w. Dat.

respondeō, -spondēre, -spondī, -spōnsum (re, back + spondeō, promise solemnly), tr., answer, respond [response, responsible].

resūmō, -sūmere, -sūmpsī, -sūmptus (re, back + sūmō), tr., take up again, take back, resume [resumption].

retineō, -tinēre, -tinuī, -tentus (re, back + teneō), tr., hold back, keep back, retain [retention].

reveniō, -venīre, -vēnī, -ventum (re, back + veniō), intr., come back, return [revenue].

revocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (re, back + vocō), tr., recall [revoke].

rēx, rēgis, m. (cf. regō), king [regal].

Rhēnus, -ī, m., the Rhine, the principal river of northern Europe.

rīdeō, -ēre, rīsī, rīsus, tr. and intr., laugh; laugh at [deride, derision].

rogō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., ask [inter*rogate*].
Rōma, -ae, f., Rome.
Rōmānus, -a, -um, Roman.
Rōmulus, -ī, m., the reputed founder of Rome.
rosa, -ae, f., rose.
rūs, rūris, n., the country [*rur*al]; rūrī, in the country.

S

Sabīnī, -ōrum, m. pl., a people of central Italy.
Sabīnus, -a, -um, Sabine.
sacer, sacra, sacrum, holy, *sacr*ed.
saepe, adv., often.
sagitta, -ae, f., arrow.
salūs, salūtis, f., safety [*salut*ary].
salūtō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. salūs), tr., greet, pay one's respects to [salute].
salvus, -a, -um (cf. salūs), unharmed, safe, well, sound [*salv*ation].
sanguis, sanguinis, m., blood [*sanguin*ary].
sānus, -a, -um, sound, healthy [sane].
satis, · adv. and indecl. noun, enough, quite [*satis*factory].
satis faciō, facere, fēcī, factus, tr., satisfy.
saxum, -ī, n., rock.
schola, -ae, f., school [*schol*ar].
scientia, -ae, f. (cf. sciō), knowledge [*science, scient*ific].
sciō, scīre, scīvī, scītus, tr., know [omni*scient*].
scrībō, -ere, scrīpsī, scrīptus, tr., write [in*scribe*, pre*scription*].
scūtum, -ī, n., shield [*escut*cheon].
secundus, -a, -um, second.
sed, conj., but.
sēdecim (sex + decem), indecl., sixteen.
sedeō, -ēre, sēdī, sessūrus, intr., sit, settle [*session, sedent*ary].
semper, adv., always [*semp*iternal].
senātus, -ūs, m. (cf. senex), senate.
senectūs, senectūtis, f. (cf. senex), old age.
senex, senis, old, aged; comp., senior; as subst., m., old man.
sententia, -ae, f. (cf. sentiō), thinking, thought, opinion [*sententi*ous].
sentiō, -īre, sēnsī, sēnsus, tr., feel, realize [sentiment, sense].
sepeliō, -īre, sepelīvī, sepultus, tr., bury [*sepul*cher].
septem, indecl., seven [*Septem*ber].
septendecim (septem + decem), indecl., seventeen.
septentriō, -ōnis (cf. septem); in pl., the seven stars of the Great Bear, the north.
septimus, -a, -um, seventh.
septimus decimus, -a, -um, seventeenth.
Sēquanī, -ōrum, m. pl., a tribe of eastern Gaul.
sequor, sequī, secūtus sum, tr., follow [sequel, con*secutive*].
serviō, -īre, servīvī, servītum (cf. servus), intr., serve, be a slave (to), w. Dat.
servitūs, servitūtis, f. (cf. serviō), slavery [servitude].
servō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., save, keep, protect [pre*serve*, con*servation*].
servus, -ī, m., slave [servile].

sex, indecl., six [*sext*ant].

Sextius, -ī, m., a Roman proper name.

sextus, -a, -um, sixth.

sextus decimus, -a, -um, sixteenth.

sī, conj., if; quod sī, but if, now if; sī . . . minus, if . . . not.

sīc, adv., thus, so.

Sicilia, -ae, f., Sicily.

significātiō, -ōnis, f. (cf. significō, make signs), meaning [*signific*ant].

signum, -ī, n., sign, *sign*al, a (military) standard.

silva, -ae, f., forest, woods [*silv*an, Penn*sylv*ania].

Silvia, -ae, f.; Rhēa Silvia, the mother of Romulus and Remus.

similis, -e, like [*simil*ar].

similiter, adv. [*simil*arly].

simulō, -āre, -āvī, -ātum (cf. similis), tr. and intr., pretend, simulate.

sīn, conj., but if.

sine, prep. w. Abl., without [*sine*cure].

singulāris, -e (cf. singulī), single, unusual [singular].

singulī, -ae, -a, pl., one each, one at a time [single].

sinister, sinistra, sinistrum, left, on the left [sinister].

socius, socī, m., ally, comrade [*soci*al].

sōl, sōlis, m., sun [*sol*ar].

solea, -ae, f., shoe, sandal.

sōlitūdō, sōlitūdinis, f. (cf. sōlus), wilderness, solitude.

sōlum, adv., only.

sōlus, -a, -um, alone, only, sole, [*soli*tary].

somnium, -ī, n. (cf. somnus, sleep), dream.

sonō, -āre, sonuī, sonitus (cf. sonus), intr., make a noise, sound [*reson*ant].

sonus, -ī, m., sound.

sordidus, -a, -um, dirty, unclean [sordid].

soror, sorōris, f., sister [*soror*ity].

Spartānus, -a, -um, Spartan.

spatium, spatī, n., room, space.

spectātor, -tōris, m. (cf. spectō), spectator.

spectō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., look at, look toward [in*spect*].

spērō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. spēs), tr., hope, hope for [des*pair*].

spēs, speī, f., hope.

statim, adv. (cf. stō), at once.

statua, -ae, f., image, statue.

stella, -ae, f., star [*stell*ar, con*stell*ation].

stō, stāre, stetī, statūrus, intr., stand [*stat*ion].

studeō, -ēre, studuī, —— (cf. studium), intr., be eager, be zealous, desire; busy with, apply one's self [*studi*ous].

studium, studī, n., zeal, enthusiasm, study.

sub, prep. w. Acc., after verbs of motion, under, below, up to; w. Abl., under, beneath, at the foot of [*sub*terranean, *sub*mit].

subigō, -igere, -ēgī, -āctus (sub + agō), tr., conquer, subdue [subject].

subitō, adv., suddenly.

submittō, -mittere, -mīsī, -missus (sub + mittō), tr., send to assistance of, yield to [submit, submission].

subsequor, -sequī, -secūtus sum (sub + sequor), tr., follow closely [subsequent].

succēdō, -cēdere, -cessī, -cessum (sub + cēdō), intr., come up, succeed.

succurrō, -currere, -currī, -cursūrus (sub + currō), intr., rush to rescue, relieve, w. Dat. [succor].

Suēbī, -ōrum, m. pl., a tribe of central Germany.

suī, reflex. pron., (of) himself, herself, itself, themselves.

sum, esse, fuī, futūrus, intr., be [future].

summus, -a, -um, highest, utmost; top of [summit].

sūmō, -ere, sūmpsī, sūmptus, tr., take, assume [assumption]; poenam sūmere, to inflict punishment.

super, prep. w. Acc. and Abl., over, above, upon, on [superlative].

superbus, -a, -um, proud [superb].

superō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. super), tr., overcome, excel, surpass [insuperable].

superus, -a, -um (cf. super), above; comp. superior, higher; superl. summus.

supplex, supplicis, humbly begging, submissive [suppliant].

suppliciter, adv. (cf. supplex), humbly.

supplicium, supplicī, n. (cf. supplex), punishment.

supportō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (sub + portō), tr., bring up, furnish [support].

suprā, prep. w. Acc., above.

suscipiō, -cipere, -cēpī, -ceptus (sub + capiō), tr., take up, undertake [susceptible].

suspiciō, -spicere, -spexī, -spectus (sub + speciō, look at), tr., look up at [suspect].

sustineō, -tinēre, -tinuī, -tentus (sub + teneō), tr., hold up, sustain, bear, endure; check.

sūtor, -tōris, m., cobbler.

suus, -a, -um, refl. poss., his, her, its, their, with or without own.

T

tabula, -ae, f., map, chart, writing tablet [table].

tālis, tāle, such; tālis . . . quālis, such . . . as.

tam, adv., so; tam . . . quam, as much . . . as.

tamen, adv., nevertheless, yet, still.

tandem, adv., at last, at length; in questions, now, pray.

tantus, -a, -um, so great; tantus . . . quantus, as great . . . as.

tardō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. tardus), tr., check [retard].

tardus, -a, -um, slow, late [tardy].

Tarentīnus, -ī, m., an inhabitant of Tarentum, a Tarentine.

Tarentum, -ī, n., a Greek city in southern Italy.

Tarquinius, -ī, m., L. Tarquinius Superbus, the last king of Rome.

tēctum, -ī, n. (cf. tegō, cover), roof [protection].

tēlum, -ī, n., missile, weapon.

tempestās, tempestātis, f. (cf. tem- pus), storm, stormy weather [tempest].

templum, -ī, n., temple.

temptō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., test, try, at*tempt* [temptation].

tempus, temporis, n., time [temporal, temporary].

teneō, -ēre, tenuī, ——, tr., hold, keep [con*tain*, *ten*ure].

terra, -ae, f., land, earth [terra cotta].

terreō, -ēre, terruī, territus, tr., frighten [terrify, terrible].

tertius, -a, -um, third [tertiary].

tertius decimus, -a, -um, thirteenth.

Tiberis, -is, m., the Tiber, the river flowing past Rome.

Tiberius, -ī, m., a Roman proper name.

timeō, -ēre, timuī, ——, tr., fear, be afraid [timid].

timidus, -a, -um (cf. timeō), fearful, cowardly [timidity].

timor, timōris, m., fear [timorous].

tingō [tinguō], -ere, tinxī, tinctus, tr., dip, stain [tincture].

tollō, -ere, sustulī, sublātus, tr., raise, lift up, carry off [ex*tol*].

tot, indecl., so many; quot . . . tot, as many . . . as.

tōtus, -a, -um (cf. tot), all, whole of [total].

trādō, -dere, -didī, -ditus (trāns + dō), tr., hand over, yield [tradition].

trādūcō, -dūcere, -dūxī, -ductus (trāns + dūcō), tr., lead across [traduce].

trahō, -ere, trāxī, tractus, tr., drag, bring, carry off [tract, sub*tract*].

trāiciō, -icere, -iēcī, -iectus (trāns + iaciō), tr., throw across, pierce [trajectory].

trāns, prep. w. Acc., across [translate].

trānsmarīnus, -a, -um (trāns + marīnus, marine), from across the sea.

trānsportō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (trāns + portō), tr., carry across, transport.

trēdecim (trēs + decem), indecl., thirteen.

trēs, tria, three.

tribūnus, -ī, m. (cf. tribus, tribe), tribune.

tribuō, -ere, tribuī, tribūtus, tr., give, yield, assign, dis*tribute*.

trīgintā, indecl., thirty.

Trōia, -ae, f., Troy, an ancient city of Asia Minor.

tū, tuī, pers. pron., thou; you (sing.).

tubicen, tubicinis, m. (cf. tuba + canō, sing), trumpeter.

Tuccia, -ae, f., a Vestal.

tum, adv., then.

tumultus, -ūs, m., disturbance, tumult.

tunc, adv., then.

turpis, -e, disgraceful [turpitude].

turris, turris, f., tower [turret].

tūtus, -a, -um, safe [tutelary].

tuus, -a, -um, thy, thine; your.

U

ubi, adv., where, where? conj., when.

ūllus, -a, -um, any.

ultrā, prep. with Acc., beyond.

unde, adv., whence.

ūndecim (ūnus + decem), indecl., eleven.
ūndecimus, -a, -um, eleventh.
ūndēvīcēnsimus, -a, -um, nineteenth.
ūndēvīgintī (ūnus dē vīgintī), indecl., nineteen.
undique, adv., from all sides, on all sides.
ūniversus, -a, -um, altogether, all, whole [universe]. ūnus, -a, -um, one [unit, unify].
urbs, urbis, f., city [urban, urbanity].
ūsus, ūsūs, m. (cf. ūtor), use, practice, experience.
ut, conj., that, in order that, so that.
uter, utra, utrum, which (of two)?
uterque, utraque, utrumque, both, each.
ūtilis, ūtile (cf. ūtor), useful [utility].
utinam, adv., O that, would that, may.
ūtor, ūtī, ūsus sum, intr., use, enjoy, make use of, w. Abl. [usable].
utrum, adv., whether, introducing a double question.
uxor, uxōris, f., wife.

V

vallēs, vallis, f., valley.
vāllum, -ī, n., rampart, palisade [wall].
varius, -a, -um, various.
vastus, -a, -um, vast, extensive.
vehementer, adv., violently [vehement].
vehō, vehere, vēxī, vectus, tr., bear, carry, con*vey; in passive, w.* equō, ride; w. nāve, sail [vehicle, inveigh].
vēndō, -ere, vēndidī, venditus, tr., sell [vendor].
venia, -ae, f., pardon, forgiveness [venial].
veniō, -īre, vēnī, ventum, intr., come [venture].
ventus, -ī, m., wind.
verbum, -ī, n., word [verbal, verb].
vereor, -ērī, veritus sum, tr., fear; respect [revere].
vēritās, vēritātis, f. (cf. vērus), truth [verity, veritable].
vērō (adv. fr. vērus), in truth, but [verily].
vērus, -a, -um, true [very].
Vesta, -ae, f., Roman goddess of the hearth.
Vestālis, -e, of Vesta; as subst., f., a priestess of Vesta, Vestal.
vester, vestra, vestrum, your, yours.
vestīmentum, -ī, n. (cf. vestis), clothing, clothes [vestment].
vestis, vestis, f., clothing, clothes [vest].
vetus, veteris, old [veteran, inveterate].
vetustus, -a, -um, old.
via, -ae, f., highway, road [via, viaduct].
viātor, viātōris, m. (cf. via), wayfarer, traveler.
vīcēnsimus, -a, -um, twentieth.
vīcīnus, -a, -um (cf. vīcus, village), neighboring [vicinity].
victōria, -ae, f. (cf. vincō, conquer; victor, conqueror, victor), victory [*victor*ious].

videō, -ēre, vīdī, vīsus, tr., see [pro*vide*].

videor, -ērī, vīsus sum, dep., seem [*vis*ible].

vigilō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, intr., be awake, keep watch [vigilant].

vīgintī, indecl., twenty.

villa, -ae, f., farmhouse [*villa, vill*ain].

vincō, -ere, vīcī, victus, tr., conquer [in*vinc*ible, *vict*or].

violentus, -a, -um, violent.

vir, virī, m., man, hero, husband [*vir*ile].

virtūs, virtūtis, f. (cf. vir), manliness, courage, virtue, character.

vīs, vim (Acc.), f., force, violence; pl., vīrēs, vīrium, strength [vim].

vīta, -ae, f., life [vital].

vīvō, -ere, vīxī, victum, intr., live [sur*vive*, *vict*uals].

vīvus, -a, -um (cf. vīvō), alive [vivid].

vix, adv., scarcely.

vocō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, tr., call [con*voke*].

voluntās, voluntātis, f. (cf. volō, be willing), wish [*volunt*ary].

vōs, vestrum or vestrī, you, pl. of tū.

vōx, vōcis, f., speech, remark, voice [*voc*al].

vulnerō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus (cf. vulnus), tr., wound [*vulnera*ble].

vulnus, vulneris, n., wound.

Z

Zama, -ae, f., Zama, a town in Africa where Hannibal was defeated by Scipio Africanus (202 B.C.).

INDEX

(The numbers refer to sections except where p. (page) is given with a reference to the Appendix.)

Ablative, absolute, 438–440; in comparison, 206–207; of accompaniment, 114–115; of agency, 158–159; of cause, 263–264; of manner, 281–282; of means or instrument, 80–81; of measure or degree of difference, 291–292; of place from which, 348, 350; of place where, 348–350; of quality or description, 363; of separation, 319–320; of specification, 272–273; of time when or within which, 123–124; with certain deponents, 508.
Abbreviations, Latin in English, 422.
Accent, 6.
Accompaniment, abl. of, 114–115.
Accusative, direct object, 18; of duration of time, 125–126; of extent of space, 352–353; of place to which, 348, 350; subject in indirect discourse, 453, 456; with per in indirect agency, 160.
Adjectives, first and second declensions, 59–61, 96, p. 319; w. gen. in -ius, 477, pp. 320–321; third declension, 286–287, p. 320; comparison, 195–197, 289, 304, p. 321; declension of comparative, 198, p. 322; agreement, 60; dat. with, 312–313; gen. with, 361; possessive, 131–132.
Adverbs, formation and comparison, 200–201, 303, 305, pp. 321–322.
Advertising, classical influence upon, 372.
Agency, abl. of, 158–159; indirect, with per and acc., 160.
Agreement, adjective, 60; noun, 78–79; participle, 165, Note; relative pronoun, 239, 242; verb, 18–19.
Aliquis, 461, p. 324.
Alius, declension, p. 320; special uses of, 478.
Alphabet, 1.
Alter, 477, Note.
Appositive noun, 78–79.
Aqueducts, Roman, 276.
Arches, Roman, 177.
Association, abl. of, 114–115.

Base, 13, n. 2, 120, 277, n. 1.
Baths, Roman, 226.
Bridges of Rome, 84.

Calendar, the Roman, 345.
Cardinal numerals, see Numerals.
Case endings, 12–13, 36, 120, 277, 325; see also Declension.
Causal clauses, w. quod, quia, 249–250.
Cause, expressions of, 263–264.
Cicero, Marcus Tullius, 516.
Colosseum, 146.
Commands, 400, 428.
Comparison, see Adjectives and Adverbs; abl. in, 206–207.
Conditional sentences with indic., 373–374.
Conjugation, defined, 11; see Verbs.
Cum, enclitic, 183, n. 2, 210, n. 3.

Cum-causal clauses, 511; cum-circumstantial clauses, 510; cum-temporal clauses, 509.

Dative, indirect object, 29; of the possessor, 327–328; with adjectives, 312–313; with intransitive verbs, 336–337.
Declension, defined, 11; suggestions for learning, 14; first, 12–13, p. 317; second, 36, p. 317; in -ius and -ium, 38; in -r, 95, p. 317; third, 120, 139–140, pp. 317–318; w. gen. in -ium, 277–279; fourth, 325, p. 318; fifth, 342, p. 319; see also Adjectives, Participles, Numerals. For the declension of pronouns, see the particular words.
Demonstrative pronouns and adjectives, 213, 215, p. 323.
Deponent verbs, 339, n. 1, 505, pp. 337–338; w. abl., 508.
Description, genitive and ablative of, 363.
Difference, abl. of measure or degree of, 291–292.
Direct object, 18.
Distance, expressions of, 352–353.
Domus, declension, 325, p. 318; without prep., 320, 348–350.
Dress, Roman, 419.
Dum, pres. indic. with, 247–248.
Duo, 221; declension, p. 321.
Duration of time, acc. of, 125–126.

Ego, 183, p. 322.
Enclitics, 6, c; 183, n. 2, 210, n. 3.
Endings, see Case endings, Personal endings, Verbs.
English sentences, suggestions for translating, 34.
Exhortations, 399, 428.
Extent of space, acc. of, 352–353.

Forum, 137.
Future, tense sign, 72, 148.
Future perfect, formation, 87.

Gender of nouns, first declension, 13; second declension, 36, 38; third declension, 140; w. i-stems, 279; fourth declension, 325; fifth declension, 342.
Genitive, objective, 359; of quality or description, 363; of the whole, 360; possessive, 18–19; subjective, 358; w. adjs., 361.
Gerund, 493–496; in purpose phrases, 500.
Gerundive phrase, 497–499; of purpose, 500.

Hic, 213, 215, p. 323.
House, Roman, 341.

Īdem, 213, 215, p. 323.
Ille, 213, 215, p. 323.
Imperative, 425–428; irregular forms, 426, n. 1.
Imperfect tense, 71; formation in indicative, 71; in subjunctive, 381.
Indefinite pronouns, aliquis and quīdam, 461, p. 324.
Indirect discourse, 452–456.
Indirect object, 29; w. intr. vbs., 336–337.
Indirect questions, 484–485; alternative indirect questions, 487.
Infinitive, 451; complementary, 102–103; in indirect discourse, 452–456; use of tenses, 455.
Inflection, defined, 11.
Instrument, abl. of, 80–81.
Intensive pronoun, 184, p. 323.
Interrogative pronoun and adjective, 210, p. 324.
Intransitive verbs w. dat., 336–337.
Ipse, 184, p. 323.
Is, 213, 215, p. 323.
Iste, 213, 215.

Latin sentences, suggestions for translating, 21.

Latin words in Algebra and Biology, 301.
Latin words and phrases in English, 335; form of Latin words in English, 229; importance of, 230.
Locative, 349.

Manner, abl. of, 281–282.
Means, abl. of, 80–81.
Measure or degree of difference, abl. of, 291–292.
Mīlle, 354, n. 1; declension of pl., p. 321.
Moods, in English, 380, 383, 425; in Latin, 24, 381, 426.

Nē, in clauses of purpose, 386–387; in substantive volitive clauses, 465–466.
Neuter, 477.
Nominative absolute in English, 437.
Nouns, see Declension; agreement, 78–79.
Nūllus, 477.
Numerals, cardinal, 221, 355; ordinal, 221.

Object, direct, 18; indirect, 29.
Objective genitive, 359.
Order of words, 18, 34.
Ordinal numerals, see Numerals.

Participles, 435–436, 439; declension, 65, 436, n. 1; agreement, 165, Note.
Passive voice (of vocō), indicative, 155, 165; see Verbs.
Perfect tense, 46–47; personal endings in indicative active, 46; formation in indicative passive, 165; in subjunctive, 381.
Personal endings, active, 24; passive, 155; perf. indic. act., 46; imperative, 426.
Personal pronouns, 183, 215, p. 322.
Place, where, 348–350; to which, 348, 350; from which, 348, 350.
Pluperfect tense, 86; formation in indicative, 86; in subjunctive, 381.
Plūs, 304.
Possessive adjectives, 131–132.
Possessive genitive, 18–19.
Possessor, dat. of, 327–328.
Possum, 98, 396, pp. 336–337.
Postquam, perf. indic. w., 247–248.
Potential expressions, 402–403.
Predicate noun, 41–42.
Prefixes, 236–237, 445–446.
Present tense, 24.
Principal parts, 65.
Pronouns, see the particular word.
Pronunciation, 2–7.
Purpose, clauses of, 383–387; neg. clauses, 386–387; relative clauses of, 430–431.
Purpose phrases, 500.

Quality, genitive and ablative of, 363.
Quam, in comparisons, 204–207; with superlative, 321, n. 1.
Quantity of syllables, 7.
Questions and answers, 31; indirect questions, 484–485; alternative indirect questions, 487.
Quī, 240–242, p. 324.
Quīdam, 461, p. 324.
Quis (interrog.), 210, p. 324; (indef.), 461, Note.
Quod-clauses, 462–463.
Quotations from the Latin, 334.

Reflexive pronouns, 186–187, p. 322; reflexive possessives, 188.
Relative clauses of purpose, 430–431.
Relative pronoun, 239–242, p. 324; agreement, 239, 242.
Religion, Roman, 482.
Result, clauses of, 411–415; substantive result clauses, 468–470.
Roads, Roman, 268.
Romans as builders, artisans, and artists, 392.
Root of verb, 24.

Semi-deponent verbs, 174, n. 1.
Separation, abl. of, 319–320.
Sequence of tenses, pp. 343–344.
Specification, abl. of, 272–273.
Stem, 277, n. 1.
Subject, 18; omission, 24, 183; in indirect discourse, 453.
Subjective genitive, 358.
Subjunctive, 380–381; in clauses of purpose, 383–387; in clauses of result, 411–415; in cum-causal clauses, 511; in cum-circumstantial clauses, 510; in independent clauses, 397–403; in indirect questions, 484–485, 487; in substantive volitive clauses, 465–466; use of tenses, 384, Note, 398, 414–415.
Substantive clauses, quod-clauses, 462–463; substantive volitive clauses, 465–466; substantive result clauses, 468–470.
Suffixes, 238, 447–449.
Suī, 186, p. 322.
Sum, 26, 49, 75, 89, 382, pp. 335–336.
Syllables, 5; quantity, 7.
Synopsis of verbs, 90, 173.

Temporal clauses, w. postquam, ubi, dum, 247–248; w. cum, 509.
Tense, suggestions for learning a, 25; sequence of tenses, pp. 343–344; use of infinitive tenses, 455.
Tiber, 54.
Time, acc. of duration of, 125–126; abl. of, 123–124.
Tōtus, 477.
Translating English sentences, suggestions for, 34; Latin sentences, suggestions for, 21.
Trēs, 221; declension, p. 321.
Tū, 183, p. 322.

Ubi, perf. indic. with, 247–248.
Ūllus, 477.
Ūnus, 477; declension, p. 321.
Ut, in clauses of purpose, 384, 387; in clauses of result, 411–415; in substantive volitive clauses, 465–466.
Uter, 477.
Uterque, 477.

Verbs, first conj., 24, 46, 71–73, 86–88, 155, 165, 381, pp. 325–326; second conj., 111, 113, 171, 395, pp. 327–328; third conj., 148, 181, 408, pp. 329–330; third conj., in -iō, 231, 261, 408, pp. 331–332; fourth conj., 260–261, 270, 408, pp. 333–334; agency with, in passive, 158–159; agreement, 18–19; deponent, 339, n. 1, 505, pp. 337–338; abl. w. deponents, 508; intransitive, dat. with, 336–337; passive voice, indicative of first conj., 155, 165 (see also App., pp. 325–334); principal parts, 65; root of, 24; semi-deponent, 174, n. 1; synopsis, 90, 173; tense of, suggestions for learning a, 25; see also Imperative, Infinitive, Participles, Verbal noun, Personal endings, and names of tenses.
Verbal noun in English, 492; equivalents in Latin, 493–499.
Vetus, 286, n. 1.
Vīs, 315, n. 2.
Vocabulary, suggestions for learning a, 17.
Vocative, 13, 36, 38, 95.
Volitive substantive clauses, 465–466.

Wall decorations, Roman, 341.
Walls of Rome, 106.
Whole, genitive of the, 360.
Wishes, 397–398.